MURDER MYSTERY ACROSS THE BAY.

PONTIFF HOLDS HIS OWN.

PONTIFF STILL HOLDS HIS OWN AGAINST ODDS.

Some of his Friends Even Hope for His Recovery—How the Pope Spent the Day and Night.

ROME, July 11.—The pope continues to hold his own. A slight improvement is manifest in the primary ailment but the condition of the kidneys now gives cause for a renewal of anxiety. This is increased by the danger of the Pontiff's heart giving out at any moment. In a general way, however, the brave old patient may be said to be more comfortable than for several days.

The doctors say they would scarcely be surprised if the see-saw between life and death continues for another fifteen days. This afternoon the extraordinary nongenarian received in audience three cardinals, one belonging to the order of Bishops, one to the the order of Priests and one to the order of Deacons, in the private chapel of the Pontificial apartments.

A triduam for the Pope's recovery was commenced today and will continue unceasingly until Monday night. Prayers will be said and chanted in Pope Leo's behalf and the expenses of the services will be borne by the Ancient body known as the "Pope's Familiars."

A dispatch from Turin announces that even in that cradle of the house of Savoy, which wrested temporal power from the Vatican, the inhabitants today formed an imposing procession, headed by priests, and slowly marched through the streets, chanting intercessions. At the Church of the Consolate, the Archbishop of Turin, Cardinal Richelmy, himself, a possible successor of the Pops, addressed the multitude and pronounced a eulogium of Leo XIII, declaring that his death would be an irreparable loss to the church of Rome.

The British government has been obliged to forego its custom dating many years, of holding no diplomatic intercourse with the Vatican. Today the government cabled direct to Cardinal Rampolla, as secretary of state, saying a cable message had been received from the government of New Zealand, inquiring about the Pope's health and requesting an answer in order to transmit to Premier Seddon. Considerable significance was attached at the Vatican to this incident.

MUCH INTEREST IN ROME.

ROME, July 11, 11:10 A. M.—Contrary to his usual habit, the Pope did not get up this morning, not because of any unusual depression, as his general condition is somewhat improved, but because the doctors urged him to rest as much as possible and to stay in bed.

The foregoing comes from authoritative sources, thus disproving the reports that the Pope is failing rapidly.

HOPES OF RECOVERY.

Hopes of the Pope's recovery have again risen at the Vatican through the restful night, taken as a whole, passed by the Pontiff. Even his attendants have been able to enjoy much needed rest.

Dr. Lapponi paid a visit to the Pope at 7 o'clock. The Pontiff, at first, was not in a good humor, saying he could not stand remaining so many hours in bed, never having been accustomed to lie down for longer than four or five hours at a time. The doctor, however, succeeded, most patient, in convincing him that when persons are ill it is necessary to change their habits, even if they seem not to be so comfortable.

"But is it really necessary?" asked the Pontiff.

Dr. Lapponi replied:

"It is not indispensable, but it will certainly assist our efforts."

"Then," concluded the Pope, "I must do so."

PONTIFF'S FACE.

After this the Pontiff's face again assumed it's habitual bright, benevolent expression, and he smiled as he had done in his best moments.

This conversation with the doctor succeeded in so tranquillizing the Pope that he refused to see Mgr. Pifferi, his confessor.

Having expressed a desire to hear mass, the Pontiff's secretary, Mgr. Angeli, celebrated it in the chapel adjacent to the sick room, leaving the door open, so that the Pope could follow the service.

Shortly afterwards, Dr. Mazzoni visited the Pontiff and confirmed the relatively good condition of the patient as observed by Dr. Lapponi, with the exception of the working of the kidneys, which continue to cause apprehension, as they are not functioning well. The amelioration in his Holiness' breathing will continue until liquid regathers in the pleura. The Pope's pulse is better and the movements of the bowels are regular.

On leaving the sick room, Dr. Mazzoni was surrounded by the church dignitaries, who were waiting in the ante-chamber anxious for news.

NOBLE GUARD.

A picket of the Noble Guard, in their gorgeous uniforms, stood silently among the somberly prelates, giving a pleasing touch of color to the scene.

Cardinal Rampolla waited for Dr. Mazzoni in the throne room and when the physician appeared the Papal secretary of state requested him to make a detailed report of the Pope's condition. After complying, Dr. Mazzoni complained to the Cardinal of the gossip and criticisms concerning the doctors' diagnosis of the illness of the Pope and the treatment being administered. In reply, Cardinal Rampolla said he had complete and unbounded confidence in the physicians.

"This is why," the Cardinal added, "I never interfered in any way in the consultations."

REFERRED TO DOCTORS.

On leaving the Vatican, Dr. Mazzoni was stopped and asked for news by Cardinal Cavagnih, who, with a number of other Cardinals, called early at the Vatican for information, while other Cardinals sent their secretaries for the latest reports.

The wives of Count Canali and Count Moroni, nieces of the Pope, having expressed a desire to see the Pontiff, he said:

"I must refer them to my doctors. If they will allow me to do so, I shall be very happy to receive them."

While Dr. Mazzoni was in the sick room, the Pope took a cup of meat broth.

To understand the sudden and radical changes occurring, not so much in the Pope's condition as in the feeling of the public when rumors are circulated about the improved or retrograde state of the Pontiff's health, it is likened to an electrified condition of the atmosphere, which has been aroused throughout Rome and especially around the Vatican during the past week of trepidation and anxiety.

WANT LEO TO WIN.

A general desire to see Pope Leo win another battle and accomplish what would appear to be a miracle, against all former experiences and the laws of science, is uniting everybody, Catholics as well as others, in one supreme wish to see the Pope out of danger.

A representative of the Associated Press saw the Pope's doctors after this morning's visit and they assured him that the amelioration which had taken place in the condition of the Pope since the last operation was more noticeable than any which had occurred since the Pontiff became ill, but it was not sufficient to enable them to consider the patient out of imminent danger. The probability is that liquid will again gather in the pleura, rendering necessary, perhaps, several new operations.

The whole question is, will the patient make constant progress and thus during the intervals between such operations, gain strength enough to gradually absorb the liquid which forms in the pleura, or will his weakness augment, which would mean, ultimately, a catastrophe?

SECRET IS KEPT.

Later in the day the Pope received the Countess Canali and the Countess Moroni, his nieces, and after a short chat with them, asked about Mgr. Volpini, saying:

"What is the matter? Why does he not come to see me?"

It was explained to the Pontiff that the excitement of the last few days had overcome Mgr. Volpinin, who was quite unwell. But the Pope was not informed that Mgr. Volpini was dead.

A rumor circulated to the effect that the Pope is suffering from inflammation of the kidneys is denied by Dr. Mazzoni.

POLICE ARE NOT ABLE TO CLEAR UP THE MYSTERY.

Did Joseph Hausel the Rich Brewer Take His Life or Was He Murdered by an Enemy?

SAN FRANCISCO, July 11.—Never was mystery more perplexing than that which surrounds the death of Joseph Hausel, the brewer who arrived here from Vallejo on the steamer Monticello Wednesday, and who late yesterday afternoon was found lying on the cement pavement in front of 2523 Gough street with a small incised wound on the right side of his throat and a fracture of the skull that could could only have been caused by a fall from some great height or a crushing blow over the head.

Death must have been almost instantaneous.

If it was a case of suicide, the man must have made the wound in his throat first and then taken a plunge to the sidewalk from an open window in the house underneath which his body was found.

But Mr. Alexander, the occupant of the house, is certain that Hausel was never in the place, though he admits that he was absent during the day and left the window open.

If death was due to murder, there is no clue to the guilty party, nor anything to show when or how the crime was committed.

The detectives investigating the matter declare that it is one of the most mysterious cases in their experience.

DOCTORS REMAIN IN SICK ROOM.

ROME, July 11, 6:45 P. M.—The doctors have now spent some time in the sick room. It is expected that a bulletin will be issued soon.

HIS HOLINESS NOT SO BRIGHT.

ROME, July 11, 5:20 P. M.—The Pope is still awake but is not feeling quite so brought as he did this morning. The doctors are now arriving at the Vatican for an early visit.

In order to take into account the conveniences of all concerned including the Pope, unless new symptoms are discovered, the doctors are not likely to return to the Vatican tonight.

DR. MAZZONI MAKES A DENIAL.

ROME, July 11, 4:30 P. M.—Dr. Mazzoni emphatically denies that the Pope is suffering from inflammation of the kidneys.

ROMANS WANT ALL THE NEWS.

ROME, July 11.—The Romans are determined by all means to ascertain everything possible about the Pope. It is announced that the local spiritualists have been in council, have implored spirits to come to their aid and were replied to by the shade of Pope Pius IX, which declared Leo XIII has a tumor in the pleura of a papilloz nature, and that the cyst, for which the Pope was operated upon some years ago, is reforming.

BOB AND JEFF BITTEN BY A BEAR.

Painful Lacerations in a Round of Thirty Minutes.

Big Fellows Meet a Champion Out of Their Class.

Bob Fitzsimmons' love for natural history and dumb and wild animals led to his being bitten by a pet bear and to the infliction of similar punishment upon Champion Jim Jeffries at the training place at Harbin Springs yesterday evening.

Fitzsimmons' wound was on the leg, while Jeffries was chawed on the leg and arm, bruin's teeth making a gash on the wrist three inches long and more than an inch deep, and an equally painful wound on the leg. Both wounds had to be cauterized and sewed, and the champion is feeling pretty sore over it and is debating interiorly whether there is any wisdom in allowing one's self to become fond of a bear.

The information was communicated to THE TRIBUNE through E. N. Richardson, the well-known representative of Hotaling & Co. of San Francisco, who is sojourning at Harbin Sulphur Springs.

Speaking about the circumstance, Mr. Richardson said:

"There must be something good about Fitz. He always likes pets and is collecting a menagerie of wild animals. He is a regular snake charmer and has a captive snake, a squirrel and some mice. Yesterday he worked all day building a cool den for a captive bear belonging to Hays, the proprietor of the place. After the hut was built, Fitzsimmons tried to make the bear enter his sleeping quarters. But Mr. Bruin said 'no.' Then Jeffries came and both tried to 'persuade' the bear by force to take possession of the quarters presented to him, but both of them could not make the brute enter.

"Finally Jeffries' little fox-terrier, believing that his master was in trouble, started after the bear and got him by the nose. Of course, this caused the bear to lose his temper and get after the dog, and he accordingly commenced to chew up the tormenting and pugnacious canine.

"Jeff and Fitz then jumped in to save the dog. The bear by this time was thoroughly aroused and resisted for thirty minutes the attempt of the two great fighters to get the little dog out of its grasp.

"The dog was no sooner free from the clutches of the bear than he would renew the attack. In striving to take the persistent dog away Jeff and Bob were themselves caught by the bear and lacerated in the manner indicated. It was a mill of an unusual character and one in which the two champions had to acknowledge that they had more than met their equal. That same bear seems to wonder why Fitzsimmons went to the trouble of building a house which he didn't ask for.

LEADER OF THE JEWISH RAID IS DEAD.

TOOK HIS LIFE WHEN CZAR'S MAN CAME TO INVESTIGATE.

BERLIN, July 11.—The Frankfurter Zeitung says it learns by way of Bucharest, Roumania, that the ringleader of the Kishineff atrocities, a man named Pizerjewski, has committed suicide at Kishineff because the director of the Russian Ministry of Justice had arrived there, commissioned by the Czar to make a stringent investigation into the horrors.

A number of persons previously discharged from arrest at Kishineff have been rearrested and other persons morally responsible for the murders have been arrested.

YOUNG PEOPLE IN CONVENTION.

AKRON, O., July 11.—The annual convention of the Young Peoples' Christian Union today elected the following officers:

President, Louis A. Ames, New York, re-elected; secretary, Harry Adams Hersey, Boston; treasurer, George P. Sears, Chicago.

RUSSIA LISTENS TO THE PROTEST AGAINST MASSACRE.

Eight Hundred Arrests Have Been Made on Account of the Kishineff Affair.

WASHINGTON, July 11.—Information of an entirely reliable character concerning the Kishineff massacre has reached here. From advices received today it appears that the protests which are made in the United States and many other civilized countries against the murderous attacks upon the Jews in Kishineff last spring have not been without practical effect.

This information states that the Russian government has been moved to vigorous action in the matter of investigating and punishing those who were responsible for the Kishineff massacre.

Eight hundred arrests have been made and as a result of the preliminary examination, 350 persons have been remanded for trial in the lower courts.

Four hundred and fifty cases have been sent to the Court of Appeals, of which fifty-three are indictments for manslaughter.

A change of venue having been ordered, the trials of those accused of murdering and horribly maltreating the Jews at Kishineff will occur in September at Tiraspol.

The services of four distinguished lawyers have been secured to assist the prosecution in the murder cases and three well known lawyers will aid in the prosecution of synagogue property cases.

SMALL BOYS PLAY PART OF HIGHWAYMEN.

An organized gang of youths is striking terror to the hearts of the small boy about town. Under the leadership of Ernest Holloway, who has been in jail on numerous petty charges, the gang of ten are daily holding up and robbing small boys and committing petty thefts.

Yesterday afternoon, Ben Damerell, who lives with his parents at 953½ Clay street, was stopped by the youthful gang, two of their number pinning his hands behind him and the leader searching his pockets, removing a 10-cent piece and some trinkets.

The highway robbery was witnessed by Policeman Burt Brown, who succeeded in apprehending the leader, Ben Holloway, and another youth who gave the name of Fontino Domingo, and who is known to his companions as "The Dago." The rest of the gang made their escape by taking to their heels.

Detective William Quigley, who is investigating the affair, has made inquiries among the small boys in the neighborhood of Clay street and has ascertained that the gang of ten youths had taken up a criminal career. They have headquarters in a vacant house on Clay street, where raids are planned and booty is divided. They often take their victims to the house where acts of cruelty are performed because the victim failed to have anything of value on his person when held up by the young highwaymen.

Today the police arrested two more members of the gang, but for reasons known to themselves, decline to make the name of the young prisoners public.

Owen Damerall and Dave Delsaver, two other youths who were held up and robbed by the gang yesterday. The later was badly beaten because he refused to comply with the demands to throw up his hands. No charges have been placed against the prisoners as yet, but they will probably be turned over to the probation officer.

JUBILEE SERVICES AT ST. MARY'S CHURCH TOMORROW

The above is a picture of the First Church of the Immaculate Conception in this city as it appeared shortly after Rev. Michael King became its pastor. Originally, the structure was cruciform. It was in that shape when Father King assumed charge. Subsequently, the wings forming the arms of the cross were extended flush with the front of the building giving the church a frontage of 60 and a depth of 62 feet. Each wing was given a gable roof like that over the main part of the structure. The building was built of rough boards running perpendicularly, and outside these there was sheeting wide clapboards.

The church stood a little back from the walk on the north side of Seventh street, between Jefferson and Grove streets, near where the parochial residence now stands. It remained there until the present church on Jefferson street was erected when it was dismantled.

Tomorrow the people of the parish of the Immaculate Conception will celebrate the fiftieth anniversary of the ordination to the priesthood of Rev. Michael King, the rector of the parish. Sunday morning, at 10:30 o'clock there will be a pontifical high mass, the celebrant of which will be Archbishop Montgomery. The sermon will be delivered by Rev. Father Prendergast, V. G., of St. Mary's Cathedral, San Francisco. There will be a number of clergymen in the sanctuary. In the evening, at 7:30 o'clock, the rosary will be said and benediction will be given in the church.

After these services, the parishioners will adjourn to the school hall adjoining which will be decorated for the occasion. An original ode, composed by Miss Mary Lambert, will be read by the author. There will be several entertaining pieces of music after which ex-Postmaster J. J. White will deliver a congratulatory address and present the venerable clergyman with a purse containing a liberal sum, which, it is believed, will not fall far short of $8000.

Father King, of course, will have something to say to the people on the occasion.

ALTHOUGH HE WILL HANG HE LOVES HER STILL.

Murderer Walkirez Says He is Still Under the Grand Passion— Writes to His Mother

Tho' he hang for it, he loves her still.

Murderer Walkirez maintains that he is still under the spell of the "grand passion."

With the gallows staring him in the face he writes to his mother that the white woman, who was his consort, still holds his affections, and while blaming her with the responsibility of his terrible crime, he wants her photograph with him in his cell.

The murderer of aged Mrs. Elizabeth Le Roy has spent the last two days in writing a highly colored account to his mother in New York of the history of his life leading up to the crime with which he is charged.

He says that he is sorry that he has brought disgrace to the colored race and on the little town in which he was born.

He lays the blame to over-indulgence in the white man's whiskey and the love of a bad woman.

Whatever defense his lawyers make for him, Walkirez makes no plea of insanity to his mother. He does state that he had been drinking heavily and remembers nothing of the occurrences of that fateful night. He says that he is willing to expiate his crime with the ignominious death which is awarded the murderer in this State, but he does not want the suspense of the long wait. His thoughts are of anything but of the pleasantest, and he says that the wants to die.

In his spare moments he thinks of his companion, Anna Ross.

He says that she urged him to take the old woman's money by the use of "knockout drops." They needed money and they went to any extreme to get it. The striking down of a slumbering woman, the binding of her throat with a cord and the strangling of the decrepit form, he mentions nothing of it. As to this his memory, he says, is a blank. And in this his story is consistent with what his lawyers will plead to the jury. That he was not himself when he committed the deed.

He asks his mother to send him one of the pictures of Anna Ross that he sent her under the guise that she was his affianced wife. He wants it with him. He will die, he says, with that photograph pressed to his lips. He excuses the life he had been living with the woman on the grounds that they could not be married for the laws would not permit it.

SIMPLE DOTTED SWISS.

RAIDS ARE MADE ON CHICAGO TRACK.

FIFTEEN WARRANTS ARE SWORN OUT CHARGING GAMBLING.

CHICAGO, July 11.—Fifteen warrants for the arrest of persons connected with the Washington Park Racing Club were sworn out today by Herman Coakley before Justice Brodwell and preparations were made for another raid on the race track this afternoon.

The warrants charged the offenders with keeping a common gambling house.

Warrants were also sworn out for the arrest of three Pinkerton detectives, who are alleged to have interfered with constables while in the discharge of their duties yesterday.

Before Attorney Cantwell and his retinue of constables arrived at the race track, Constable Roebuck was arrested at the entrance on orders from Inspector Hunt of the police department. Roebuck had attempted to enter the track and was repulsed. He became unruly, according to the police and thereupon ensued a lively struggle.

DIDN'T GET THROUGH.

They are laughing in Washington over a rebuke that a sentry of one of the departments administered recently to the Russian ambassador's coachman.

The coachman, it appears, wished to drive his master's carriage along a roadway that for some reason was barred. When the sentry refused to let the carriage pass, the coachman remonstrated.

"I drive," he said "ze Russian minister."

"I can't help it," returned the sentry.

"Let me t'rough," persisted the coachman.

"My master is ze Count Cassini, ze ambassador extraordinary and minister plenipotentiary and minister plenipotentiary of ze Czar of all ze Russias."

"Frenchy," said the sentry, "I wouldn't let you through even if your master was a free born American citizen."—Boston Post.

STATE OF MARKET UNCERTAIN.

DULL AND RESISTING TENDENCY GIVES WAY TO ACUTE WEAKNESS.

NEW YORK, July 11.—The dull and resisting tendency of the market early in the week gave way to acute weakness later, led by New York Central. The heavy liquidation of that stock was based on the assumption that new capital will be issued to provide for the terminal betterments projected and the precedent of the recent prolonged decline in Pennsylvania made speculative sentiment very sensitive in it. Evidence of liquidation in United State Steel and reports of yielding prices for iron and steel and their products helped to unsettle the market. Growing conservation towards securities was the dominant tone in the money markets. Crop uncertainties played an important part during the week.

AMANDUS ROEBKE LAID TO REST.

ALAMEDA, July 11.—The funeral of Amandus Roebke was attended yesterday by a large circle of the friends and admirers of deceased in his lifetime, the exercises, which consisted of an address by Arthur Beaker and vocal selections, being held at his late residence, 1100 Cottage avenue. The pall bearers were C. J. Clark, Louis W. Schroeder, Arthur Becker, H. Kaehler, J. F. Wellenstein and Mr. Fraser. The body was taken to Oakland for cremation.

J. C. WINANS IS SUDDENLY CALLED.

SECRETARY OF THE REALTY SYNDICATE SUDDENLY PASSES AWAY.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 11.—J. C. Winans, who has been secretary of the Realty Syndicate ever since it was organized, dropped dead at his home in San Francisco last evening.

Mr. Winans was 75 years of age.

His death is supposed to be due to heart disease.

During the afternoon he attended a meeting of the corporation in Oakland and afterwards crossed the bay and went to the home of his daughter, with whom he has been residing.

Mr. Winans was found dead by his daughter when she arrived at the house.

His appearance intimated that death was instantaneous.

He was well known in real estate and business circles.

WAS KNOWN IN SAN JOSE.

SAN JOSE, July 11.—Joseph Hausel, who was found dead in San Francisco, and Emil Muri, with whom he had quarrels, worked in the malt house of the Eagle Brewery here three years ago.

One day they had a fist fight in which Hausel came out second best.

As he was the aggressor, the manager discharged him.

Muri was well liked, while Hausel, on account of his habits, was unpopular.

RAILWAY BILL IS PASSED

"TERMINAL LOOP BILL" GOES THROUGH HOUSE OF DELEGATES.

ST. LOUIS, July 11.—Council bill No. 13, better known as the "Terminal loop bill," has passed the House of Delegates as amended by the railway committee.

The amendments demand that in return for the franchise granting certain extensions asked for by the terminal association, the Terminal Association shall abolish the bridge arbitrary, or, in case of its failure to do so, pay to the city of St. Louis $100,000 for the first year the arbitrary is not abolished and $200,000 every year thereafter that it is not abolished.

An amendment is also offered that all shipments shall be billed direct to St. Louis.

As an amendment to Section 12 of the Council bill it is offered that the terminal association shall not in any way increase its rate until after the abolition of the arbitrary.

Only after sharp debate were the amendments and the bill as amended passed.

The measure, as amended, now goes to the Council for action.

WASHINGTON CROP WILL BE LARGE.

TACOMA, Wash., July 11.—Estimates made by three of the principal exporters of Tacoma place the wheat crop of the State of Washington this year at 20,000,000 bushels and one of them thinks it may go to 22,000,000 bushels, or about the same as last year. They base their estimates on the increase of acreage, coupled with reports from various sections of the wheat belt.

DEATHS DUE TO EXCESSIVE HEAT.

NEW YORK, July 11.—Up to noon today eleven deaths, all attributed to heat, had occurred in Brooklyn and three deaths and five prostrations in this city.

PHILADELPHIA, July 11.—Two deaths and three prostrations from heat were reported this forenoon.

SMALL BOY PLAYS WITH MATCHES.

The five-year-old son of Mrs. Overdin, while playing with matches this afternoon, caused a fire at the family residence, 810 Center street. The house was damaged about $10.

The building next door at 814 Center street was damaged about $5. The boy was alone at the time, but was not burned. The Fire Department was called out and quickly extinguished the flames.

The first meeting will be held Saturday evening and every Wednesday and Saturday evening in the future.

RESTAURANT MEN IN TROUBLE

COOKS AND WAITERS IN SAN JOSE GO OUT ON A STRIKE.

SAN JOSE, July 11.—A restaurant strike is on today.

The help of the Saddle Rock went out last night and this forenoon all the cooks and waiters of the Universal walked out.

The strike may become universal before evening.

The cause is the refusal of the employers to sign the union scale providing for $21 per week for head cooks down to $7 for waiters and for extra service and overtime.

POLISH BOY SHIPPED AS BAGGAGE.

Little Ignatius Zienazus, 12 years old, was shipped as a piece of baggage all the way from Poland to Reading, Pa., and he arrived without breakage or damage of any kind on the Westernland.

Ignatius was tagged in the regulation fashion, with his name, age and place of destination on the card pinned to the lapel of his coat. Fortunately for him, however, he was not consigned to the hold of the ship with the other baggage, but stayed above decks, where he received the best of care from the ship's officers.

Upon reaching Philadelphia the boy was promptly put aboard a train for Reading, where his parents live, but he remained baggage all the way to the end, for even at Reading a United States Express company wagon was waiting to take him home.

There a large reception was accorded him. Friends of the family had gathered, and throughout that evening a lively celebration was held in honor of the lad's safe journey.—Philadelphia North American.

THE ONLY SURVIVORS.

The tourist came to the group of little cabins in Kentucky. There was no sign of life, excepting two roosters fighting desperately in the sandy path.

"Where is everybody?" asked the tourist.

"Dead!" drawled the man on horseback.

"Well, how about the roosters?"

"Wal, one belonged to one family an' one to another, so through Kentucky honor they had to carry on the feud."—Chicago News.

A FARM IDYLL.

My grandpa bought a little farm,
Some chickens and a calf;
And farmed, and farmed, and farmed, and farmed,
But only raised a laugh.
My uncle's baby ran away
(It scared the uncle to death);
He chased him up and down the land,
But only caught his breath.
"Oh, stop my little boy for me,"
He cried, nigh choked with tears,
The neighbors laughed and then some more,
But only stopped their ears.

DANA HARMON IS DEAD.

WELL KNOWN MINING ENGINEER SUCCUMBS TO PNEUMONIA.

Death came suddenly this morning to Dana Harmon, the well-known expert mining engineer whose career has extended over many years in all the leading mining camps in this State and other States on the Pacific Coast.

It was occasioned by angina pectoris and came almost in the twinkling of an eye, after a premonitary attack which was experienced last night, and the rigor of which softened by remedial agencies used by his brother, Dr. Robert Harmon who was sharing with him the newly-taken-up home of the deceased and family, 1268 Webster street.

The suddenness of the bereavement is all the more painful because it occurred in a home which had not yet been fully taken possession of because the wife and the children of the deceased were at the time enjoying their vacation near Laurel station in Santa Clara County, from which latter place only a few days ago, the decease i returned to this city in the enjoyment seemingly, of vigorous health which it was thought would extend his span of life beyond the traditional three-score-and-ten.

This evening, the grief-stricken widow will arrive only to find the husband and father insensible to their emotions.

Mr. Harmon was in his fifty-fifth year. He was a native of Louisiana, having been born in New Orleans.

He came to this State in 1854 and has resided here ever since. He was educated and raised here and here it was that he attained to eminence in his profession.

The greater part of his time was passed in the mountains where the earth was yielding up her treasures and where he was surrounded by his family.

About two years ago, he established his home at 66 East Moss avenue, where, also, his brother Dr. Robert Harmon abided.

A few weeks since, the family moved to 1268 Webster street, where he household goods were simply deposited, awaiting the close of the summer vacation to be placed in their accustomed positions in the new home which was to be established.

In the meantime, the deceased and his brother, the doctor occupied the premises at night.

Last night, after retiring, Dana Harmon awoke his brother complaining of a pain in the left side of the breast. The doctor administered some relief, the pain ceased and the patient slept.

This morning Mr. Harmon awoke early, with another visitation of the same pain. He leaned on his elbow in bed and called his brother. The physician responded. The sick man said it was all over with him, dropped back and was dead.

The deceased was the father of three daughters, Virginia, Ruth and Olive, the oldest of whom is 18 years. He had one son, Clerc. He was a brother of Mrs. L. J. Leconte, the civil engineer of Berkeley. He was a Mason and Knight Templar. No arrangements have as yet been made for the funeral.

HER STORY IS NOT BELIEVED

SAN FRANCISCO, July 10.—The police are not inclined to fully credit the story told by Mrs. Thomas Hughes of 314 Gough street to the effect that she was assaulted and nearly killed by three men who expected to obtain $500 she had received from the United Railroads as compensation for damages received in a street car accident.

Her clothing was cut open, and the house ransacked, but the men, she says only secured $15 as she had previously deposited the $500 in a bank.

The detectives think that only one man was involved in the assault.

They have discovered that the woman's husband, a bricklayer, quit work and went home on the same afternoon. He says he suspected that all was not right.

She states that he arrived after the attempted robbery.

ON TRAIL OF DOCTOR WOODS.

NEW YORK, July 10.—An investigation revealed the fact that Woods and his wife recently visited the former home of Mrs. Woods in Phillipsburg, N. J. Two weeks ago they were in Phillipsburg and left there to go to Atlantic City. It is believed that they are now hiding in this city.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 10.—The alleged murder of Colonel W. J. Best by Dr. John D. Woods and his reputed sister continues to excite much interest here. Absolutely nothing new has been brought to light, although the officers of this county are working diligently. Every clew is being run down and the premises where Woods lived have been thoroughly ransacked, but nothing further has been discovered.

District Attorney Boyd has received word from the East that the autopsy report has been mailed to him, also that the Eastern police are trying to locate Woods and his alleged sister. As soon as Woods is apprehended, officers will start East to bring him and his sister here to answer to the grand larceny charges lodged against them. These are the only charges which they will have to meet. The charges of murder cannot as yet be placed against them. District Attorney Boyd said this morning:

"I am satisfied that Woods made away with Best, but as yet there are many links missing in the chain that we would have to forge in order to secure a conviction before a jury."

The embalming process to which Best's body was subjected preparatory to shipping it East has excited almost as much interest here as the alleged murder. Embalming is a thing that the average individual knows but little about. When Best's body was opened in the East it was found that it had been stuffed with some patent embalming compound. The intestines and the organs had been removed and destroyed here.

Coroner Sawyer said this morning that while this is not unusual in the average cases it was done in cases similar to Best's. Deputy Coroner Ward did the embalming and maintains that there was nothing unusual in the process employed under the circumstances. The embalming in each case requires a different treatment.

Heald's Business College Graduates

FOR THE TERM ENDING JUNE 30, 1903.

INCREASED DEMAND FOR YOUNG MEN AND WOMEN WHO HAVE BEEN TRAINED AT THE COLLEGE.

The following students completed the courses indicated at HEALD'S BUSINESS COLLEGE for the term ending June 30, 1903. The constantly increasing volume of business that has marked the commercial history of the year has been reflected in the demand for graduates, which has been the heaviest in the history of the school, and entirely beyond its capacity to supply. All the recent graduates will be absorbed by the commercial world within the next few weeks. Nothing better shows the reputation attained by the college than the enrollment from so many distant places, and the constant demand for those who have been trained in its classrooms.

The enquiry for young men and women with a knowledge of stenography and bookkeeping has exceeded the number available by from twenty-five to thirty-five each month.

Those whose names are marked thus ★ are already in employment. With few exceptions, these positions were secured on the recommendation of the school.

AMERICANS MEET ENGLISHMEN IN CONTEST.

SHARPSHOOTERS WILL MEET AT THE BUTTS IN ENGLAND.

BISLEY, England, July 11.—The annual contest of the National Rifle Association opened here today with the international team match, for the Palma trophy. The weather conditions were favorable, though the heat was terrific.

The shooting at 500 yards resulted as follows:

United Kingdom, 554; America, 551; Canada, 536; Natal, 513; Norway, 447; France, 441; Australia, 519.

The above scores were out of a possible 600.

Private George C. Cook, 74; Sergeant J. H. Keough, 73; Corporal C. E. Winder, 71; Corporal W. B. Short, 69; Lieutenant K. V. Casey, 67; Sergeant George Doyle, 66; Lieutenant Thomas Holcomb, 66; Lieutenant A. E. Wells, 65.

Private Cook, with 74, tied Martin of the British team for the best score at this range.

When the shooting in the second stage commenced the Americans soon overhauled and passed their British competitors. In the first twenty shots the United Kingdom dropped eighteen points, against eight dropped by the Americans.

As the shooting progressed the keen interest in the contest was shown by the number of spectators continually arriving.

The clearness of the atmosphere made the shooting conditions ideal. There was a variable breeze, which was blowing at the average velocity of six miles an hour.

The scores of half the teams at 900 yards were:

American, 266; United Kingdom, 257.

By the time half the teams shot off at 900 yards the American had gained nine points, thus giving them a lead of six points after deducting the three they were behind in the first stage.

To the total, 266, Keough contributed 69, Casey 68, Doyle 66 and Winder 63.

The Canadian first squad was second with 262, the British team was third with 257.

In the second half of the 900 range the Americans gained another two points, making the aggregates at the end of the second stage as follows:

America, 1066; United Kingdom, 1058; Canada, 1040; Australia, 1001; Natal, 960; Norway, 855; France, 845.

The scores of the Old American at 800 yards were: Short, 66; Cook, 63; Holcomb, 61; Wells, 59.

The totals for the second stage were: America 515, Great Britain 504, Canada 484, Australia 452, Natal 447, Norway 408, France 404.

Interest in the later firing centered chiefly in the Americans and the British. The Canadians had been regarded as dark horses, but their shooting did not justify any hope of their success.

The shooting of the American team was notably quicker than that of the others, and the Americans strictly followed the instructions of their commanding officer to refrain from the unnecessary conversation in which some of the other teams indulged. The fact that the Americans had gained a substantial lead in the end of the first two ranges elated them and made them confident of their ability to maintain the advantage in the last stage and recover the trophy. Ambassador Choate and Naval Attache Stockton were among the spectators.

THE OLD AGGREGATES.

BISLEY, Eng., July 11.—The old aggregates were: Australia 1501, Natal 1,359, Norway 1241, France 1230.

AMERICANS LEAD.

The American total was 1570. Great Britain was second with 1555. Canada was third with 1518.

AMERICANS WIN TROPHY.

BISLEY, England, July 11.—America won the Palma Trophy.

EAGLES ROLL IN GOOD FORM.

THE LOCAL TEAM DEFEATS SAN FRANCISCO AT TEN-PINS.

A splendid match of ten pins was rolled at the Oakland alleys on Thirteenth street on Thursday evening between the Eagles of this city and the Pacific of the San Francisco Bowling Alleys. The contest was close throughout and won by the local team by fifty-four pins.

One of the features of the match was a 7-10 split spare, which was made by Campbell of the Eagles. Bernhisel rolled a good game throughout, averaging 174 for the three games.

Following is the total individual scores:

Pacifics — Loughery 495, Kasser 453, Green 471, Ober 511, Shatzer 508, total, 2421.

The various streams within reasonable reaching distance are at present the mecca for sportsmen who delight in angling and they are leaving in big bunches almost every day for a sport vacation, to be spent in quest of the finny tribe. Sport has been unusually good along the Truckee river this year and countless fishermen are to be seen daily along its banks.

Salmon fishing at Capitola took a fresh start yesterday with the result that very good records were made. Every boat that went out returned full of fish to the danger point of overturning. And there were many craft that went out. There were three launches and any number of row-boats, to say nothing of the fishing craft. For the past few days preceding yesterday the sport had been very slow, the boats returning, in fact, empty handed.

QUITS THE GAME.

MOSE LA FONTISE IS THROUGH—SAYS WALCOTT IS A WONDER.

Mose La Fontise, the French boxer who was knocked out by Joe Walcott in three rounds, has decided to retire from the ring. He says he has had enough and is looking for a job. He has a high regard for Walcott's capabilities and expressed himself as follows:

"If a man like me can't stay longer than three rounds with Walcott he ought to quit.

"I'm looking for a job. 'Most anything will do, and something that requires good muscle will be all the more to my liking. I don't think I shall ever box again.

"It was the biggest surprise to me that I ever had when he gave me that punch in the solar plexus. If you would give me $1000 I couldn't tell you which hand he struck me with. I guess he was surprised, too. Anyway, it was the hardest wallop that was ever handed to me, and you can sew buttons on that idea.

"I think Walcott can beat them all, anywhere near his weight. When you hear of Walcott being beaten by some one, you can bet that there is something doing.

"I made several bets that I could stay 10 rounds, and one that I could stay 18. The day of the fight a man offered me good odds that Walcott would beat me and I took him. The only way that I would bet now would be on the chance that Walcott might fall dead.

"If there is a man in his class who can beat Walcott, it is Young Peter Jackson. Walcott is afraid of him and told me so."

AMERICAN JOCKEY IS BETTER.

LONDON, July 11.—"Danny" Maher, the American jockey, who was injured in an automobile accident near Caterham yesterday, and was taken in an unconscious condition to the Caterham Cottage Hospital, is reported to be better this morning. His chauffeur, who was also injured at the same time, is in a precarious condition.

PACIFIC TO MEET ALAMEDA

GOOD CRICKET GAME PROMISED FOR TOMORROW IN ENCINAL CITY.

The third meeting this season between the Alameda and Pacific cricket elevens is scheduled for tomorrow at the Webster street grounds in Alameda and an exciting contest is looked for. Both teams are strong ones.

The Alameda team will be selected from the following: F. J. Croll, G. Harold Ward, W. J. Richter, J. H. Saunders, F. A. Stahl, B. Bird, R. Hamilton, C. Banner, F. S. Price, A. E. Acklom, H. W. Brown, J. U. Bird and J. French.

The representatives of the Pacific Club will be chosen from the following: H. C. Cassidy, A. W. Wilding, W. Petherick, F. A. Bennion, J. J. Theobald, Dr. O. N. Taylor, C. C. Y. Williamson, E. H. M. Lannawe, W. G. Fortmann, E. T. Langdale and H. G. Macartney or W. Jamieson.

HANLON WILL REST.

IF HE DOES NOT FIGHT YANGER AGAIN HE WILL SEEK YOUNG CORBETT.

Eddie Hanlon and his manager, Mike Short, are leaving San Francisco for a month's outing in the country and the little featherweight will take a much needed rest. Mike Short stated before they left that they tried hard to get Yanger to sign up before he left for the East but were unsuccessful in obtaining anything beyond a promise to return in September for the purpose of making a match.

Short says that if Yanger does not come to terms by September he will go after Young Corbett for a fight for the championship but he hopes to have a meeting with Yanger first so that Eddie may demonstrate more clearly his right to demand a match from the champion.

NOTES FROM THE DIAMOND.

OAKLAND COMES OUT SECOND BEST IN A CLOSE CONTEST.

Following is the standing of the clubs in the Pacific Coast League:

Clubs—	W.	L.	P.Ct.
Los Angeles	57	31	.648
Sacramento	53	37	.590
San Francisco	51	40	.574
Oakland	41	57	.418
Seattle	33	52	.388
Portland	30	51	.370

Although they outbatted the Seattle bunch, Oakland dropped another game to Parke Wilson's aggregation yesterday by the score of 5 to 3. In the eighth inning with two out and the bases filled, Wilson bated for Hanlon and knocked a screeching two-bagger past first base, which cleared the bases and won the game. Carrick and Graham were the opposing pitchers and were effective.

San Francisco and Sacramento played an exciting game in San Francisco yesterday afternoon. There was a sum total of one run and six hits. Harris' hired men got the one run and two of the hits while the Senators had to be content with a string of goose eggs in the run column and four hits. The long score was made in the last half of the ninth with one hit and an excusable error on the part of First Baseman Townsend.

The Portland Browns have taken a brace in their playing and they made it two out of three yesterday with the leaders. Los Angeles was blanked to the tune of 5 to 0. Corbett was on the delivery end for the Morleyites and was batted quite freely in the fifth and eighth innings.

Cutter pitched a remarkable game for the Senators yesterday. Thirty-two batters faced him and he allowed them but two hits, struck out four and forgot to issue any free passes to the first station. In spite of his strenuous work he lost the game because he did not receive the support that was accorded to Hodson.

San Francisco is now within sixteen points of second place and if they win the game this afternoon they will pass the Senators. Los Angeles has a safe lead over the two while a wide gulch separates San Francisco and the leaders of the second division.

"Doc" Moskiman still leads the league in batting but he is only one point better than Dillon and the latter is the real leader in the batting averages with an average of .354. Joe Corbett has been batting like a fiend of late and is close behind Dillon as is Sample of Portland. These two are pitchers and cannot be reckoned with the balance of the players as they participate in so few games. Eliminating the pitchers, Dillon leads with Van Buren second, Nadeau third, and Eagan fourth. Following is the average of those who are batting over .250:

Moskiman .365, Dillon .354, Corbett .344, Sample .344, Van Buren .337, Nadeau .335, Eagan .326 Brashear .321, Irwin .319, Townsend .319, Schwartz .310, C. Smith .309, Oscar Graham .305, Ross .302, Murdock .301, McLaughlin .296, O'Hara .296, Jud Smith 293, Meany .291, Thomas .282, Jensing .279, Zinssar .279, Pabst .278, Lohman .274, Andrews .271, Shehan .270, Spies .266, Krug .258, Herr .257, Doyle .252.

The California players who migrated to the National League this year are giving a good account of themselves. "Judge" McCredie is nineteenth in the batting list with an average of .304 and Oscar Jones is sticking at .250. Both Jones and Schmidt have won a majority of the games they have pitched and are highly thought of by their manager.

ROOT WANTS TO TRY AGAIN.

HE WILL TAKE LONG REST AND CHALLENGE GARDNER AGAIN.

After being beaten twice quite decisively by George Gardner, Root is still unconvinced that the former is the better man and is anxious for another meeting. He intends to take a long rest in which to recuperate from the effects of their last encounter, and then will ask his conqueror for another meeting. After his defeat at Fort Erie, Root had the following to say:

"I guess the best man won; he certainly was the best man yesterday. I hit him often enough to whip the ordinary man, but though my blows did not lack steam, they were not effective enough to hurt Gardner. He would bore in on them and past them and then would wallop away at body and head. I am making no claims of foul fighting. Let the pictures show who did the clean breaking required under the Canadian rules and who did the punching when locked. The pictures cannnot lie. I was not once cautioned and did not once hit except when I was unlocked. Gardner is a great man and all that, and I have no kick coming. I would like another chance at him, however, and think that he will accord it to me. I am now going to take a rest. I will do no more boxing for several months, but will loaf around and try to gather some weight and flesh to work on when I again will go out for the best man in my class. In all of my long and busy ring career but one man got the best of me. That man is George Gardner. That is nothing to be ashamed of. He himself has been beaten by four men, and I am one of these. I need a rest and I am going to take it."

Root's manager, Lou Houseman, stated:

"I am going to make Jack take a rest. He boxed a poor battle yesterday. I never saw him so slow on his feet before in my life. He did not appear to be able to untrack himself. Then, too, he fought carelessly. He went in and swapped wallops with Gardner at close range while I was coaxing him to keep away and put up a pegging, left-handed battle. I could not get him to keep away as Gardner did. He did not take advantage of the roughting strength he is possessed of, but will allow his opponent to make as rought a house of it as he cares to. Gardner did not live up to the clean-break rules, and the moving pictures will bear me out in this as soon as they are thrown on a canvas."

JONES PLEADS NOT GUILTY.

William Jones, who is accused by his wife, Mrs. Rosie Jones, with having chased her through the streets of North Oakland while she was attired only in a night gown, appeared in the Police Court this morning to answer to a charge of battery preferred by his wife. He was represented by Attorney Donovan and entered a plea of not guilty. He demanded a trial by jury, which was set for August 21.

TWO JAPANESE VASES STOLEN.

J. J. Parker of 1388 Telegraph avenue has reported to the police that last night some one stole two Japanese vases, which he had left on his front porch.

EXCLUSIVE FUNCTIONS.

If rumor is correct, the Maple Club, which is to replace the Friday Night Cotillion Club this fall, will far exceed the latter club in the exclusiveness of its functions. Among those who will have the affair in charge throughout the coming season are Mrs. Charles Houghton, Mrs. M. W. Kales and Mrs. Edward Hall.

CLUBS ALL HAVE OPEN DATE.

THE BAY WILL BE DOTTED WITH WHITE WINGED YACHTS TOMORROW.

For the first time this season all of the yachting clubs about the bay will be dotted with white wings all day tomorrow. After cruising about the bay the different clubs will fall in line for a run to Paradise Cove and El Campo.

Quite a number of the yachts of the California Club have been up the river for the past week and are expected to return tomorrow. The fleet is headed by Vice Commodore Charles P. Doe in his flagship Challenge and during the trip up the river stops were made at various points of interest, among which are: Collinsville, Rio Vista, Isleton, Walnut Grove, Courtland, Freeport and Sacramento.

On the way back the fleet will enter the three-mile cut-off below Rio Vista and cruise down the San Joaquin River stopping over at Antioch. From there they will proceed down the New York Slough to Martinez and from the latter place to the club house in this city.

The yachts participating in the cruise are: The Challenge, Vice-Commodore C. P. Doe; Gypsie, Captain C. E. Clark; sloops, Espey, Captain R. C. Davis; Catherine, Captain J. E. Back; Thelma, Captain C. S. Marshall, and Rover, Captain R. Hicks.

The large fleet of the California Yacht Club has been augmented by the addition of Captain R. Hicks' sloop Rover and Captain McBison's sloop Ethe.

A protest filed by the owner of the sloop Espey against the win of the yawl Gypsie in the re-sailed race for the class flag. It was not allowed however and the prize has been awarded to the Gypsie by the Regatta Committee.

MINISTERS TELL OF THEIR SUBJECTS FOR SUNDAY SERMONS.

The coldness of churches is given by Senator Depew as one of the great dangers a young man must face when he comes to the city. By way of dissenting comment upon this charge the Universalist Leader says: "It is an easy judgment easily made. Senator Depew is but quoting from a current saying that had its origin outside of churches and finds little or no justification within. We say without fear of successful contradiction that there is little or no foundation for the sentiment. We have been about to a good many churches and heard directly from a good many more and know that there is no place on this fair earth where young men are more wanted or have a warmer welcome than in the Christian church of today. It is the cheapest kind of talk to tell of coldness and reserve in the average church. Competition for these same young men was never keener than it is now. And there is not the distinction drawn between the rich and the poor young men. There are churches in which people do not fall upon the neck of the young man and kill the calf! But we assert that all this twaddle about coldness and exclusiveness and reserve which is keeping the young men out of the churches and sending them to the saloon for sociability has no place in the realm of fact, but is the love child of an excuse-seeking imagination."

The Holland Protestants and Roman Catholics have combined to fight secularism and socialism; and under the lear of Dr. Abram Kuyper are in power. Possibly the Union of the two Christian bodies in the face of a common foe may be significant, remarks the Congregationalist, of an alliance that will have to come in other countries including the United States. There are doctrines concerning God, sin, human destiny which Protestants and Roman Catholics alike hold, which are believed by them all to be fundamental to society's welfare. There is a "spiritualized socialism," as Rev. R. J. Campbell has just pointed out, and there is a carnal socialism. The latter prevails among the masses of men, in Europe at least.

Says the Monitor: "In the selection of the Rev. C. A. Ramm to be a member fo the State Board of Charities, Governor Pardee deserves every commen[illegible]n. Father Ramm is the last man in the world, who would desire or seek a public office of any kind under the Government, but representing the highest type of American citizenship, he never, from any motive, shirks a service imposed in the interest of the general good. His presence on the Board will be of invaluable usefulness by reason of his character, experience and exceptional qualifications for the work cut out for that body."

Trinity College, Washington, D. C., an institution for the higher education of women, conducted by the Sisters of Notre Dame, is the recipient of a munificent gift at the hands of Judge and Mrs. M. P. O'Connor of San Jose. This consists of the large and valuable art collection which the donors acquired by many years of discriminating research in the artistic centers of the world. From a monetary point of view, the gift represents a fortune. In respect to its worth, artistically, it is well-nigh priceless, including many gems that money cannot replace.

We have lately received a memorial of a departed minister whom we numbered among our choicest friends. It contains the sermon preached at his funeral. We quote a single paragraph. May there not be some young minister who reads these lines to whom this testimony will prove an inspiration? "He had the divine art of making small pastorates— sometimes unpromising ones—great ones. He set the leaven of his own life to working in the larger vessel of the church and community and it leavened the whole lump with a quiet but pervasive potency."—The Pacific.

To take up collections for every scheme of benevolence which presents itself is impossible, and there is the most urgent need that churches should not fritter away their benevolent impulses and funds on a great variety of objects, some of which may be worthy and some unworthy. For lack of a wise carefulness in such matters churches too often "sacrifice the best on the altar of the good," and fail to render the highest service to God and man by their benevolent offerings.—Boston Watchman.

The difference of a letter: The hardest hit at the ritualists is credited to an English lady who was interrupted in a bitter attack on their practices by the remark of a listner, that he must be much worse in her opinion as he was "papist." Prompt was her answer: "Papists are all right in their way, but the Lord deliver us from Apists."—Rochester Post-Express.

The representative of Unitarianism in Cuba, writing in the Christian Register, says that President Palma is a Presbyterian. It was known that he was not a stanch Roman Catholic and that in his present place he had to play on opportunist's part, but Mr. Noa adds an interesting detail, pregnant with importance should President Palma remain at the helm for some time.

The hem and top of deep and tucked flounce were corded with wash silk to match. The little yoke is of mousseline de soie. A large black hat with white plumes and black parasol lined with chiffon, completed the toilette.

NEED FOR MORE REPOSE.

The early chapters of former President Timothy Dwight's charming book of memories, which has just been issued from the press, gives one a restful impresion of student life at Yale when he was a candidate for a degree. It is a simple narrative of fact, embellished with characteristic humor. It nevertheless takes strong hold on one as a picture of life at a time when the new requirements of culture made life earnest, to be sure, but not feverish. We are, of course, compelled to agree with that distinguished gentleman that none of us would return to that period, with its simplicity and severe exactions, if we could, and yet, paradoxical as it may appear, we fail to find that the more modern conditions produce a similar race of scholars and intellectual leaders. There is not lacking evidence that the universal spirit of restlessness, which has absorbed the world at large, has "touched" the teaching class and encouraged theories of pedagogy hard to reconcile with the highest ideals. One cannot study quietly and calmly hi admirably executed pen portraits of Rector Olmstead of the Hopkins grammar school and Prof. Thacher of Yale college without comparing the scholarly results of the modern life with those of his boyhood, to the decided advantage of the latter.

The educational system o that day, and the men who made it, s ought to train boys for the responsib lities and requirements before the eye, and those to come, so far as they could be seen. We should hate to believe that the educational system of the present generation, and those who make it, were not together preparing boys to recover a life of greatest mod ration. They should be so prepared.

With, however, such men as Dr. Van Dyke preaching the doctrine of moderation, there is the assu ance that we shall sooner or later pas from the existing condition of feveri h excitement, of which it may be truly said that such knowledge is flying thro gh the air, of every kind and and variety, that but little of it is caught an less of it assimilated. The man wh goes through life on the jump, eageri seeking this reward or clutching for that, lives up to the years allotted hi , but he adds little or nothing, after all, to the sum and total of human happiness, and leaves the general situat on a bit more mixed than he found it. The man who counts in thi world, on t e other hand, is the one who does al things with moderation, and therefo e most things well. More power to t ose, say we, who preach this phi osophy.—New Haven Register.

WANTED MORE MONEY.

Mrs. J. M. McCormick, who was Miss Ruth Hanna before her r cent marriage, tells with good effect a number of stories about her father.

According to one of these stories an Irishman some years ag entered Mr. Hanna's office, took off his hat politely and said:

"The top of the mornin' to ye, Misther Hanna. I've been told ye're in want o' help."

"I have very little to do," Mr. Hanna replied, with quite a smile of humor.

"Then," said the Irishman, "I'm the boy for yez. It's very little I care about doin'—sure, it's the money I'm after."—New York Tribune.

BLUE VOILE AND EMBROIDERY.

The light warm woollen voile gown should have a place in every wardrobe; it is inexpensive, makes up into many charming ways, and is soft and becoming. This young lady is always a picture in her stylish frocks; this one is of Royal voile, with pipings and embroidery of black and white silk. The collar and cuffs are of batiste similarly embroidered. The skirt hangs from a panel yoke, with a deep full flounce. The blouse is plaited with front and sleeve thrimming in one. Simple hat of blue and white straw.

OAKLAND TRIBUNE
Tribune Publishing Company William E. Dargie, President

WHAT'S IN A NAME?

The London Mail says: "The name by which a person is generally called—usually his Christian name—is an important factor in deciding his character and may modify his physique." Whereupon a writer in the San Francisco Bulletin is moved to moralize as follows:

"It is possible that the Mail reasons from effect to cause rather than from cause to effect. The character of a person is more likely to convert 'William' into 'Bill' or 'Willie' than is the name to affect the character of the man. There are men who, after attaining the age of maturity, are only spoken of by their Christian names; and other persons whose surname is only spoken on formal occasions. Daniel Webster was never called 'Dan' after he reached his majority, nor was Henry Clay spoken of as 'Harry.' It would have been a capital offense in South Carolina to speak of John C. Calhoun as 'Johnnie.' The Christian named served in such instances to assist in identification and for family use. Parents should take the hint from the Mail's article not to give a boy the name of Arthur unless the name is dropped at maturity; it saps the vitality of the man. An Arthur may be amiable but the name fixes his rank along the mediocre line. The Mail says: 'You can always depend on James to take care of himself, but you cannot say so much for "Jim."' Robert is a verile name, but no man except he be a humorist can keep his head above water if he answers to "Bob." Reginald is an imposing name, but Reginalds are in the habit of just missing things. The name is a handicap out of a ballroom, but it serves well to attract the attention of very young girls. John is a strong name, but "Jacks" are weakened by familiarity. Oliver is noted for his push, for which fame Cromwell is possibly responsible."

There is more cleverness than truth in these generalizations. For some unaccountable reason it appears perfectly rational and proper to call some distinguished persons by nicknames or diminutives while it sounds something like sacrelige to so call others. Cromwell was called "Noll" by both admirers and enemies. Lincoln was lovingly called "Abe" till his dying day, and is still affectionately referred to by that homely diminutive. Lord Roberts is known wherever the English drum beats as "Little Bobs."

The favorite name by which Napolean was known to his soldiers was "The Little Corporal," but what English soldier would have dreamed of applying such an irreverent term to Wellington.

By the way, Wellington's first name was Arthur and was therefore "fixed along the mediocre line," according to the Bulletin philosopher.

Senator Chandler, of Michigan, was always called "Zach," and the great war Senator from Ohio, was invariably termed "Ben Wade." In Georgia Alexander H. Stephens was always called "Little Aleck." In the army the soldiers called General Sherman, "Uncle Billy" to his face, and hailed General Thomas as "Pap." The Confederates referred to General Longstreet as "Old Pete" and their usual reference to the idol of the Confederacy was "Old Bob Lee."

The name does no make the man any more than does the coat. Names are sometimes indicative, as indeed are clothes, but no man can make his child great at baptism nor render him foolish by giving him a lollypop title. As for nicknames, they are conferred in affection or derision, but there is no distinguishing mark in the style. Nobody ever dreamed of calling John Adams 'Jack,' but the people of Massachusetts called a greater Adams than he Sam. Wasn't Franklin called Ben? Benedict Arnold was ever given his full name, and a mouth-filling one, it is too, but he ran away to the British and tried to sell his country, nevertheless.

Our Bulletin moralizer flouts the name of Reginald—but why? It is as good as Theodore, and that name is a popular one just now—quite the thing, indeed. It was the man who wears it that gave it popularity, however, not the selection at the christening. 'What's in a name?" asks Shakespeare. "Well he knew that blood and brain alone make men, not godfathers or tailors Abraham Lincoln would have been as great a man had he borne any other name, but it is exceedingly doubtful if he would have been as great or useful as he was but for the environment and circumstances of his early life that caused him to be popularly called "Abe."

Presidents Jackson and Harrison were both men of great dignity, but one was called "Andy" and the other "Ben." It was different with Washington and Jefferson, and Calhoun, but nobody can tell why.

The most effective argument against lynch law made lately is the one voiced the other day by the militia at Evansville.

RUSSIA AND JAPAN.

There is less likelihood of Japan going to war with Russia than there was. The war spirit runs high in Japan, but the statesmen of the Mikado's realm are not carried away by popular passion. They are willing enough to fight, but they know Japan is no match for Russia and that in the end a war with their aggressive neighbor would be disastrous to the island empire.

Russia is the devil fish of Europe. Japan could only fight one of the tentacles—never reach its vitals. In the Crimean War England, France and Turkey combined could not reach a vulnerable part of the Moscovite empire. Their whole war was waged in an outlying province as distant from St. Petersburg as San Francisco from Chicago. It was as if some European power would hammer at the United States in the Everglade of Florida.

Charles the Twelfth of Sweden found Russia too hard a nut to crack. It was a country that could be whipped repeatedly and not know it. The first Napolean thought to strike at the heart of Russia. After the dreadful carnage of Bordolino, Kutusoff said placidly, "Wait till we call on the reserves. Russia has two commanders yet to be called who have never yet lost a battle—General January and General February." When they came with their battalions of snow and ice the legions of Napoleon melted, fled, perished. The Russian reserves were invincible.

Japan might as well attempt to fight the Arctic circle as to fight Russia. The field of action of course would be Manchuria and Korea. The Japs would have the sea at their backs while the Russians would have their own land behind them. In case of reverses they can retire with open rail communications in their rear. A decisive defeat to the Japanese would prove a tremendous disaster for the sea would have to be crossed to get home again. Russian ships can ravage Japanese coasts and threaten Japanese communications, but the fleets and armies of Japan are powerless to inflict injury on the ports and territory of Russia.

And then if the Japanese should succeed in driving the Russians out of Manchuria, England, France and Germany would step in and take the fruits of the victory.

A TEXAS BOYCOTT CASE.

At the last session of the Texas Legislature a stringent anti-trust law was passed, and now the Attorney-General of the Lone Star State has commenced an action to make its provisions apply to the labor unions. A capitalist erected a large building in San Antonio and among other contracts let one for putting in the electric lighting apparatus to a firm that is on the "unfair" list of the local electrical workers union. That body promptly declared a boycott on the building and every person occupying a leasehold in it. All intending occupants were notified that they would be boycotted by the trades assembly if they attempted to do business in it. In consequence leases were canceled and the building, one of the finest in the city, is left totally unoccupied.

The attorneys for the owner made application to the Attorney-General, who has authorized a suit in the name of the people against the electrical workers under the provisions of the anti-trust law. That law cannot be invoked by private parties, but requires all actions instituted under it to be begun in the name of the people and to be prosecuted by the Attorney-General and other public law officers.

Naturally the beginning of this suit has stirred up the labor unions considerably, especially as the members of the union are individually and collectively sued for damages. It is a serious matter if the case goes against them. This phase of the situation so impressed them that the union promptly offered to withdraw the boycott till the suit was decided rather than face a possible judgment for heavy damages. The Attorney-General would make no conditions, however, as to a tentative withdrawal of the boycott. Then the union declared it off without condition, and the case may be dismissed for want of cause of action. In that event, the point at issue will still be left unsettled.

SCHWAB'S GREAT FORTUNE.

Although Charles M. Schwab continues to be the nominal head of the steel trust, he is really deposed and his alleged assistant is the man in actual authority.

The truth is Mr. Schwab is a broken-down man. His nerves are shattered and his physical system a wreck. He was quietly shoved out of the way because he is no longer competent to handle the great concern he helped to create.

Yet Mr. Schwab has his millions. That seems to be taken as full compensation for his loss of health and ability to enjoy life.

Is it? A man can neither transmute his money into health nor carry it away with him when he dies. Naked he comes into the world and naked he goes out of it. Nevertheless men continue to break themselves down in amassing vast fortunes which they cannot enjoy and whose very possession brings pangs of bitterness that those not possessed of the glittering mockery do not feel. They strive, and plan, and scheme, and get the better of their fellowmen only to find that they have shortened their lives and destroyed their happiness in gathering money to feed the vanity or desires of others.

When the Parthians captured the grasping Crassus, they poured molten gold down his throat in derision of his greed for the precious metal. Mr. Schwab has done for himself something very like the thing the Parthians did to Crassus. He has got his gold but it is likely to prove his early death. In the prime of life he is a complete wreck, the constant care of doctors and nurses, and so shaken that the pleasures of travel and literature are denied him. All that his wealth can purchase for him is the care of a pampered invalid.

Do his millions suffice for what he has lost?

INSULTING THE BENCH.

The announcement of Judge Hart that he is ready to hear the bill of exceptions in the water rate case is seized upon by the Enquirer as a pretext for insulting that jurist and renewing its oft-repudiated charges of unfairness.

Whatever may be the merits of the water rate controversy the charge that Judge Hart would be unfair in settling the bill of exceptions is both foolish and baseless. It is a mere formal proceding and Judge Hart could not do the city's case a harm even if he desired to do so. There is not the slightest reason for thinking he has any such desire. Had he the power and could he be moved by such an improper motive, the abuse heaped upon him by the Enquirer would spur him on instead of deterring him. It is the theory of ignorance that a judge has the power to cook the record of a case going up to Supreme Court on appeal, and it is the theory of malice to presume, without evidence, that he would do so.

Before the trial of the case began, our contemporary impeached the fairness of Judge Hart and discredited his findings in advance of rendition. It has continued this policy up to the present time.

No good can come of it. The settlement of the questions involved in the water rate case must now be left to the higher courts. They cannot be settled by newspaper controversy or resolutions passed in political conventions; still less can they be settled by abusing judges who are called upon to adjudicate the legal merits of the points in dispute. Settlement will not be determined solely by the Hart decision nor turn on the record made during the trial in the Oakland case. Other cases before other judges, involving other municipalities and other corporations, raise the same questions for adjudication as have been raised here, and out of this diverse litigation will finally be evolved a determinative settlement as to what constitutes value for rate-fixing purposes under the Constitution and laws of this State and what is the real status toward each other of a purveyor of water to a municipality and a municipality and its inhabitants as consumers thereof.

Judge Morrow of the United States Circuit Court has recently rendered a decision closely following Judge Hart's reasoning in fixing a determinative basis of valuation and has enjoined the San Francisco Board of Supervisors from fixing rates till the State Courts have decided an action similar to the one brought by the water company in this city. Is Judge Morrow therefore unfair and prejudiced against the people of San Francisco?

If Judge Hart's decision is not based on sound law it will be reversed by the Supreme Court. If it be sustained, will the Enquirer assert that the judges of the court of final resort are unfair and prejudiced against the ratepayers of Oakland? To whom will it appeal to set aside the judgment?

Oakland wants plenty of good water as cheaply as it can be had. But it is a self evident proposition that it can not be permanently supplied at less than cost. It ought to be equally apparent that water cannot be procured more cheaply through abusing judges and impeaching the courts. So far as Judge Hart is concerned, he can do nothing one way or the other to influence the final determination of the rate case. The assertion that he can is only a pretext for assailing him. The record is secure, and the decision rests with the Supreme Court. It is wise to refrain from jumping at conclusions or forming pre-judgments in advance of that tribunal's action. At any rate, a sense of decency should restrain those continued assaults on Judge Hart.

The Chicago Tribune, which keeps a record of such things, says thirty-one persons were killed and 2485 others injured by fireworks in celebrating the Fourth of July last year. When the returns are all in it is expected that this year's record will equal if not exceed that of last year.

Marshall P. Wilder's wife will find that he is not as much of a joke as he has been cracked up to be.

MILITARY MURDER IN GERMANY.

The popular ferment in Germany over the reduction in the sentence of Lieutenant Hussner who murdered his boyhood's friend to resent a fancied slight to his military honor, shows how strong is the feeling against the military caste and how large a part it plays in the politics of the German Empire. The Hussner case has been extensively commented on in this country because it is such a complete exemplification of the folly and atrocity of the ideas of military honor taught in the German army. Hussner an a young man named Hartmann through with his sword, because the latter refused to salute him. They were friends and of equal social station, but Hussner felt impelled to compel due recognition of his superior rank. His letter to his mother explaining his conduct is a remarkable example of stupidity, arrogance and medieval ideas of religion and duty. To a man not drunken with the caste and military spirit that pervades the so-called upper classes of Germany, the murder appeared more like the rash act of an idiot than that of a sane man.

But it was nevertheless apologized for warmly in official circles, some of the officers saying Hartmann brought his fate on himself by refusing to salute and leaving Hussner no other recourse but to kill him. Hussner was sentenced to two years' imprisonment, and this has now been commuted. Public sentiment was deeply provoked at the lightness of the original sentence, and it is doubly provoked that it has been reduced.

The Hussner-Hartmann incident is only a very flagrant case out of many others of similar character that are working the common people into a state of infuriation against the military system. This public temper is illustrated by the enormous vote cast for the Social Democratic candidates for the Reischstag, aggregating about 3,000,000. If the Kaiser is not careful he will soon find himself facing a popular majority at the polls. His government now comes perilously near being in a minority, yet it is growing in unpopularity and seems to take no steps to counteract the increasing odium into which it is falling.

THE STATE UNIVERSITY.

The Sacramento Union is correct in saying 'shake-ups" do the State University no good. That fact has been conclusively demonstrated by recent events. But putting a stop to shaking up can hardly be termed a shake-up. Things may get into such a chronic fermentation as to make a removal of the source of irritation necessary. In any event, the idea of surrendering the State University to the absolute control of any one man is intolerable. What are the Regents for?

Article 9 of the State Constitution says: "The University of California shall constitute a public trust, and its organization and government shall be perpetually continued in the form and character prescribed by the Organic Act creating the same, passed March 23, 1868 (and the several acts amendatory thereof), subject to such legislative control as may be necessary to insure compliance with the terms of its endowments and the proper investment of its funds."

The Organic Act alluded to invests the control of the University and the selection of members of the faculty, etc., solely in the Board of Regents. The suggestion that the Regents surrender their authority entirely and take the position of a mere auditing board is something not contemplated by either the Constitution or the statutes. However, the President of the University should be invested with a proper amount of authority to maintain discipline both in the teaching force and the student body, and should be sustained in the proper exercise thereof. It is only when authority so conferred is exercised arbitrarily and despotically as an individual to serve personal ends that curbing becomes necessary. Authority exercised with wisdom and justice to promote the objects for which it was conferred is always respected and never creates friction, discontent and insubordination. There are always causes for the continued existence of these manifestations, and they should be sought out and cured, for their continuance must necessarily be harmful to the University.

Discussion of the situation at Berkeley in the public prints is a somewhat delicate matter, for silence is sometimes more judicious than open expression. Frequently admitted evils are permitted without protest for fear that challenging them will result in still greater harm. Everybody is proud of the University, and the desire is well nigh universal to make it better and stronger and nobler in its mission. Changes in its governing heads should not be made for slight reasons or transient causes, but conditions at times become so imperative as to compel discussion and to require permanent settlement of a vexed question. The University must not be confounded with any single individual. It was the boast of Louis the Fourteenth that he was the state, but his rule is hardly applicable to an institution of learning created and supported by the people.

TUBERCULOSIS IN CATTLE.

A few years ago it was a generally accepted belief among medical men that tuberculosis in cattle was dangerous to men—that it was practically the same form of disease as tuberculosis in the human system and therefore communicable. This view was regarded as so axiomatic that few physicians doubted and still fewer openly disputed it. But is is the chief merit of the medical profession that its members are forever experimenting and investigating, testing old and new theories, and applying as far as possible all scientific discoveries to the formulas of their art. They are now abjuring the theory that men can be innoculated with tuberculosis from animals. The theory is not abandoned as yet, but recent tests both in this country and Europe indicate that it is untenable. In a little while the question will be determined beyond cavil.

Elaborate tests in London and Berlin have been made, but the results are not conclusive. The experiments conducted by Professor Koessel of the German Imperial Health Office provoked an animated discussion when the report was presented to the Berlin Medical Society. The report declared that, "The series of experiments strengthens Professor Koch's view that animal consumption as the cause of human consumption does not play the role generally attributed to it, but definitive judgment requires further experimentation."

The dispatches state that Professor Orth, the late Professor Virchow's successor, strongly combated the view that human and animal consumption were dissimilar and non-transferable. Notwithstanding Professor Orth's vigorous opposition, it is clear that the most advanced medical thinkers are embracing Professor Koch's view, and are challenging the theory that has long been accepted as a demonstrateable fact. Whether it be true or not that tuberculular infection is communicated to men from beasts, experiments thus far have demonstrated that the danger in this direction is comparatively slight. It was formerly deemed great, although physicians of the old school who reasoned largely from observation and personal experience were disposed to regard it as a good deal of a humbug. But like all established theories, it will have able champions till research and experimentation completely explode it.

QUAINT TALES.

Some years ago, in a south of Ireland garrison town, there was stationed an officer who had achieved a reputation for strong language. One day Lord Wolseley was expected for an inspection and the specialist in picturesque profanity received from a brother officer a serious warning against the use of "cuss-words" while the commander-in-chief, who was known to hold strong views on the subject, was present. Lord Wolseley at length arrived and the inspection began. In the course of the proceeding the profane officer had to order his trumpeter to sound the "charge." The order was duly given, but the trumpeter blew the "retreat," then the officer braced himself for the usual volley. Suddenly, however, he caught Wolseley's eye upon him. What to say he knew not. The curses that were upon his lips died, and yet to speak he must. For a moment he looked wildly around. Then, suddenly, as though it were an inspiration, he turned quickly upon his unhappy victim and roared out, to the intense amusement of his brother officers, "You naughty, naughty, trumpeter?"

To appear in one's shirt sleeves before a public body of any sort is regarded as a serious breach of etiquette in England. On one occasion a clerk of the British board of inland revenue appeared one very hot day in the board room in his shirt sleeves. Alfred Montgomery, vice chairman, was horrified at the innovation. "Mr. ——," he said, "if you should find it convenient in this hot weather to take off your trousers pray do not let any feeling of respect for the board stand in your way." A Briton who was a great stickler for what he called forensic propriety, Judge Parker, one day found himself confronted by an undersheriff at court who was wearing a buff-colored waistcoat. "Realy, sir" he said, "I must beg of you to take off that canary-colored waistcoat. I cannot sit here and behold it any longer." Which was on all fours with his remark to a prosecutor who wore a mustache. "What are you, sir?" he inquired ferociously. "A schoolmaster, my lord." "A schoolmaster? Then how dare you appear before me with those hairy appendages? Stand down, sir!"

The Mirdites, a Christian clan in northern Albania, to this day religiously refrain from intermarrying with their own tribe, but, as a general rule they carry off wives from among their Mohammedan neighbors. Consequently a Mirdite wedding as often as not is preceded by a series of funerals. For, although the Mohammedan maid may in some cases have no unconquerable aversion to being abducted, it frequently happens that her kinsmen consider it a point of honor to defend her in grim earnest and lives are lost in consequence.

CURIOUS STATISTICS.

Recently published census statistics in England include tables giving the respective ages of all the married couples in the kingdom. From this it appears that there is one husband of 95 years who has a wife of 21, while three husbands ranging in age from 85 to 95 have wives of 25. Elderly wives and youthful husband are rarer, and the greatest disparity in this direction is between a wife of 65 years and her husband of 20. The oldest couple in the list are aged 100 and 95 years respectively, while the youngest pair have only numbered 16 and 15 summers respectively.

According to the statistics 102 girls under 14 years are actresses in England. Also it is disclosed that a girl of 10 is acting as a general shopkeeper, while another only a year older is returned as a pawnbroker. Ten little maids, just 10 summers each, are entered as engaged in the laundry and washing service. The cares of a business life have begun at the same age for at least one girl commercial clerk, and there are two girls of 11 for whom school would seem a fitter place than the public-house bar, in which they serve. Another girl has entered her teens into the ranks of scripture readers and itinerant preachers.

One woman in the English census figures is returned as a dock laborer and another as a pavior. There are also five female farm servants returned as in charge of horses, while four women are working as bricklayers, four as boilermakers, two as locksmiths, and one as a coppersmith. In some other trades the number of women is surprising. Women brewers number nearly 100, and women builders 177, while the lightermen, bargemen, seamen, boatmen and pilots who, belying their name, belong to the fair sex, run into several hundreds.

A Buddhist dignitary was recently buried in Japan, and the police attended the funeral and made an official report of the ceremonies, which must have been rather picturesque. State Senator Franklin O. Briggs of New Jersey has a document which is believed to be the original of an act of Congress passed on July 5, 1790, while Congress was in session in New York City. The document provides for the buying of West Point as a military station and school, and was given to Mr. Briggs by Park Commissioner C. L. Traver, who bought it a number of years ago in an old Philadelphia bookstore. The paper bears the signatures of Thomas Jefferson, Secretary of State, F. A. The life of the Scotch boy, Donald Smith, now Baron Strathcona and Mt. Royal, would read more like romance if it were not so studded with improbabilities. People like their romances to be possible; it is only from reality that will be endured the touches of extravagance which turn standard fiction into fairy tales, says the Cosmopolitan. Young Donald Smith, dreaming in his Scotch village of the stirring adventures of a fur-trading uncle in the wilds of North America, and afterward becoming fur trader himself, first as a clerk of the Hudson Bay Company in the bleakest corner of its vast territory, "pitiless Labrador," then climbing, after years of hardship and fidelity, to be chief factor of the company and resident governor in America, and finally in his old age governor of the home company in London, high commissioner for Canada and a peer of the realm—that is romance.

WHY J. CAL EWING ACCEPTED THE SECRETARYSHIP—THE POLITICAL SITUATION.

HATTON'S SAN FRANCISCO LETTER

FISH STORY ON A FEW OAKLAND GENTLEMEN—NEWS ABOUT THE MEN IN POLITICS.

(Special to the Tribune.)

SAN FRANCISCO, July 11.—With the local political situation so complicated in both party camps it is proving difficult for those who are trying to mould things on national lines to get any satisfaction, but they are hard at it all the same and many a move is being quietly made nowadays that will go a long way towards determining things later on.

Over on the Republican side there is no longer any conflict of opinion on the Presidential issue. Those who a year ago thought that Roosevelt would probably have to face a harder fight than he anticipated have changed their minds entirely, for since his recent tour of the country it has become certain that he will get the nomination—probably without opposition. As far as California is concerned there is no doubt that the delegation will go from here in his interests and instead of any wire-pulling in behalf of candidates it has now become merely a question of who will get the honor of participating in the National Convention and casting the State's vote.

Among the Democrats though all is not so serene. Despite the press announcements that Cleveland will not permit his name to be considered, many of his old admirers are figuring that he may be induced to get into the arena later on so until they are satisfied on that score they do not intend to commit themselves in any other quarter. Meantime though the crusade in behalf of Hearst goes vigorously on and despite all the sore spots that had to be healed and the factional differences to be overcome the indications now are that no matter who else may be advanced by the Democracy Hearst will have the California delegation solidly and squarely at his back.

Some of the managers of the Hearst campaign are anxious that Ex-Senator Frank J. Moffitt of Oakland should go to the next Democratic national convention as delegate, notwithstanding the published statement that he would support Ex-President Cleveland should he again sit in the national council of the party. Meeting the Oaklander yesterday your correspondent put the direct question to him as to his position regarding the Presidential candidacy of W. R. Hearst.

Mr. Moffitt replied that while he did not expect to be able to go to the National Convention next year, he nevertheless would accept if the honor were given to him without strife, only though with the understanding that there should be nothing in the way of his voting for Hearst as the next Democratic leader.

"Of course I am for Hearst and no one else; every Democrat in California should be that way" remarked the Ex-Senator from Alameda.

WHY EWING ACCEPTED.

When Cal Ewing indicated that he did not intend to accept the secretaryship of the Bank Commission, a crop of candidates for the job sprang up all over the State. They are feeling now though like the participants in a keno game when the cry of victory rings out, for, with Ewing's acceptance this week they will have to go back to the woods and lie in wait for another chance to take a seat at the patronage table.

DR. HAYWARD G. THOMAS.

There has been a good deal of speculation as to why Ewing experienced a change of heart on the secretaryship. When the Commissioners were announced and his name was first mentioned for secretary it was stated that he could not afford to take the place for the mere $200 a month salary it paid, especially so as to perform the duties would require about all his time. A good many were figuring that there might possibly be a rupture between Ewing and the Governor over the matter which would have been quite a political happening in view of the loyalty displayed by Ewing in the Pardee campaign.

Now however it leaks out that all has been happily settled. The terms of Commissioners Barham and Silver will expire two years hence and Ewing is to succeed one of them. In the event that complications arise to prevent such an appointment then Ewing is to have one of the two Building and Loan Commissionerships at present held by Senator C. M. Shortridge and D. C. Field of Los Angeles. Vacancies will occur in that board in a couple of years or so and the positions are regarded as among the choicest in the State for the reason that they are virtually sinecures.

By the way, Ex-Commissioner McCabe's suit to hold on to his place has never been pressed and has apparently gone to eternal rest among the archives of the Supreme Court. Although McCabe won in the Superior Court, the Controller, acting upon the advice of the Attorney General, refused to pay him his salary but gave it to Shortridge who instead of being put upon the offensive by the Superior Court decision was thus enabled to remain in the defensive. McCabe got disgusted with the whole thing and dropping it removed to Point Richmond where he is now engaged in the practice of his profession.

HERE AND THERE.

Supreme Justice Angelotti was able to leave his house this week for the first time since the accident. He resides in San Rafael and was warmly greeted when he appeared on the streets down town. His outing was a brief one however and it will probably be six weeks or two months before his doctors will permit him to return to his official duties. Although still scarred as a result of the train wreck the judge will not be permanently disfigured in any way so all things considered he thinks that he came out of the disaster very well.

Senator Selvage is down from Humboldt making one las effort to land the Code Commissionership. He brings with him all kinds of backing from his own section and despite the rumors that Ex-Senator Davis is in the lead for the place he has not lost hope by any means.

Ex-Senator Smith is up from Bakersfield on business connected with the Polytechnic School of which he is a trustee.

Senator Perkins is in Antwerp nowadays. He and Chief Justice Fuller of the United States Supreme Court made the trip across the Atlantic together.

Fred Handy, Deputy United States Marshal at Honolulu arrived on the last steamer and is now in Ukiah visiting his folks. Handy went to the islands a couple of years ago and organized the clerical department of the marshal's office. He was formerly secretary of the Mendocino Asylum.

Fremont Older, managing editor of the Bulletin, is now in London. He will be back in San Francisco on the 9th of September.

Senator Tom Flint has been passing a few days in town. For the first time in many years he has a fight on his hands to get the Republican nomination for the Senate. Under the new apportionment his district consists of Monterey, San Benito and San Luis Obispo counties and as San Benito, where he lives, has the smallest delegation of the three counties he is confronted with opposition on both sides. Assemblyman Warren John of San Luis Obispo has declared himself in the race and has started up his canvass for the nomination.

Walter Parker drifted into town for a couple of days early in the week.

Attorney George E. Dougherty, chairman of the Republican County Central Committee of Monterey county has been spending a brief vacation in town with his family.

Assemblyman Phil I. Walsh and Dr. S. H. Buteau leave Monday for a trip to the Yosemite.

A FISH FIASCO.

If there is one thing under the sun that is supposed to contain nothing new, it is the long-suffering and much-abused "fish story," but here is something in that line that comes floating down from Big Meadows, Plumas county, and is of peculiar interest to residents of Alameda county.

The fishing in the vicinity of Big Meadows is supposed to be the finest in the State, so with that object in view a party of nine disciples of Walton recently set forth upon a pilgrimage there. The array of talent was certainly promising enough, no matter what the quest might be, for the excursionists consisted of T. C. Coogan, Ben Hayes, C. E. Snook, Dr. Thomas, John Britton's partner, Burnham, Wm. Morris, M. Buckley, Attorney E. M. Walsh and Dick Gorrill.

Their arrival at the Big Meadows hotel was quite an event at that sequestered hostelry and a grin of delight became apparent upon the faces of the bold fishermen, as among those on the hotel veranda they discerned ex-Fish Commissioner Aleck Vogelsang. That was really too much good luck—to find on hand the one man in the State who knew more about piscatorial haunts than anyone else.

T. C. COOGAN.

The anglers arrived in the afternoon and although their zest for the sport was such that they could scarcely be prevented from setting forth to fish by moonlight, they were induced to postpone their ambitions until the following morning. They went to bed early and left calls to be awakened at daybreak.

The guests at Big Meadows were treated to a rare surprise when the Oaklanders burst forth upon them at breakfast the next morning. Each of the nine sportsmen wore a brand new fishing suit of latest cut and pattern and fitted with a multiplicity of pockets and conveniences for handling a big catch, their new russet boots creaked painfully and their hats and neckerchiefs were masterpieces of Western originality. If make-up could catch the fish, it was going to be a sad day for the finny tribe in Plumas county.

When they set forth for the fray, it was found that each man had a new rod and line, while around each waist was an assortment of spears and hooks that spoke well for the business bestowed upon the stores before they left home. They insisted that Aleck Vogelsang accompany them, so he, armed with a diving-rod with which to locate the fish, joined the party and off they went.

On arrival at the stream, they formed a skirmish line and each man went bravely at it, Vogelsang laying down beneath a tree to read a book, though keeping within call, so as to render assistance, if necessary. Flish! went the nine lines and the war of extermination had commenced.

All was silence, for the anglers were after the world's record and each man wanted to get a good start on the contracts he had made to supply his family and friends with fish for a week or two. They were anxious but hopeful.

Fifteen minutes, half an hour and finally an hour passed, but not a man had a bite to his credit. Vogelsang was so involved in his book that he did not notice the flight of time while, as for the bold fishermen, they were so interested in watching the fish passing to and fro, that they could think of nothing else. True, it appeared a little strange that although a fish would once in awhile come to the surface, look at them curiously and then scurry away, none ever investigated their implements of warfare—however, they all knew that patience is one of the chief requisites of a good fisherman, and each had determinedly patterned himself upon the woes of Job.

It was 9 o'clock when they started in and at 12:30 the first excitement of the day occurred. "Hooray!" shouted Dick Gorrill, who had just recast his line and who was overjoyed to see it immediately dragged to the bottom. The others looked at him with savage envy, and Vogelsang, who, meantime, had fallen asleep, was awakened by Gorrill's war-whoop and came over to see him land his prize.

"Take it easy," he shouted to Gorrill, "play with him a little and don't try to yank him out all at once."

Gorrill obeyed and under Vogelsang's careful instructions gave his prey two or three minutes' grace. When Vogelsang thought the moment was opportune, he shouted, "Now, out with him, quick!"

Gorrill gave a supreme yank, something glittered in the air and then fell with a crash at his feet. He looked at it wildly, and then uttered, "Eternal Jupiter, that's my watch!"

Sure enough it was his $250 gold repeater and there it lay a wreck.

"How on earth did that get there?" asked Vogelsang.

Gorrill was too heartbroken to respond, but Charley Snook solved the problem by showing how, when Gorrill had made his last grand cast, the hook had caught in his watch and had carried it into the water.

And then they all laughed and Gorrill got madder than ever.

"Well, let's go to lunch," said Vogelsang. "What kind of luck have you had?"

Each man gazed at the other and shook his head mournfully. Vogelsang looked at their empty baskets and the much dawfied upon him.

"Why, what is the matter with you fellows?" he exclaimed. "You certainly have broken the record all right." Then, examining Judge Coogan's tackle, he asked, "where is your bait?"

"What's that?" asked the Judge, and the others looked up surprisedly.

"Your bait," said Vogelsang, "the stuff that goes on the hooks to catch the fish with?"

"If there's anything missing from my outfit there's going to be trouble for some one when I get home." said Ben Hawes. "When I purchased this layout I told them in the store that I wanted everything complete and not to omit any detail." The other anglers, who were apparently with him when the transaction took place, showed by their looks that they had given similar instructions.

WELL!

About all there is to say in conclusion is that by the time Vogelsang succeeded in stopping laughing and explaining matters to them he had the sickest lot of sportsmen on hand that ever went forth to disturb the handiwork of nature. For their sakes he has determined to keep the story a secret as long as possible, for he is afraid that if it gets out on them they will hesitate about returning to town and facing the "jollying" that would make their lives terrible in the future.

HATTON.

WHAT THE WEEKLY PAPERS ARE SAYING

PRESIDENT WHEELER THE SUBJECT OF COMMENT—ALAMEDA PRUDES SHOCKED.

Three of the San Francisco weeklies discuss President Wheeler's probable retirement from the State University to accept either a diplomatic mission or an appointment in the Canal Commission. The Argonaut has a long article, charging the inharmony at Berkeley to "politicians in the Board of Regents." The Saunterer of Town Talk has this to say on the subject:

"When President Benjamin Ide Wheeler started on his Eastern trip, a short time ago, the report gained currency in Oakland that he had shaken the dust of Berkeley from his feet forever. The president of the University has many enemies across the Bay, and they believe that he would like to retire gracefully from his position. They say that he has proved himself a failure; that he is lacking in executive ability, and that some of the Regents have begun to regard him as a very shifty fellow, and that, therefore, he does not enjoy their confidence. When it was reported in the dispatches that there was some likelihood of his being appointed Minister to France it was at once suggested that he had not been cultivating the friendship of Roosevelt so assiduously merely in the interest of the University. Wheeler has undoubtedly made himself very unpopular in certain influential circles, and I have no doubt that he could be easily lured away from the University."

AN ALAMEDA MORSEL.

The cynical street gossip of Town Talk also tells this apocryphal story of Alameda:

"Alameda society has been shocked. During the recent hot spell residents of the Encinal city flocked to the cool waters of the bay that lave the town, and some of the fair sex sallied forth from their homes in costumes that are not considered de rigueur in the chaste little village. So negligé were some of the costumes that they sent cold chills through the conservative element that beheld the undress spectacle with feelings akin to horror. The suburbanites of Alameda are fearfully old-fashioned. They do not know that it is the custom in Atlantic City and other fashionable Eastern seaside resorts for the fair bathers to walk along the street from their hotel to the beach in bathing costume. Hence they were amazed to see women walking down to the waters of the bay hoseless and sandaled, and with a bare expanse of neck extending to a considerable depth, but shaded by a stylish parasol. One of those responsible for the shock of the town is a young matron, a member of the Criterion Club. Her daring exhibition of bare legs and neck excited much unfavorable comment among the sedate members of the club, and at a recent meeting the president of the organization took occasion to administer a rebuke. Of course it was very daintily veiled, for the president is a charming and tactful woman, but it inflicted a sting nevertheless, and she of the sandals retorted with much spirit. She asserted that envy had prompted the criticism of some of the club members who didn't dare expose their bones. Then she resigned."

BANK COMMISSIONER HIGH.

The Wasp has this to say of a prominent Oaklander:

"W. H. High of Oakland, whom Pardee appointed the other day to a position on the Bank Commission, is a gold Democrat and has for the past fifteen or twenty years been connected with the Union National Bank of Oakland. He is a brother of Gavin Dhu High, formerly well known in local newspaper circles, and at one time publisher of the Oakland Times and the Oakland Item. The latter is now in New York, where I hear he is city editor of the Sun. His wife, Alma Yolo, has achieved no little fame as a vocalist and is, I hear, preparing to star in opera."

AS TO RACE SUICIDE.

The News Letter thus comments on Joaquin Miller's new poem:

"People may say what they please of Joaquin Miller, but when the beserk fit is on him he can strike harder than most living writers. He is above all things a natural man, and the vices of our modern life, with its sham and shirk, he will not tolerate. He has thus come out as an earnest champion of the President's 'Race Suicide' propaganda in a recent poem, which he dedicates to 'The Mothers of Men.'"

HATTON FOR A JUDGESHIP.

The Wasp is mistaken in one particular in the following paragraph:

"George F. Hatton, who demonstrated by his successful management of the Perkins campaign that it was possible to elect a Senator without expending a fortune, has the ambition to shine on the Federal bench, I hear. He can depend upon Senator George C. Perkins to back him up, and he is popular with the newspaper fraternity, having been managing editor of the OAKLAND TRIBUNE for many years."

Mr. Hatton is not ambitious to shine on the Federal or any other bench at present; which, being liberally interpreted, means that he is not a candidate for any office. Mr. Hatton is enjoying a very lucrative practice in his profession, which he is not disposed to give up. He enjoys the warm friendship of Senator Perkins, but has not given any indication of a desire to reach for judicial or political honors.

BIG MINING SUIT IS DISMISSED.

CHICAGO, July 11.—The suit brought by Richard Polsen, against Theodore Gross, a mine promoter for $125,000 in commissions that Gross is alleged not to have accounted for to Polsen has been dismissed by Judge Holdon. On what basis the matter was settled was not stated in the order for dismissal.

COSTLY PICTURES.

Millet's "Angelus," Originally Sold For $350 Has Brought $160,000.

The actual value, in cash, of any given pictorial work of art seems to be difficult to ascertain. The ordinary laws of political economy appear to come to a standstill when a picture is to change hands. The most costly painting in the world, were it for sale, would prove to be Raphael's "Sistine Madonna," which hangs in the Royal Gallery at Dresden. Its present value has been estimated at something over $1,000,000. In recent times there have been two great masterpieces which have changed hands more than once, and which have successfully risen in price. For Rosa Bonheur's "Horse Fair," donated by one of the Vanderbilts to the New York Metropolitan Museum of Art, $53,000 was paid at an auction sale by the last purchaser. Originally Rosa Bonheur had been offered $2,400 for the picture. This offer she refused, and eventually sold it to a London dealer for $8000. It was then brought to this country. But before the said auction, brought on by litigation, the "Horse Fair," had changed hands once more, at an increased figure. Millet disposed of "Angelus" at $350. During his lifetime it fetched $7.500. A few years after his death it was resold for $32,000 and subsequently for $115,000. The last buyer gave no less than $160,000 for the "Angelus."

RIVAL TOWNS ASK FOR COMPANY F

FEAR EXPRESSED THAT THIS CITY MAY LOSE ONE MILITIA BODY.

The rather headless condition of Company F, occasioned by the resignation of its two highest officers and a seeming lack of interest in the organization on the part of the members may lead to the removal of that command from this city to some other aspiring place, which is desirous of owning a military organization belonging to the State.

Some of these towns made a strong plea some time ago when there was disaffection in one of the local commands to try and wrest one of the two local militia companies from this city. The applicants tried to show that they could support and maintain the proper military morale in an organization of this kind and some of them came very near gaining their point.

There is no military organization at Vallejo or Ukiah and both of these towns are clamoring to have the headquarters of F Company transferred to them. A request to this effect is now before the Board of Location and it remains to be seen what that body will do in the premises.

The resignation of Captain Covalt and First Lieutenant Nickerson of Company F, Fifth Regiment, N. G. C., of this city, has almost led to the disorganization of the command. The lack of esprit du corps which has prevailed in the company for some time has been intensified by this act, all the more so because of its suddenness and more especially because the company is expected to go into the regimental camp of the Fifth Regiment Infantry, which is to be pitched at Healdsburg, commencing on the 18th instant.

There will be little for the powers that be to do but to accept resignations because the officers who have tendered them will not withdraw them, neither can they be obligated to serve against their will.

Captain Covalt has so decided opposition to returning to the service that he has disposed of his uniform and side arms to the newly-elected second lieutenant, Johansen, who has just qualified in the position.

As the matter now stands, the company will go into the encampment with Johansen as the only commissioned officer. This will seriously handicap the company because the camp is intended to be a school of instruction and it was the hope of Colonel Hayes that there would be a full regiment of officers as well as men on the ground.

Just how many members of Company F will be under the canvas cannot now be estimated. The members are lax in attending drills where the fatigue, relatively speaking, is light and do not take kindly to the prospect of eight days' drilling under the torrid sun which is generally supposed to do blistering work at Healdsburg.

At the present time, there are no aspirants mentioned for the positions of Covalt and Nickerson because, generally speaking, none of the men are pining to give to the organization the time and attention which are necessary to put it on a firm footing again.

Aside from the hard work which the boys connect with the encampment, there are other objections urged by them to going into camp. They say that the State allows no pay to the guardsmen, while they are in camp and that, while away, they would be compelled to forego the wages which they received in their several occupations. An outing in camp, also, they say, would mean work instead of recreation, which is all the more to be deprecated, because many of them have already had their annual vacation.

It is estimated that the strength of the command will be about 400 men, when the tents are pitched and the work of the military school begins.

An erroneous publication to the effect that officers of Company A had resigned has aroused a feeling of intense indignation among the members of that organization, who declare they have no trouble in the ranks and that there is no reason for any of the officers to surrender their commissions.

Company A expects to go into camp with about 60 men, a number which, its members say, will not be exceeded by that of any other company on the field.

Captain W. M. Simpson of Alameda, who is regimental commissary, will act as quartermaster during the comnig encampment. First Lt. A. P. Smiley will be his assistant.

Discharges from Company F have been made as follows: Corporal E. R. Larkin, because of removal and Artificer E. Brandt and Private E. L. Schmidt, because of expiration of service.

Corporal W. M. Rohrbacher has been promoted to sergeant and Private A. E. Schmidt to be corporal.

In going into camp, Companies A and F of this city, G of Alameda and I of Livermore will leave here in the evening of the 18th inst., and take the 7:20 boat at San Francisco on the California and Northwestern.

The regiment will travel in heavy marching order, but no cartridges will be carried.

Quartermaster Simpson and First Lt. A. P. Smiley will leave for the camp site July 16 at 7:30 o'clock, taking with them from Company A, a corporal, private and a cook; from Company F, a sergeant, private and one cook and from Company I, a sergeant, private and cook.

On the detail for guard on the first day of the camp, the commander of the guard will be First Lt. F. H. Peterson, of Company F of this city.

HORACE SKINNER FILES AN ANSWER.

Horace L. Skinner today filed an answer to the amended cross-complaint of his wife in the divorce suit now pending between the two. He began the action for a separation and she filed a cross-complaint in which she charges him with intemperance and all the allied evils resulting from it. Skinner now says in his answer that it is she and not he that is addicted to the use of intoxicants and that she has stayed away from home whole nights in her debauches. The matter will be submitted to the judge to decide which of the two are making allegations nearest to the true state of affairs. In the meantime Skinner has the custody of the two children.

HORSE TRADE IS ENDED WITH SHOTS.

HORSE TRADER OF STOCKTON IS SHOT BY HIS VICTIM.

STOCKTON, Cal., July 11.—A. C. Munch, a horse trader and junk dealer is lying at St. Joseph's Hospital with two bullet wounds in his body, and Gremia Oranges, a fireman at the Pacific Tannery, is in jail, charged with assault to murder. A horse trade is at the bottom of the trouble.

Some time ago Oranges purchased a horse from Munch, who represented the animal to be young. Oranges, when he found it was an old horse wanted the money back.

While Munch was sleeping in his wagon in the yard back of the Avenue Stables, Oranges woke him up shortly before 5 o'clock. According to Munch, Oranges struck him in the head with his pistol and then shot him twice, one ball entering the left arm and the other the right breast near the clavacle. Neither wound is dangerous. Oranges claims he shot in self-defense. Munch was removed to the hospital and the bullet, a 38-caliber extracted from the neck where it had lodged.

A BARGAIN TALK ON PIANOS

WHAT IS A BARGAIN? An article of recognized worth, and for honest reason, offered for less than its usual price is a bargain.

To say that a $400 piano is to be sacrificed for $129 means nothing UNLESS YOU KNOW THE ARTICLE—an ad purporting big discounts and only gives you half the facts is the merest chaff. It is a good deal like placing a piano in a show window and marking it way down and then closing the lid to prevent you seeing how really worthless the pretended bargain is.

BEFORE A BARGAIN IS REALLY A BARGAIN THE BUYER MUST KNOW ALL THE FACTS.

This advertisement is intended for people looking for GOOD TONE rather than flashy case. Plain people like plain things and here are a few descriptions especially appealing to plain folks:

NEW BARNES & SON PIANO; refined tone and thoroughly durable; retails for $400; (discontinued style) $7 a month 295

NEW BARNES & SON PIANO—small size—"Plymouth" style retails for $325—(discontinued style) $6 month 248

GOOD WORK OF ENDEAVORERS.

MANY MEETINGS WERE PLANNED DURING THE WEEK.

(All articles intended for this column should be sent to E. E. Wood, 772 Fifteenth street, Oakland, by Thursday evening of each week. Phone Cedar 203.)

The Christian Edeavor Society of the First Presbyterian Church, Berkeley, gave their annual reception last evening to the summer school students at the University. This reception has become a custom of the First Church and to be one of the important events of the year with the Endeavorers. A most enjoyable evening was spent by a large number of students who attended.

A bare quorum of the Seamen's Rest Committee met Friday evening at the Rest rooms on lower Broadway to discuss the affairs of the sailor's meeting place. The Rev. Jesse Smith, who has taken charge of the work, reported a goodly attendance of sailors during the past month. He also reported that the San Francisco papers were sent to the Rest daily without charge and that one of our local stationers, Hardy Bros., had given a considerable supply of writing paper, envelopes, pens and ink. The treasurer's report did not reveal a very prosperous condition. However, plans for raising additional funds were laid by which it is hoped to put the work on a better financial basis.

The Y. P. S. C. E. of the First Congregational Church, Oakland, held a moonlight tramp on Thursday evening, July 9, which was in every way an enjoyable affair. A crowd of young people left the church at 8 o'clock and tramped out to Piedmont Springs, where a light lunch was eaten. Here, also, games were played and stories told until shortly after 10, when the return tramp was commenced. So a good a time was had that another tramp, to be held within a few days, was planned for.

Following the custom of the past three years the members of the Pilgrim Congregational C. E. Society and a few invited guests ate supper together in the church parlors last Thursday evening, the occasion being the semi-annual meeting of the society. The tables had been tastefully decorated for the occasion and dainty souvenir name cards placed at each plate, the work of Miss Edith Snow and her floral committee. The excellent supper was arranged and served under the management of Miss Laura White. After hearing reports from the retiring officers, new ones were elected as follows for the next six months: President, Lillian Cushing; vice-president, Edson Wilcox; secretary, Bertha Greenleaf; treasurer, George Nesbitt; pianist, Gertrude Baker; junior superintendent, Will H. Sellander.

At the conclusion of the business meeting, the toastmaster of the evening, Rev. R. C. Brooks, presided and introduced in a happy manner the following young people, who responded to toasts as indicated: "The Experiences of a Granger," I van Frickstad; "What I Saw in the Southland," Lillian Cushing; "The Observer," Frank Bush; "Pilgrims and Strangers," Harry Melquoind; "Worries of a Chemist," Bryant Drake, and "The World," W. W. Madge.

Solos were sung by Mrs. Brooks and Miss Edith Snow and a piano solo was given by Miss Effie Merrill.

The regular quarterly convention of the Alameda County C. E. Union will be held Saturday, August 15, in the Pilgrim Congregational Church, East Oakland.

BOARD RECEIVES MANY BIDS.

The Board of Public Works yesterday afternoon received the following bids from contractors bidding on the construction of one hundred cans to be placed on the streets for the reception of rubbish: F. A. Antone, $3.75 each; George W. Schmidt, $3.99; Campbell and Donovan, $4.50; John P. Maxwell, $4.65; Dalzell and Moller, $4.75; Ingrain Hardware Company, $4.50. The bid of Antone not being in accordance with the specifications, the bid of Schmidt was declared the lowest, but all were referred to the Council for selection.

THEY WANT A NEW BUILDING.

BOARD OF HEALTH TALKS ABOUT GETTING A PEST HOUSE.

At the regular meeting of the Board of Health, held last night, much time was taken up in discussing the suggestions offered by Health Officer Von Adelung in regard to the convalescent cases of diphtheria. He said he thought that it would be well for the board to look carefully into the matter and find some way by which the spread of the disease could be avoided. On a motion, the matter was referred to a committee which is to investigate and report as to the best method to be pursued.

The question of the proposed new hospital for contagious diseases was also brought up, and after much discussion it was thought advisable to ask the city for $15,000. It is estimated that the building, including the furnishings will cost $10,000. The balance of $5000 will be used in the purchase of a suitable site for the erection of such an institution.

The building will be sixty by eighty feet and will contain ten rooms nicely furnished. The reason for the erection of this hospital is not for a pest-house, but in order to have a place where both rich and poor may be taken in extreme cases of scarlet fever and diphtheria, and only in occasional cases will those affected with smallpox be admitted.

FIREMAN DIED DOING HIS DUTY.

At the meeting of the Board of Police and Fire Commissioners yesterday afternoon a report was received from Fire Chief Ball, informing the Board of the death of Fireman Frank H. Parker, who perished in a burning building on San Pablo avenue last Sunday morning.

The report was placed on file and the following resolution passed:

"Whereas, Frank H. Parker, an honorable member of the Oakland Fire Department, came to his death on July 5, 1903, at Oakland, California, in the faithful discharge of his duty as a fireman; and

"Whereas, The deceased has served in said Fire Department for years with bravery and fidelity, and has during his long service in the Department never hesitated in the performance of his duty; and

"Whereas, The deceased by his honorable character and sterling qualities as a son, fireman and citizen, has endeared himself to his brother firemen and friends; therefore be it

'Resolved, That in the untimely death of Frank H. Parker, the Board of Police and Fire Commissioners has lost a brave and efficient employee, the Oakland Fire Department a faithful and conscientious fireman and the family of the deceased a kind and loving son and brother; and be it further

"Resolved, That this Board sympathizes with the bereaved family in this great affliction, and extends its deepest sympathy and condolence in their hour of sorrow; and be it further

"Resolved, That a copy of this resolution be forwarded to the bereaved family of the deceased, and that the Chief Engineer of the Fire Department be requested to place the flag at half-mast at the house of the Engine Company No. 3, of which Company the deceased was a member."

POLICEMEN WILL PROTECT THE LINEMEN.

Mayor Olney Says He Wants Peace in City.

Strikers State Their Case to the Chief Executive of City.

Police protection will still be afforded men who are working in the places of the striking linemen, at least for a few days longer. This was decided by Mayor Olney last night after a meeting with representatives of the Sunset Telephone Company and the Linemen's Union.

The hearing of the protests of the Linemen's Union against the Board of Police Commissioners allowing policemen to go around with the men taking the places of the strikers was to have come up before the board yesterday afternoon, but it was decided to put the matter over until 8 o'clock last night.

Previously, however, the board had decided that the matter was entirely in the hands of Mayor Olney, he being advised by City Attorney McElroy that the charter declares that the Mayor has exclusive jurisdiction over the Police Department.

When Mayor Olney met with the representatives of the Linemen's Union and the telephone company there were present about fifteen representatives from the former organizations and Manager Ellis and Superintendent Flemming were there for the telephone company. After the meeting had been in progress, Commissioner Turner and Commissioner McElroy dropped in, but took no part in the proceedings.

A. W. Davis, secretary of the Grievance Committee of the striking telephone employes, declared that it was the wish of the union men that the city do away with all police protection which had been afforded the Sunset Telephone Company during the present difficulty.

"There is no occasion for policemen being given by the city for the use of the telephone company. The union men have committed no act of violence," declared Davis. "On the contrary, they have received direct orders to commit no act that could be construed into an act of violence. They have been instructed to conduct this campaign along gentlemanly lines and they are doing it. These policemen are a slur upon the men and turns public smypathy against us and the regard of the public is what we need. We ask, therefore, that the policemen be removed and the action of the board be rescinded."

"How many men are there on a strike?" inquired Mayor Olney.

"There are, as near as I can estimate, about sixty-five," answered Davis. "That, of course, includes those in Oakland, Alameda and Berkeley."

"The head of the Executive Department is the head of the Police Department," explained Mayor Olney in stating what action the board had decided upon in the afternoon whereby he was given the power to decide whether or not police protection should remain.

"Manager Ellis of the telephone company came before the board and complained that the men had been interfered with by the men who had gone on a strike" continued the Mayor. "He stated that one serious act of violence had occurred, but he would not say that it was done by the strikers as he believed them to be, for the most part, good men. He said that no work would be done by the new men pending the settlement of the difficulty other than to keep the wires in repair as the telephone was a public utility. We deemed that his men should have police protection and policeman were detailed to go around with his men with instructions that they were to take no part one way or the other, but simply to see that peace was preserved.

"If a man is in a crowd of hoodlums and some remarks are made that are not of the right sort, a riot might be the result. Now I was a working man once and I went on a strike for higher wages. Now suppose I were to take your place and be a lineman. Suppose I went on a strike and saw another lineman take my place. It would be but human nature for me to feel like jumping on him. You may have the most perfect reasons for striking, but one thing might lead on to another and then there would be a riot. There is indication at present that there may be trouble, so when the request came in for protection it was given. There was danger of a riot and I gave police protection for your benefit. If you should do anything to arouse public feeling it might be determental to your interests. I think that when the strike is over you will be glad it was so. If one of the workers was jumped upon it would hurt your cause. I don't, however, believe that a union man would start a fight, but he would fan it on. How are the things standing now, Mr. Ellis?" inquired the Mayor.

"Just the same as in the beginning. In fact, the situation is worse the last two days," declared the telephone manager. "While there is no violence, there are threats of violence. The men hoot, yell and attract attention to the workers. They stand on the sidewalk in front of the telephone office and direct the public's attention."

"Yes, they line up on the sidewalk and call the men bad names, but we have refrained from making arrests," assented Superintendent Flemming.

"We do not want to go to extremes," declared Manager Ellis. "We do not want to make arrests unless absolutely necessary."

"I will continue the police protection for a few days," stated Mayor Olney. "This will give you an opportunity to call the men in and show that there is no desire on their part to do violence. When this is done I will take the police off. It isn't safe until then."

At the conclusion of the conference, the linemen asked that J. J. Burke, a labor union representative, be given police protection, but it was refused by Mayor Olney. It was claimed that Burke was set upon and beaten by two Berkeley contractors and that he was VIOLENT TEMPER OF WIFE.

HUSBAND TELLS A TALE OF CRUELTY IN COURT.

George J. Garside testified yesterday before Judge Melvin that his domstic happiness had been ruined by the ungovernable temper of his wife, Flora M. Garside, and for that reason he was anxious to have his marital bonds dissolved. They were married three years ago in Maine. They have been separated more than a year. Desertion was alleged in the complaint, but the testimony adduced was to the effect that their separation was preceded by considerable domestic tyranny.

Soon after their marriage, Garside said, their happiness began to be marred by exhibitions of temper on the part of his wife. He said she would find fault with him for no other reason than to satisfy her querulous disposition. Continual nagging, he said, brought about many unpleasant domestic scenes, although he tried to avoid having disagreeable discussions with his wife.

One evening, Garside said, he returned home late from the theater where he was employed and his wife began upbraiding him and wanted to know where he had been and what he had been doing. He told her that he had been attending to his business, but she refused to be satisfied with that answer. He told her he was tired and wanted to go to sleep, but would tell her more in the morning. Thereupon, he said, his wife struck him in the face with a bunch of keys. On other occasions, Garside said, his wife attacked him with scissors and other household articles.

Garside finally left his wife and came to California. He said he had written to his wife to join him here, but she replied that she would not live with him again in California or any other place. This fact was admitted by Mrs. Garside's attorneys, who appeared in court for her during the trial. Judge Melvin granted Garside a decree as prayed for.

Prescriptions Why we lead

The dependability of a drug-store centers in its prescription department.

If the prescription department does a big business you may rest assured the people will have a kindly feeling for that store. There is probably no other commodity purchased by a patient public with more thought and precision than prescriptions.

When a person is sick or ailing common sense demands that they have the very best.

They cannot afford to take chances with careless prescription clerks.

They are afraid to patronize a drugstore with a shady reputation.

They must be satisfied in their own mind that they are patronizing a truly dependable store and one which they know will give them exactly what their prescription calls for.

They like to know it is filled by clerks of experience, men of years who do nothing else but fill prescriptions. Clerks who are not compelled to wait on trade, but whose duty in the prescription room is ever before him.

The customer likes to know that his prescription will be filled with the very first quality of drugs—the best that can be bought for his use.

There is a chance to get well on such medicine.

During the last year the record books of the prescription departments of The Owl Drug Company show that 146,763 prescriptions were filled.

An average of 400 a day.

This is a remarkable record and plainly proves that the public regard a dependable store.

DAM IS ALL BUT COMPLETE.

AN EXCELLENT ROADWAY NOW CONNECTS EAST OAKLAND.

The extensive improvements on the boulevard along the lake front which have been in progress for many months past are at last all but complete, with the exception of a portion of the north side fill. The reconstruction and widening of the Twelfth street dam is finished. The roadway has been widened to 100 feet. On one side is a bicycle path, seven feet in width, and a walk for pedestrians, twelve feet wide. On the other side a twelve-foot sidewalk has been constructed. On each side of the new waterway at the east approach to the driveway an ornamental granite coping, with iron fence surmounting it, has been installed.

The main drive, sixty-four feet wide, is macadamized its full width, with ample space each side of the car tracks for vehicles.

The portion that is uncompleted stretches 150 feet from the west end of the drive and abuts the rock fill made to brace the dam. Because of the mud there was a settling of the fill, and City Engineer Turner has recommended that the construction work be delayed until the settling process has stopped. The contract price, $36,500, will be exceeded $1,500 for extra material that was required.

To protect their contract the Hutchinson-Ransome Company has asked an extension of time for forty-five days to complete the work.

CLAIMS ANOTHER VICTIM.

JOSEPH DE MELLO DIES AS RESULT OF POWDER EXPLOSION.

Death claimed a second victim yesterday as the result of the powder magazine explosion at Pinole Thursday afternoon. Joseph De Mello, one of those who were injured, succumbed to his sufferings at the Lane Hospital in San Francisco. He was terribly burned about the back and legs and little hope was held out for his recovery at the time he was removed from the scene of the accident with the others to San Francisco. He was 26 years of age and his home was in Santa Cruz.

The condition of Miss Sadie McGuire, who was yesterday thought to be fatally injured, is much improved. She is in the Lane Hospital, San Francisco. Her sister, Miss Daisy McGuire, is confined to her bed in the Lane Hospital, but her injuries are not of a serious nature. Clyde Berryman shows a marked improvement and will probably be removed to the hospital on the grounds at the powder works tomorrow.

A large force of men has been put to work cleaning away the wreckage of the cartridge factory. The building, which was one of the largest on the grounds, was demolished and only remnants of the four walls were left standing. The work of constructing a new building will be commenced immediately. Superintendent Bermingham has not yet determined the exact cause of the disaster, but the theory that a nail had punctured the primer of a cartridge is the one generally advanced.

The funeral of Miss Mary Wood, the young woman who lost her life in the accident, will be held from the home of her brother, Lester Wood, at Hercules, tomorrow afternoon. Coroner Curry will hold an inquest on the death of the girl at Martinez early next week.

Woman's Nightmare

No woman's happiness can be complete without children; it is her nature to love and want them as much so as it is to love the beautiful and pure. The critical ordeal through which the expectant mother must pass, however, is so fraught with dread, pain, suffering and danger, that the very thought of it fills her with apprehension and horror. There is no necessity for the reproduction of life to be either painful or dangerous. The use of Mother's Friend so prepares the system for the coming event that it is safely passed without any danger. This great and wonderful remedy is always applied externally, and has carried thousands of women through the trying crisis without suffering.

MRS. SHEPHERD TALKS.

SHE IS CARING FOR JORGENSEN CHILDREN AT HER OWN EXPENSE.

About three weeks ago Mrs. Agnes B. Shepherd took the two Jorgenson children from the County Jail and took them to Beulah Camp Meeting. In speaking about the matter, Mrs. Shepherd said:

"I do not think the County Jail is a fit place for children as they have the freedom of the jail and hear vile language from the prisoners. I took the children and kept them for three weeks at my own expense on the camp ground and I now have them in my possession. As they were destitute of clothing, I provided them with clothing.

"The father had given the little girl to a woman in Berkeley, a complete stranger, and the little boy to a woman in Alameda, also a stranger to him. These women had been treating Jorgenson like a hero, taking flowers and fruit to him. One of the women came out to the camp last Sunday and wanted the boy. As I was not favorably impressed with the woman I refused to let her have him. The children don't want to be separated and I respect their wishes. I do not consider the father a capable man to select homes for the children being a stranger here.

"The children are in my custody waiting the order of the Danish Consul."

Mrs. Shepherd says in regard to the Bert Goddard case: "I took care of Goddard's wife and three children for five months before the death of the wife, and kept them in clothing. Everything that the wife had on when she was buried I bought and paid for. I took the three children to my home, and kept them nearly three months, supplying them with clothing. When their father got out of jail, I gave him an order for a pair of shoes.

"I never sent a bill to the father and have never received one cent from him for the children and he did not even thank me for the care I gave them.

"The children are at present in Temescal in my name and the father has never in any way contributed to their support either in money or clothing."

Mrs. Shepherd says speaking about Liza Hall who is at present in the County Jail: "I took the woman into my house eight times. I furnished her with clothing and took her to Peniel Mission and tried to get her converted. I then found employment for her. I have in no wise received a cent from the woman, and did not want it. She says that she bought food and gave me money, but I have never received one cent from her."

Mrs. Shepherd is an ardent worker in the mission. She says her husband is a mining man and furnishes her money for her work.

A LONG-FELT WANT

It Is Supplied at Last in Oakland.

Good-natured people are often irritable.

If you know the reason, you would not be surprised.

Ever have itching piles?

Not sick enough to go to bed; not well enough to be content.

The constant itching sensation.

Hard to bear; harder to get relief.

Spoils your temper, nearly drives you crazy.

Isn't relief and cure a long-felt want?

You can have relief and cure if you will follow the advice of a local citizen.

R. Gilgan, carpenter, of 1215 Clay street, says: "I had itching and bleeding hemorrhoids, commonly known as piles for years. None but those who are annoyed day and night with this exasperating affliction has the faintest idea what a sufferer endures, and when at last he finds a means to bring relief he is only too pleased to let his friends and neighbors know what he employed. I went to a drug store for Doan's Ointment. I believe the second application helped me. I am not prepared to say that the ailment is radically disposed of but this I can consistently declare, from the treatment I received more genuine benefit and more immunity from distress and annoyance than from anything I ever used."

CUT CAMPBELL'S SALARY OUT.

HONOLULU, July 11 (by Pacific cable).—In an effort to break the deadlock of the extra session of the Legislature, which was called by Governor Dole for the purpose of passing appropriations, a number of conferences were held today. The failure to agree on the salaries of certain officials was one of the obstacles to harmonious action. The strongest opposition was manifested against providing a salary for Marston Campbell, Assistant Superintendent of Public Works, formerly of Oakland, Cal. Campbell has incurred the displeasure of many legislators in the matter of street paving, and the House about two weeks ago passed a resolution demanding that his resignation be requested by his superior. Today the conferees reached a partial agreement, which included the striking out from the appropriations the salary for Campbell's office. The Legislature will adjourn tonight.

PLEASANTON FARMS INVADED BY BUYERS LOOKING FOR LIVESTOCK.

PLEASANTON, July 11.—The 5:30 p. m. West-bound passenger train was laid up here last night for half an hour on account of a broken driving rod on the engine. The crippled engine finally pulled the train as far as Niles with only one cylinder working.

WIND INJURES CROPS.

Reports of great damage to the wheat and barley crops between here and Livermore keep coming in. It appears that the high winds recently caused the heads of the wheat to beat together and shell out, while the barley was broken off and ruined. Some farmers estimate their loss as high as $2000.

The demand for horses of all kinds is unprecedented. Buyers are arriving in town by almost every train and sales are reported almost daily.

NEWS LETTER.

This week the News Letter comes out with its own candidate for Mayor of San Francisco. The name is a new one, but will appeal to all citizens directly they hear it. There is much political gossip of a new and interesting kind, such as one cannot get in the daily papers. The financial news is as able and reliable as ever and the Town Crier goes on his usual iconoclastic way. The Looker On, with his notes on current men and things, should be read by everyone who aspires to learn the inside of local doings, while the short articles and comments are interesting and informing.

"Oh!" a little bit short and crusty, am I?"

"Well, I'm not so tough as the last pie you cut, if your edge is an indication!"

"Took an hour to make, and a week to bake, did it?"

"Folks had to dig the fruit out of it with a pickaxe I'm told, and,—sent the shell to the Blacksmith for hinges!"

"But,—never again will they need to do that, since now they use "magical" PRESTO."

"It makes the quickest, surest, lightest, whitest, and cheapest, of cakes and pastry."

"Just compare the costs for Pie-crust, (beneath) and observe that it needs less "shortening."

MANY DIFFERENT WAYS OF ENTERTAINING—GOSSIP ABOUT THAT BROKEN ENGAGEMENT.

THE MEDDLER

SAN FRANCISCO SOCIETY—MANY PEOPLE ARE ENJOYING THEIR VACATIONS—WHAT THE SMART SET IS DOING.

ENGAGEMENT OF TWO CHARMING PEOPLE.

The engagement which I barely noted last week, of Miss Helen Richardson of the Alameda High School and Dr. Edward S. Grigsby of Nome, Alaska, is deserving of a more extended notice than I then gave it. They are both delightful people, as merry, genial, well-balanced and pleasant to know as possible, and they should establish a household distinguished for its charm.

Dr. Grigsby was for years a resident of Oakland. He is a brother of Mrs. Palmer and the uncle of Mrs. George S. Wheaton, Silas Palmer and Miss Bessie Palmer, though but little their senior in age, as he was the youngest of the family and many years Mrs. Palmer's junior. He went to school in Oakland, then went East and studied medicine being graduated at several of the large colleges. Afterward he was an army surgeon and served in Cuba with distinction during the war with Spain. As a physician he could not help being successful with his magnetism and knowledge—the former no less important than the latter to my way of thinking. He was successful in San Francisco, but, seeing a good opening, went to Alaska where he has made money. He will return however, at Miss Richardson's request and will practice again in San Francisco.

Miss Richardson is a University of California girl though I believe she took but a special course. Since leaving college she has taught steadily in the Alameda High School and is said to be very clever in mathematics. She is very bright, clever and tactful and has many friends. Withal she is merry-souled, and so is much sought after for house parties and the like. I have been told that the wedding will take place in the fall but I know nothing authentic about it.

BEAD BAGS AND BELTS THE LATEST THING.

The latest fad is for bead bags and belts and unless you have something of the sort you are not "in it" at all. These beautiful savage adornments are made entirely by hand and consume days and days in the making. Therefore, they are very expensive and it marks the haut ton to have them. They are like cotton frocks covered with French knots and hand embroidery—they show loads of time—or money. The new belts are much like those knitted by our mothers and grandmothers and are ornamented with lovely patterns in which black and white beads, or silver and gold ones, play a prominent part. Colored beads are not adaptable for so many costumes. The new wrist bags of beads are lovely and are handsomely mounted. Then there are purses and chatelaines—also of beads. In New York, not one of these things can be purchased for one cent less than fifty dollars, but here they are considerably cheaper and, consequently we are rejoicing in them.

⁂ ⁂ ⁂

DEATH OF WEALTHY PIONEER.

The death of Mr. Mabury of Santa Clara County puts another lot of American heiresses on the market, for he left an estate valued at about four millions of dollars and had three daughters to inherit the property. Better still, to some men's minds, the daughters are pretty, the youngest, Carlotta, being especially so. For a short while, when the University of the Pacific seemed to be gasping its last breath, she attended the University of California but it was scarcely religious enough to suit her and when I last heard of her, she was doing missionary work in China. Lots of Americans, as well as Europeans, I fancy, wouldn't mind having a pretty girl with a million dollars, do missionary work for them.

The Maburys lived on the Alameda—the historic drive which stretches between San Jose and Santa Clara and where so much of the old Santa Clara County aristocracy made its home. The fine old avenue is rather fallen into decay now but many of the old homes are still fine. It was on the Alameda that the Clarks lived. Like the Maburys, the Clarks were extremely religious and straight-laced and it seemed to some people that they did not get as much fun as might be had out of their money. The father was quite eccentric and pulled down the house in which he lived once or twice because its architecture did not suit him. There were three Clark girls and then, after an interval of many years, a boy was born and over him the entire family went wild—they were so glad to have someone to perpetuate the name. But the little chap was the son of the the parents no longer young and, though he survived his father and mother, he did not live to be more than ten or twelve and, dying, left his large estate to be divided among three sisters. Two of these girls are married now. One, who attended Stanford University, Miss Grace, married a Chicago man and lives in the East and the eldest and cleverest in a business way, Mrs. Jerome Hart, is the wife of the clever owner of the Argonaut and is a very talented woman herself. She studied law that she might manage her estate and general business affairs more intelligently and, after devoting three years to this arduous pursuit and receiving her degree, she made a trip around the world and has, since her marriage, traveled much with her talented husband. Mrs. Hart was the owner of the building occupied by the Studebakers and partially destroyed by fire this week. She owns many buildings in San Francisco and her income must be very large. The Clark Building on Market and Front street was built for the little boy but is now the property of the Clark estate.

THE LATEST THING IS TO GO BAREHEADED.

It is the latest thing to go bareheaded in the morning and to drive or "auto" with elbow-sleeved shirtwaists, or with sleeves rolled up to the elbows. The result will be the brownest crop of faces and forearms ever seen in society—and they will all be on display this winter. The belles of Newport started it and of course we follow suite. It is a little hard, of course, on the girls who freckle, for their burning is anything but picturesque and reminds one of a Tahoe trout. The girls at San Rafael are all doing it, led by Miss Helen de Young and Miss Mabelle Toy. And, by the way, San Rafael is very fashionable again this summer. It is one of the few nearby places and as these are the only places where it seems possible to induce men to come, the girls are naturally and sensibly enjoying their proximity to town. Many of them are wearing very beautiful gowns this year and among those who are the best dressed are Miss Helen Dean, Mrs. Henry Klerstedt (Miss Edith McBean) and Miss Mabelle Toy. They all ride and drive a great deal and many of them have their own automobiles. The presence of the de Youngs at Meadowlands has added much to the gaiety of the town for this big country place has been closed for a number of years. The de Youngs expect to go East in September but will return in December or January. Upon their return from the East, Mr. and Mrs. John P. Young will leave for a four mounths' trip in Europe. Mr. Young is the managing editor of the Chronicle.

BLANCHE BATES IN MARIN COUNTY.

One of the sights of Marin County this week has been Miss Blanche Bates, the stunning and athletic young actress, whizzing about the country roads in Mr. Richard Hotaling's automobile Miss Bates has been spending a week at Mr. Hotaling's place, "Sleepy Hollow" and has been having a great time. She, too, belongs to the bare-headed brigade for tan is becoming to her, and her eyes and cheeks and lips are bright with health. Miss Bates is accompanied by her chaperone and Mr. Hotaling has been entertaining guests all the week in her honor, among them being Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Sloane, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Deering, Miss Ella Bender, Miss Maren Froelich, Miss Hennessey, Mr. Charles K. Field, Mr. John Housman, Dr. and Mrs. Russell Cool and Mrs. Lucie May Hayes.

There is a charming reference to Mr Hotaling's place in the last number of the Philistine, a result, I suppose, of Elbert Hubbard's enjoyable visit there.

HOUSE PARTIES IN THE NAPA VALLEY.

Many people with houses in the Napa Valley entertained large parties over the Fourth of July. Among others, Mr. and Mrs. Horace Blanchard Chase entertained several people at their charming home, Stag's Leap. Later, Mr. and Mrs. Chase will go to Tahoe. The Horatio P. Livermores have closed their house on Russian Hill for the present and are at Calistoga at their country home, where there is such delightful swimming, to say nothing of the riding and driving. The Livermores are also entertaining a large party. The Joseph Sadoc Tobins, at their home in Napa Valley have a constant succession of guests. Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Magee, Jr., go up next week and will stay for three months.

LOW COIFFURES COMING IN.

The latest thing in hair dressing is the low coiffure. High Hair is no longer au fait in New York and everyone is winding or braiding the hair low on the neck. Or the braid may be worn down the back of the head if you prefer—anything so long as the effect is given that the hair is coiled on the neck. Pompadours are still worn by fashionable New York women but they are neither so full nor so fluffy as of yore and the size at the side is much reduced. Parted hair is coming in chiefly with the parting at the side—and even then the hair is puffed out at either side of the part. Bows are worn with the low hair and these certainly give a very girlish look to the face if it has preserved any of its youthful curves or symmetry.

WILLIAM KEITH'S TROUBLES.

Mrs. Lamar, a sister of Mrs. William Keith, is very ill at the home of the Keiths in Berkeley. Mrs. Lamar's trouble is an organic one of the heart and it is feared that she cannot recover. Her illness troubles Mr. Keith very much—so much so that he has not put brush to canvas for three months. To add to this discomfort, the dog poisoner is abroad in Berkeley and last week poisoned Mr. Keith's favorite dog—a pet of many years' standing—and a pointer whom everyone in Berkeley, except the nameless miscreant, knew and loved. It broke Mr. Keith up completely, for the dog had been a member of the family for years.

⁂ ⁂ ⁂

LUNCHEON TO MRS. FORBES.

Mrs. James Forbes of New York, was the motif of a pretty little luncheon given this week at which Mrs. Frank Deering was the hostess. This was the first luncheon given by Mrs. Deering since she moved into the new house which the Deerings have been constructing ever since their marriage several months ago. The house is a beautiful and large one, beautifully located as its windows command Tamalpais, the Golden Gate, Alcatraz and the Contra Costa. The interior is so artistic and so beautifully fitted up with the carloads of old mahogany which the Deerings found in New Orleans and the many beautiful wedding presents which we saw in November that there is little need of floral decoration. The luncheon was, however, a blue one, with pale blue, and lavender larkspur ornamenting the bare mahogany table, blue name cards, almond boxes and all the numberless little dainty accessories. The guests were Mrs. Garret McEnerney, Mrs. Margaret Cameron, Miss Ella Bender and Miss Blanche Partington. We are all hoping that when Mrs. Deering sends out cards this fall it will be for a big tea or something so that we all will have an opportunity to see the attractive home.

⁂ ⁂ ⁂

MISS PERKINS AND MRS. BARRACLOUGH.

There have been rumors going the rounds lately, that Mrs. John Barraclough was to accompany Miss May Perkins to Europe, and to Japan, but I hear now that the rumor is entirely without foundation. It seems Mrs. Barraclough had made some very indefinite plans for travel, but had not really decided to go, and I believe that Miss Perkins also thought of traveling, and in some way the two names were associated. Mrs. Barraclough is at present in Los Angeles, but expects to return to Oakland some time in the fall.

⁂ ⁂ ⁂

PART OF ESTATE COMES HERE.

I saw notice of the death of Dixey Thompson, some time ago, a man who is well known in Southern California, and I saw also that the Lacys of Santa Barbara, who are related to the Braytons of Oakland, received a large portion of his estate. I think this is the family of Lacys to which Miss Georgy Lacy belongs, and as Miss Georgy is a very charming girl already, some will find her doubly charming, now that she has such a large portion of this world's goods. I believe she is spending the summer in Santa Barbara, but will probably spend at least a part of the winter with the J. O. B. Gunns in San Francisco.

⁂ ⁂ ⁂

VAST DIFFERENCE IN ENTERTAINING.

We were discussing the vast difference in the way that different women entertain house parties. There is the hostess who plans entertainment for every hour—ride at such a time, then drive, then swim, till one feels that they are being rushed through a Cook's tour. Then there is the good soul who puts in most of her waking hours assuring you that she knows you aren't having a good time, till you become firmly convinced that you aren't enjoying yourself, and never could in her company.

But last of all, and best, is the hostess who asks you to do as you please, and who does likewise herself.

I even know one, who, when she has a houseful of guests, occasionally takes a day off, as she calls it, to drive about and pay some of her country calls, or to spend in reading or amusing herself in her own way, and her guests do the same.

And I notice that there's rarely any difficulty in getting together a house party for that particular place, and that even elusive man flocks there in numbers.

Playing hostess, whether it be a house party, or at a luncheon, or with two or three friends of an evening, is certainly an art. And an art to the cultivation of which girls should devote much more time and thought than they do.

In some schools social training is included, but for those who have not naturally the requirements for a hostess, and who have not the opportunity to attend such schools, I think classes in social training would be very acceptable.

They should be conducted by a woman who has had experience of entertaining, or at least who has been extensively entertained and who is familiar with the many awkward situations which arise and which must be met with tact or what is next to it, an acquired knowledge of what is good form. There is always the society girl who goes for a number of seasons, often a charmingly refined girl, who finds it necessary to be partially independent, and to some one of these I should suggest that a class be formed where young girls, about to enter society, be coached as to the proper way of getting in and out of a tea.

For I assure you, some of us have but the haziest idea of what is really good form in that respect. And that is but one of a hundred things in which she should be cultivated.

If anyone has any doubts as to whether it is needed, just keep your eyes and ears open at the next tea, especially among the girls who are in their first or second season, and take account of the lack of courtesy, of common civility among them. I do not believe in old-world methods of completely subduing children, but I think our ultra-American custom of allowing young folks to consider themselves the superiors of those advanced in age, might be greatly improved, if, in many cases, we modified it with a goodly quantity of old-world courtesy.

Of course the argument might be brought forward that this is merely superficial gloss—not the respect shown to age, but the acquirement of many of these courtesies—and if so, why not? We are careful of the polish on our inlaid floors, and our old mahogany, then why not on our children?

If a girl is spoiled by that sort of training, she is a fool at heart, and it would have come out sometime or other, and in the meantime she would be much more agreeable with a few of the rough edges smoothed off.

⁂ ⁂ ⁂

THAT BROKEN ENGAGEMENT.

There has been a broken engagement lately which is creating such a hum of gossip, as we have rarely known, and the reason that it is making so much talk, is because there has been no reason given for it.

I quite agree that it is absolutely the girl's own affair, but when a couple are as well known as those two, they must expect that people are going to wonder, especially as everyone has nothing but good to say of either of them, and that in every way it seemed such an ideal match. But if the man in the case is no more heart-broken over it than the girl appears to be, then they were wise to break it now.

⁂ ⁂ ⁂

CAMPING IN THE COUNTRY.

Harry Farr and one of the younger Sharon boys are camping somewhere on the Yuba river, and Mrs. Farr and the small boy are at Piedmont. I think Mrs. Sharon is expected to return from the East within a few weeks, and I believe that her mother, Mrs. Mygatt is already at home.

Of course Mrs. Sharon will be delighted to see her little grandson, and we'll hope he will be as attractive as little Frances Allen, her other grandchild, for they say Frances is a beauty, not the frail, fair type of her mother, but a rosy, sturdy little girl, with a quantity of curly auburn hair.

⁂ ⁂ ⁂

HAVE YOU MET THE APOLOGIZING WOMAN.

Have you met the apologizing woman? There's a number of her; she's a type, and I think she's plentiful in Oakland. Whenever you call upon her, no matter how she's gowned, she apologizes for being caught in such a state, till she firmly impresses you with the unpleasant conviction that you're trespassing.

If she has children she apologizes for their overalls, for their soiled hands and faces, in fact, for all that is apparent of them. As if one didn't know that a reasonable amount of dirt is natural to childhood, and decidedly healthful.

If one could only take her aside and convince her that her apologies are wearisome, that they are wretchedly bad form, and that there are other topics fit for conversation save the dirt on Johnnie's hands, or the fact that she hasn't her best gown on, how much more interesting she would be.

She's on a par with the woman who does her own housework, not because it is really necessary, but because she has a parsimonious streak in her, and then instead of being honest about it and giving the real reason for it, lays it to the difficulty of getting suitable help. There is no use trying to put a valuation on yourself, for people are bound to see through shams, and form their own idea of you.

⁂ ⁂ ⁂

TRAVELERS ARE HOME AGAIN.

A number of our travelers are home again. I met Anita Oliver and Marietta Havens the other day. They're just home from Honolulu, you know, where they have been visiting for a number of months. Anita is just as pretty and bright as ever, and I hear she was as great a favorite down there as she is at home. She has an unusually charming manner, I think, and the trip must have done her worlds of good, and the climate must have agreed with her, for it didn't succeed in taking away her bright coloring. Marietta is very much tanned, and that climate does certainly play havoc with some complexions.

MRS. A. B. NYE, WIFE OF A. B. NYE, SECRETARY TO GOVERNOR PARDEE.

MRS. W. T. VEITCH.

SETTLED IN THEIR COSY HOMES.

I hear that Mr. and Mrs. Maxwell Taft are settled in their cosy little house, out on the Adams Tract. It's a mingled house, and I suppose will be very prettily fitted up, for doubtless Mr. Taft will bring them some pretty things, and then Florence had almost enough beautiful wedding presents to furnish a house. I believe their other house was rented or sold right over their heads, and that is what decided Mr. Taft to build for them so soon. It must be discouraging to think you are settled, and then have to move out at a minute's notice.

THEY ROUGHED IT IN THEIR TRIP.

Other travelers that I meant to mention, are Mr. and Mrs. Dan Belden, who are home from a month's trip to the Shasta regions. I believe they roughed it, and lived out of doors most of the time. They are staying at present at the Belden's home on Oak street, waiting until their own home is completed. Mrs. H. K. Belden and Miss Nadine and Daisy are at Raymonds in the Santa Cruz Mountains.

INTEREST TAKEN IN ELA HUMPHREYS.

How much interest attaches itself to Ela Humphreys, who is playing a long engagement at the Macdonough, because she was an Oakland school girl. I haven't been to see her yet, but I've passed her on the street, once or twice, and I am anxious to see how she appears on the stage. She has the lofty manner and Anglicized speech that a great many young actresses affect, and I cannot imagine her in a part that calls for a natural, unaffected woman. However, I may be greatly mistaken in her, and I'm living in hopes of being agreeably disappointed.

AN OUTSIDER'S POINT OF VIEW.

It is interesting, sometimes, to get an outsider's point of view on our local celebrities. Perhaps local isn't the correct word, for in many cases, although their dwelling place is here, their fame is widespread. When Elbert Hubbard visited Oakland, on his lecturing tour, some weeks ago, he made a pilgrimage to visit Joaquin Miller, and here are some of the things he said about the poet and his surroundings:

"He wrote the greatest poem ever written by an American. He lives at Oakland, 'on the heights,' and his name is Joaquin Miller. . . . We followed the road up the hillside. The day was one of God's own, done by hand, just to show what He could do. The sun was warm and bright; a gentle breeze, cool and refreshing, blew in with messages from the sea. The road wound around the hill, and led upward by a gentle rise—back and forth, around and back, and soon we saw the roadway over which we had passed, a hundred feet below, with gardens between. Gardens everywhere. Gardens lined off with boxwood and fenced with nodding roses. Just above were orange and acacia trees, white with blossoms that showered their petals upon the passer-by. And still we climbed. . . . We have been walking nearly two hours, and must have come five miles. The road skirts through a dense mass of dwarfed oak that covers the driveway as the elms arch Chapel street in New Haven, only more so. 'It is like this,' said preacher Ten; and then he began to explain to me the law of Paradox. 'The collection will now be taken,' came a deep bass voice from out the greeny gloom of the close growing oaks. We started, looked, and there on a seat, not twenty feet away sat the poet. You could never mistake him—he looks like no other man on earth; personality surrounds him like an aura. . . . Joaquin Miller is the most charming poseur on this terrestrial ball, but he has posed so long and so well that his poses have now become natural, so he is no longer a poseur. . . . When you visit Joaquin Miller, you are not shown to your room—you are given a house. The poet puts his head out of the door and gives an ("Alleohiah-alahoohoo-oo!") and out hops an Oriental all dressed in white, and takes you to your cottage. You perform your ablutions (I trust I use the right word) at the spring or the horse trough, and when you get back that heathen Chinee has opened your suit case, brushed your clothes, hung out your night shirt, placed half a bushel of cut roses on the table, and disappeared. In ten minutes he comes back to tell you in pigeon English that supper is ready.

"The dining room is in one of the cottages, set apart for a kitchen. The Chinee is a superb cook. Our table is set out under an arbor of roses, and we have vegetables to spare, and fruits galore, and nuts to crack, and a tin bucket of milk cooled in the running water of the spring, and loaves of brown bread which we break up in chunks; but there is no meat."

The poem that Elbert Hubbard refers to as the greatest ever written by an American is, "Columbus," but I won't take space to copy it.

WHERE PHANTOM SHIPS TOSS ON THE TIDE.

And how did our own Richard Hotaling break into the public print in the classic pages of the Philistine? But he did, and this is what Elbert Hubbard says of him in the July number:

"Just beyond Richardson's Bay, where phantom ships toss on the tide and wait for cargoes that never come, is San Rafael, and Dick Hotaling's ranch—fairest of playthings—three thousand acres—belonging to Dick and his friends, where plates are always placed for me and the Cubiet, and chants from the Good Stuff are done in minor key as the sun goes down through the Golden Gate, with Dick's permission."

MRS. PARCELLS ENTERTAINS.

One day last week, Mrs. Charles Parcells entertained a number of friends quite informally in a charming manner. It was in the afternoon, and afterwards, they went into the garden, where refreshments were served on little tables under the trees.

WILL SHE GIVE UP HER CHOICE?

A year or two ago, a certain young lady quite prominent in society circles was whisked off to Europe quite unceremoniously, and very unexpectedly to the young lady herself, and to a certain well-known young lawyer in Oakland. The story leaked out, as such stories have a way of doing, that it was because of the attentions of this young lawyer that the young lady was sent traveling at a moment's notice. Now she is back in New York again, en route for home, and one wonders if she has decided to give up the man in question, or if the family have become reconciled to him. It will be interesting to watch developments.

MRS. SHARON IS HOME AGAIN.

Mrs. W. E. Sharon has returned from her Eastern trip, stopping on her way home at Reno, Nevada, where she joined Mr. Sharon, and where, I believe there were very extensive Fourth of July celbrations. I believe the Sharons were entertained by the Governor of Nevada, and it was a most interesting finish to a very extensive trip.

GARDEN FETE AT MRS. WETHERBEE'S.

I see that July 14th is the date set for the garden fete at Mrs Henry Wetherbee's beautiful home in Fruitvale, for the benefit of the Ladies' Guild of the Fruitvale Congregational Church. The Wetherbee grounds are ideal for a garden party, for they are on a level, and there are great stretches of lawn, and beyond, fields that are uncultivated, and just the place for children to play, without fear of trampling flower beds and lawns. The place is old enough to have fine old trees, and the shade is grateful these hot summer days. I wonder why we find so much fault with the warm weather. I remember, just before it came, that every other person I met groaned, about the cold spring and the fog, and then we had some good old summer weather, they kept right on groaning. I've discovered that the harder one works, provided they don't have to stay out in the hot sun, the less they feel the hot weather. I guess it is so with most kinds of weather, if one has something to occupy their hands and minds, the weather is of minor importance. But to return to the Wetherbee fete, the list is not given out, but one may safely say that among those receiving will probably be Mrs. Farnham, Mrs. David Edwards, and a number of her Fruitvale neighbors, among whom are: Mrs. E. B. Sanborn, Miss Grace Sanborn, Miss Laura Sanborn, Mrs. C. C. Clay and Margaret Sinclair, Mrs. Albright, Miss Violet Albright, Mrs. Marwedel and Miss Elsie Marwedel, Mrs. Hinckley, the Misses Plow, Mrs. Wellman, the Misses Wellman, Mrs. Cohen, Mrs. Bray, Miss Ada and Isabel Kenna, Mrs. Valentine Hush and Miss Florence Hush. If a large receiving party has not been planned, doubtless many of these will call during the afternoon, to aid the Guild, and to enjoy Mrs. Wetherbee's hospitality.

MRS. JULIUS J. HENDRICKS, ONE OF THE BRIDES OF THE WEEK. SHE WAS MISS MAY I FERGUSON.—(Photo—Belle-Oudry.)

MR. AND MRS. STRATTON GO SOUTH.

I hear that Mr. Frederick Stratton and Mrs. Stratton have gone South for a few weeks, in hopes that Mr. Stratton will get the rest and change necessary to his complete recovery. I think that much of the benefit he might have received from his trip to Japan was lost by overwork on his return. Cornelia Stratton will remain in Oakland, so I hear, so that she may be with the two younger children. One hears that she is a perfect little mother to them, and that she takes much of the trouble and responsibility of them from Mrs. Stratton.

MR. AND MRS LUKENS ENTERTAIN.

Mr. and Mrs. Lukens are entertaining quite a large house party at their home near Shasta. Already Mrs. Hale and Miss Sadie are there, and the latest to join the party is Mrs. Louise Allender.

MRS. GOODALL IS HOME.

Mrs. Charles Minor Goodall has returned from Catalina, with her children. I believe she prefers that resort to any other, for she is very athletic, and there is such splendid swimming and golfing and all kinds of outdoor sports to be enjoyed there. It has just one objection, and that is the short sea trip. It is only of a few hours duration, but it is warranted to make one wish they were safe on land again.

LONGS ARE AT HIGHLANDS.

General and Mrs. Long are still at Highlands, although General Long will return to Washington in the near future. He has had a long rest out here, this summer, and escaped much of the disagreeably hot weather. Mrs. Long will remain some time longer with her mother and the children, and will join him in time for the winter season. I think it must make an interesting life to be able to spend some months of every year in Washington or New York, and then to come home to rest and to enjoy old friends again. You are delighted to see them again, and they to see you, and there's always the freshness of novelty about you.

THE MEDDLER.

UNITED IN MARRIAGE.

At the residence of the bride's parents on Telegraph avenue, Miss Josephine Roller and Edgar L. Hoag were united in marriage last Wednesday evening in the presence only of immediate relatives.

Mrs. Hoag is the daughter of Frank Roller, superintendent of the Giant Powder Works. She resided in Berkeley for many years and graduated from the University with the class of '98. For two years she has been a teacher of English in the Berkeley schools.

Mr. Hoag is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Parker Hoag of Berkeley. He is a member of the real estate firm of Lyon & Hoag of San Francisco.

KURTZ-VERNON WEDDING.

On Wednesday evening, July 8th, at the residence of her father, General George R. Vernon, 1367 Twenty-third avenue, Miss May Vernon became the bride of Charles M. Kurtz. Owing to illness in the family, none but relatives witnessed the ceremony which was performed by Rev. S. E. Parsons of New York, an old friend of the family.

The bride is very popular in Oakland and has a large circle of friends. Mr. Kurtz is employed by the Southern Pacific Company and is one of the engineers in charge of the company's work in Northern Nevada, and in Utah.

After a brief honeymoon the happy couple will reside in Ogden, where Mr. Kurtz's work calls him.

MUSICIAN RETURNED.

John C. Walling, the gifted musician, has just returned from an extended trip in the East, and has resumed his work with the Sherman-Clay Company. While in New York City, Mr. Walling had the honor of going through the Steinway factories with William Steinway. In Boston he was entertained by the Emerson Piano Club, and in Cincinnati he was entertained by members of the John Church Publishing Co., who publish a number of his compositions.

While away Mr. Walling revisited his boyhood home in Iowa after an absence from it of over twenty years.

Mr. and Mrs. McLeod will spend about a month visiting Portland and other northern cities, and on their return will reside at 818 Fourteenth street.

QUIETLY MARRIED.

A very pretty wedding was that of Mrs. Ruth Bird Sunderland and Karl H. Nicol, which took place recently in the First Congregational Church of this city. It was very informal, and the announcement came as a great surprise to even the most intimate friends. Only relatives and a few intimate friends witnessed the ceremony, which was performed by Rev. Charles R. Brown, pastor of the First Congregational Church.

The wedding was to have taken place next year, but Mrs. Charles Nickel and her two daughters were here on a visit from Montana, and it was decided that the wedding should take place before they returned home.

"Karlsruh," the former bachelor apartments of the groom, is being remodeled for the happy bride and groom and gives promise of being one of the prettiest of the many charming Oakland homes.

Mr. and Mrs. Karl Nickel will receive their friends on the first Tuesdays.

LONGS AT HIGHLANDS.

General and Mrs. Oscar Long and children are at Highlands. Many social dates have been planned in their honor, but they are able to accept only a few of them. Mr. and Mrs. Mark Requa entertained at dinner last week in honor of General and Mrs. Long.

Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Requa are expecting to entertain Bishop and Mrs. Whitlaker of Philadelphia, at Highlands this summer.

AN ENJOYABLE EVENING.

A very enjoyable evening was spent at the home of Miss Barbara Overmohle on the Fourth of July, it being the occasion of the young lady's birthday. Music and games were enjoyed until a late hour, when a red, white and blue supper was served. The entire residence was decorated in the National colors.

Those present were the Misses Miriam and Sara White, Caroline Meyer, Mable Wierne, Loretta Simpson, Maud Johnston, Mrs. Susie Overmohle, Barbara Overmohle, Mr. and Mrs. L. R. James, Dr. J. Craig, Sergeants Bert Sargent, Fred Savage, Fred Tomlinson and Corporal Robert Fordney, all of the Nineteenth United States Infantry, Will Joselyn, Joseph Doxey and Louis Overmohle.

MIDNIGHT SUPPER.

Miss Jo Henry gave a midnight supper last evening to a few of her friends. The parlors and dining-room were beautifully decorated, red being the prevailing color. The table was a mass of red carnations and the red candelabra, throwing a brilliant light on the table, made a very effective picture.

The guests included the Misses Mabel and Edith Beers of San Francisco, Miss Alice Cracknell, Miss Lottie Williams, Dwight Hutchinson, Dr. Will Dunn, Teddy Hutchinson of Alameda, Will Hush, Will Bercovich and Fred Butler of San Francisco.

POLICY IS VALID UNTIL IT IS CANCELED

SUPREME COURT RENDERS A DECISION OF IMPORTANCE TO INSURANCE COMPANIES.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 11.—In the case of Emily C. Thomas against the Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance Company, the Supreme Court has rendered a decision of much interest to insurance companies. The court declares that even though premiums be not paid the contract of insurance will be held valid unless the company cancels it.

In this particular case the decedent paid but one premium and at the time of his death owed the company two half yearly premiums.

As the policy was not canceled, the court holds that the company had waived its right to declare the policy forfeited for non-payment, and so must pay the face of the policy to the beneficiary named in it.

PETITION CAUSES RIVALRY

GRAVE DISCUSSION BETWEEN ALL POWERFUL MINISTERS OF RUSSIA.

NEW YORK, July 11.—The American Kishineff petition is causing grave discussion between the Czar's two all-powerful ministers, Dewitte and Plehw, and, according to the St. Petersburg correspondent of the World, the rivalry between them may result in the petition being received.

Dewitte is extremely friendly to the United States and is said to regard any weakening of the good resolutions as a grave error in policy. He is reported to be using his influence toward paving the way for the reception of the petition.

MRS. MITCHELL WILL LEAVE FOR NORTH.

ALAMEDA, July 11.—Mrs. T. J. Mitchell will leave next week for Portland, Or., to join Mrs. Marie Rounds of Grand street, who is already there, and they will together enjoy Willamette country hospitality for a season.

FOUND DEAD IN HIS CELL.

CONVICT WEARY OF PRISON TAKES HIS LIFE.

SALT LAKE, July 11.—Convict E. W. Hamilton, under sentence of three years' imprisonment for murderous assault on a policeman in this city, was found dead in his cell at the State penitentiary this morning.

He had hanged himself during the night with a strap from his bunk.

Hamilton was severely injured during a fight about three months ago with another convict, whom he nearly killed with an iron bar.

Hamilton is said to belong to a prominent family of Sioux City, Iowa.

SHE DIED FROM HER INJURIES.

DENVER, July 11.—Miss Marie Murphy of Pontiac, Ill., whose clothing became ignited on the street in this city yesterday and who was terribly burned, died from her injuries this morning. Opinions differ as to whether the fire was caused by stepping on a match or from a nail in the heel of her shoe producing a spark by striking the stone sidewalk. Her father, John S. Murphy, a banker of Pontiac, arrived from Glenwood Springs today.

NEW FIRE TRUCKS HAVE ARRIVED.

The two combination ladder and chemical trucks for the fire department arrived from the East today. The trucks each cost $2,000 and are of the latest pattern. They have the extension ladders, sixty-gallon chemical tanks, with 250 feet of hose, and are provided with all the appliances for fighting fire. The trucks will each demand a crew of seven men. At present the department has no place to house the trucks, so one is stationed at the Fourteenth street house and the other at the Sixth street house.

ADMIRAL COOK IS RECOVERING.

COMMANDER OF BROOKLYN AT SANTIAGO IS MENDING SLOWLY.

NEW YORK, July 11.—Rear-Admiral Francis A. Cook, who commanded the cruiser Brooklyn during the battle off Santiago, is slowly recovering from a long illness in the Naval Hospital, Brooklyn. He was attacked by the grippe early last September and the disease seriously affected his heart and kidneys.

Dr. D. D. CROWLEY IS COMING HOME.

Dr. D. D. Crowley left Chicago last night for Oakland.

ATTACKED THE SHERIFF AND ESCAPED.

NOTORIOUS PRISONER CARRIES OUT A WELL EXECUTED PLAN.

JUNCTION CITY, Kas., July 11.—Gilbert Mullin, the federal prisoner who led the mutiny at the Fort Leavenworth prison in November, 1901, and who has been in the County Jail here for the past year awaiting trial on the charge of having murdered one of the guards in the mutiny, led an assault on Sheriff Dees early today and he, with three others, a white man and two negroes escaped.

The sheriff was overpowered and badly cut about the head but he succeeded in getting the cell door closed before all the prisoners could get out.

The quartet ran through the eastern part of the town toward the river and, compelling a fisherman to row them to the other side, made for the thick timber.

The Sheriff followed in a buggy and posses were quickly organized and joined in the chase. Later soldiers were sent over from Fort Riley to assist in the hunt. Shortly before noon two of the negroes were captured and returned to jail. Sheriff Peeso, although badly wounded, is still leading the searchers. Mullins, who is a negro, is a desperate man and it is expected he will put up a hard fight.

In the Fort Leavenworth outbreak twenty-six prisoners escaped. Mullins and nearly all the others finally being re-captured after a desperate fight, in which Guard J. B. Waldrupe and several of the convicts were killed.

SMASHED WINDOW OF HIS RIVAL.

It has cost Druggist F. Sanderlin of West Oakland just $44 in the past two months to repair windows that have been mysteriously broken in his place of business, each pane of glass costing $4.50, and so often did the breaking of glass occur that Policeman Con Keefe was put on watch near the entrance of Sanderlin's place of business, with the result that Paul N. Hanby, another West Oakland druggist, was caught last night in the act of smashing the front window of his competitor's store. He was taken in custody by Policeman Keefe and booked at the City Prison on a charge of malicious mischief, but later the police learned that the glass was not broken, so the charge of malicious mischief was removed against Hanby, and he was charged with carrying a concealed weapon, for it was with a "black Jack" that he attempted to splinter the pane of glass. Hanby was formerly employed by Sanderlin and considerable feeling exists between them in business life.

SACRED MITRE IN SICK ROOM

NEAPOLITANS LEND THEIR SACRED RELIC TO THE POPE.

ROME, July 11.—In view of the serious condition of the Pope, the Neapolitans have had recourse to their most sacred and seldom used method of rendering him assistance.

St. Gennaro is their greatest saint and his mitre is preserved at Naples.

It is said to work miracles.

The aristocracy and clergy of Naples begged the Archbishop to send the mitre to Rome and he allowed it to leave the city for the first time in many years.

The precious relic was entrusted to Mgr. Prince Carnecioto, who arrived with it safely in Rome today.

At the Vatican the mitre was received by Cardinal Rampolla and Mgr. Bisleti, who, with great ceremony, thanked the Neapolitans for their piety and self-sacrifice in allowing the mitre to come here.

After the Cardinal had invited Mgr. Caracciolo to remain for some days in this city, the sacred relic was deposited in the sick room.

NEGRO IS SHOT BY BARTENDER.

SACRAMENTO, Cal., July 11.—Charles Fouse, a bartender employed in a saloon at 1009 Third street, this morning had a quarrel with Samuel Cousier, a negro, which resulted in Fouse firing a shot. The bullet cut holes in the negro's clothing, but did not strike his body. Fouse was arrested on a charge of assault with intent to commit murder. He was afterwards released under $2,000 bail.

KAPPA ALPHA DANCE.

The active members and alumni of the Kappa Alpha fraternity will entertain their friends this evening at a little informal dance at their fraternity house on Durant avenue.

In view of the fact that this will in all probability be the last entertainment of its kind given before the opening of the coming University term it is an assured fact that all will be done by the "frat" boys to make the evening a merry one and to further the pleasure of their guests that is possible.

The house has been prettily decorated, and after the dance refreshments will be served.

Among those to be present are Miss Whitlock and Miss Hollie Whitlock, Miss Hope White, Miss Margaret Kennedy, Miss Ethel Dorn, Miss Eleanore Hussey of Berkeley, Miss Good and Miss Cunningham of Oakland; Messrs. J. Foxard, Robert Dunphy, Edward Hussey, Lee Kerfort, Frank McConnell, W. H. McBryde, Joseph E. Davidson, Claude E. Gillis, Carl Hinz, Jesse Griffin, Henry George and C. Hanson, F. W. O'Donnell, C. E. Lindley and H. H. Holly.

The young people will be chaperoned by Mrs. A. Cunningham, Mrs. Stanley Dollar and Mrs. Dunphy, assisted by the husbands of the last named ladies, Stanley, Dollar and W. H. Dunphy.

VANDERBILT DOWN AS FAIR

MILLIONAIRE STANDS ALL RIGHT WITH THE UNION MEN.

NEWPORT, R. I., July 11.—Alfred G. Vanderbilt has recognized organized labor in Newport and at headquarters has been put down as "fair." Mr. Vanderbilt was having work done at Oakland, his country place, when differences occurred between the mechanics and the employers.

Mr. Vanderbilt wanted the work done, and after having the situation explained to him, he decided to discharge the contractors who were at odds with their men and become his own master mechanics. He agreed with the painters that he would employ only union men and recognize all union methods, and soon had all the men at work that he could employ.

ATHLETES TO GO WORK

THEY WILL SEEK EMPLOYMENT IN THE HARVEST FIELDS.

NEW YORK, July 11.—Forty young men from the universities, including Yale, Harvard, Princeton, Cornell, Columbia and Lafayette, who are going into the West to aid the farmers in the harvest fields, will leave this city today in a special car bound for Kansas. Said one of them:

"Our intention in going West is to get the invigorating exercise and life in the purest fresh air, that will put us in the best possible condition for the fall work in athletics."

SEVERE ATTACK OF RHEUMATISM.

ALAMEDA, July 11.—A severe attack of rheumatism is keeping W. Gorham of the Gorham Rubber Company closely confined to his home on Versailles avenue.

URGENT LETTERS FOR MORE TROOPS.

NEW YORK, July 11.—Urgent letters received from Tetuan are requisitioning all available troops, according to a Times dispatch from Tangier by way of London. The town is threatened by a division of the Pretender's forces, and few troops are available. The Sultan is negotiating a loan of $4,000,000 in France.

UNION OF CHURCH SOCIETIES

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVORS LAUNCH MOVEMENT LOOKING TO AMALGAMATION.

DENVER, July 11.—A movement of signal importance in the religious world has been launched by the Christian Endeavor convention, now in session here. It is a tentative proposal to work for the amalgamation of the Christian Endeavor Society, the Epworth League and the Baptist Union, and it will be presented in the form of a petition from the Endeavorers to the other two national bodies.

In taking the initiative in the advocacy of such union the Christian Endeavor Society points to its priority of establishment as justification.

TO EVANGELIZE THE WORLD.

"To Evangelize the World," this is the keynote of the pleas of the noted ministerial orators of this country and of England, who, by their zeal and eloquence, are stirring the souls of the large audiences which attend the sessions of the International Christian Endeavor convention and the numerous auxiliary meetings. That a definite plan for carrying on the work will be adopted before the convention adjourns is probable.

Complete registered returns of accredited delegates have not yet been compiled, but at the lowest estimate there are now fully 8000 in the city, and the total number of visitors is not less than 20,000.

Sunrise quiet hour services in five city churches at 6 o'clock this morning were attended by thousands of delegates, although they had been occupied until late last night with convention business. From 8:30 to 9:30 sessions of the Christian Endeavor school of methods were held in eight churches.

At 10 o'clock a conference of state, district and local union officers began at Central Presbyterian Church, President Clark presiding. Well considered addresses, containing many valuable suggestions to Christian Endeavor workers were delivered.

Simultaneously the convention proper was in session at the large tent in Camp Endeavor. Rev. Dr. James L. Hill of Salem, Mass., presided.

"Our Resources and How to Develop Them" was the topic of the day, and addresses were made by Rev. Stephen A. Northrop, Kansas City, Mo.; Marshal Black, Palo Alto, Cal.; Miss Anna G. Fraser, Santa Monica, Cal.; George B. Graff, Boston, and others.

Rev. Dr. J. F. Carson of Brooklyn, N. Y., conducted a noon-day evangelistic meeting at Court House Square, a great crowd being present and manifesting much enthusiasm.

A session devoted to the Junior Endeavorers was held in Tent Endeavor this afternoon, "Father" Clark presiding.

Hall' Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. HOLY FATHER'S APPEARANCE IS PAINFUL.

His Face is Excessively Emaciated and His Eyes are Deeply Sunken.

ROME, July 11.—Today brought to a close a full week since Pope Leo was stricken with illness and it found him still battling against death. Last night he enjoyed considerable periods of repose. Dr. Lapponi remained near the sick room throughout the night, but there was little occasion for his services. When Dr. Mazzoni joined him in the sick chamber at 8:30 o'clock this morning they found that their patient had not suffered any serious depression during the night, although the same terrible weakness was still manifest.

The usual bulletin was issued at 9 o'clock and it showed that the conditions in the sick room were practically unchanged, the pulse, temperature and respiration being almost identical with those maintained yesterday. The most cheering feature of the bulletin was the silence concerning any immediate aggravation of pleuritic conditions.

Within the great colonade fronting St Peters, occurred the same gathering of anxious crowds, with steady lines of Cardinals and distinguished members of the diplomatic corps proceeding to the inner court of the Vatican to learn the result of the "doctors'" conference. Even before daylight groups gathered at the entrance seeking the latest information. The weather conditions here are ideal and contribute greatly to the comfort of the patient. Usually Rome reeks in mid-summer with the fierce heat of the sun and exhalation from the surrounding marshes, but now the elements are lending every encouragement toward the recovery of the illustrious patient. The sun shines from a cloudless sky and the heat is tempered by balmy westerly breezes. The temperature seldom rises over 85 degrees fahrenheit during the day, and the nights are refreshingly cool.

An affecting interview has occurred between the Pontiff, Cardinal Satolli and three other Cardinals representing various degrees of the sacred college.

Cardinal Satolli and his companions were admitted to the presence of the Pope as a special favor, following his earnest entreaties. In the gentlest manner Cardinal Macchi, speaking for all, told the Pontiff of the universal interest taken in the condition, adding: Prayers are going up everywhere that the Lord may preserve for the benefit of the church the precious life of Your Holiness.

"I thank Your Eminence," replied the Pope. "It will be as God wishes; we must submit to His holy will," so saying the sufferer pressed the hand of each of the Cardinals as they withdrew. One of the Cardinals present at the interview spoke afterwards of the remarkable changes that had been wrought since he had last seen the Pontiff, only last Sunday night, when extreem unction was administered to His Holiness. The Cardinal said:

"The appearance of the Holy Father is intensely painful. He maintains mental acumen, but his brave spirit is terribly broken. This was especially apparent to me, who am used to seeing him often. I have observed a great change in his physical condition during the last five days. His words are now uttered with difficulty and he raises his hand only after an effort. His face is excessively emaciated and his eyes are deeply sunken. His extreme weakness is evident at the first glance; there remains only a shadow of the man."

The congregation of the Sacred Rights was to assemble in the presence of the Pope July 13, Joan of Arc's title to a heroic degree for sanctification, but the condition of the Pontiff will compel the abandonment of the meeting and the determination of the saintly statues of John of Arc.

England, being, with the United States, the only countries without a representative at the Vatican. King Edward made inquiries regarding the condition of the Pope through Monsignor Stonor, the Archbishop of Trebisonde.

Pope Leo shows great interest in hearing that his testamentary desires shall be carried out. He has specifically designated Cardinal Rampolla, Monsignor Mocarl and Cardinal Cretoni to see that every detail should be carried out as he desired. These arrangements relate to the circumstances and place of burial and also to his bequests and the provisions of his will, which have been drawn up.

RICH MINE IN THE VICINITY OF LIVERMORE.

ALVINZA HAYWARD IS THE PRINCIPAL OWNER IN THE PLACE.

LIVERMORE, July 11.—Superintendent Newhall is jubilant over a strike made at the Phoenix quicksilver mine on July 3. It is so extensive that there no longer remains a doubt that the mine is the richest yet uncovered in California.

The mineral belt, which includes Red Mountain, was known to a few to be rich in several kinds of minerals, but the last strike has gone even beyond the dreams of the early prospectors. The principal owner of this mine is Alvinza Hayward, the well-known mining man and capitalist. He has always had great faith in the Livermore mountains as a mineral belt, and it is a source of gratification to him that his judgment has been so thoroughly vindicated, not only that such enterprise deserves reward, but from the more selfish standpoint that the discovery will have a great bearing on the future prosperity of this community, to which this mineral belt is directly tributary.

It was at the end of the 1200-foot tunnel that the vein was struck on July 3. This vein has since been penetrated, showing a thickness of forty-seven feet of ore.

The ledge was again encountered in driving an air shaft on a higher level, and as it is well developed even near the surface, there is undoubtedly a very large deposit of cinibar. Though the ore is what Mr Newhall terms low grade, worth about $15 a ton, yet, existing as it does in such large quantities and so easily worked, it promises to be immensely profitable. One oven for the reduction of ore is already under construction and 1,000,000 more brick is in the kilns for the second one. At the time work was commenced on the first oven Colonel Hayward stated that if the main ledge, when struck, was sufficiently large to warrant it, five ovens would be erected.

Mr. Newhall stated to a TRIBUNE reporter that he had not had an interview with the Colonel since the phenomenal strike, but he was prepared to hazard a guess that before three months would elapse at least 300 men would be employed at the mine. Mr. Hayward has consistently refused several tempting offers for the property, and will not even sell a share in the mine. To all offers he has replied that it was not a stock proposition and he was amply able to finance it himself. The surveyors at work on the new road to top this extensive mineral belt state that the grade is very satisfactory.

County Surveyor Prather, who was in town last week, stated that the work of surveying and estimating would be hastened, and that when the contract is let he will use his utmost endeavors to urge the work to early completion.

QUIET WEDDING.

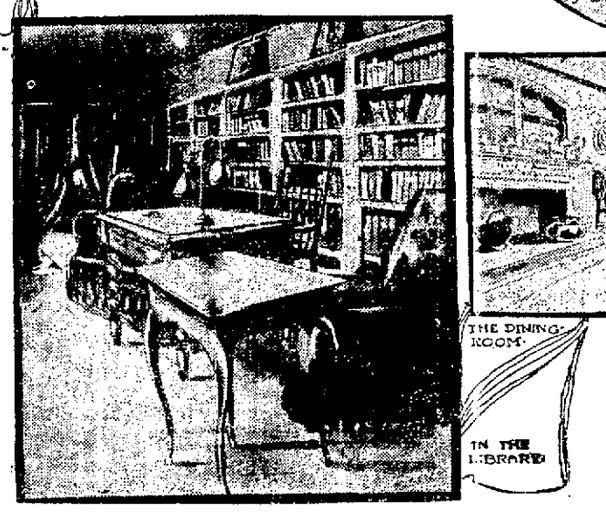

A very quiet wedding was solemnized at the home of Israel Horton at noon Thursday. The ceremony which united the destinies of Miss Ellie M. Horton and William J. M. Denis of San Francisco, was performed by the Rev. J. B. Stone in the presence of the immediate relatives of the contracting parties. Mr. and Mrs. Denis took their departure on the 2:05 o'clock train for their honeymoon.

The bride is the only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Horton. She was born in Livermore and all her life has been passed in this community. She is an accomplished and amiable young lady and will grace the home of her husband, who is a leading business man of San Francisco, being manager of the large grocery firm of Rathjen Bros.

PAINTER ACCUSED OF ATTACK ON GIRL

J. H. ANDERSON IN CUSTODY ON SUSPICION OF HAVING ASSAULTED CHILD.

J. H. Anderson, a painter, aged 38 years, and a man of family, was arrested shortly after 7 o'clock this morning by Detective Albert Shorey. He is accused of having enticed Helen Kiegley, the seven-year old daughter of Mrs. C. H. Kiegley of 907 Eighteenth street into a vacant house on Linden street, between Eighteenth and Nineteenth streets, about 7 o'clock this morning and there assulated her.

Anderson, who is being held at the City Prison while the police are investigating, says he saw the child enter the house, but denies that he was there with her.

Anderson has been employed the past few days in painting a house next to the Kiegley residence and while Helen Kiegley and her companions watched him at work he formed an acquaintance with her.

This morning Mrs. Kiegley had occasion to send her daughter to the grocery store a few blocks away. The child, according to her story to the police, passed by where Anderson was at work. He dropped his brush and followed her.

When out of sight of the Kiegley residence, Anderson accosted the child and offered her 10 cents to accompany him to the vacant house. The child consented.

In a few moments she came running from the building and told her mother a story that resulted in Mrs. Kiegley telephoning to the police and Detective Shorey placed Anderson under arrest.

PEOPLE SLEEP IN PARKS OF NEW YORK.

POLICE ORDERED NOT TO DISTURB THEM DURING THE NIGHT.

NEW YORK, July 11. — Thousands of people slept peacefully in the parks of Greater New York during the night despite the heat, secure in the knowledge that no policemen would awake them and drive them back to their over-live tenements, lodging-houses and thickly-populated apartment buildings.

One of the most rigid police rules was ordered suspended and the officers in all boroughs were notified to see that no orderly person availing himself of the privilege was disturbed.

The suspension of the rule will continue during the heated term.

It had become almost imperative that some such relief measure should be taken by the city officials. Men and boys had been sleeping for two nights on benches and lawns all over the city in violation of the police regulations, and as a general thing the patrolmen have not the heart to disturb them.

STOLE IN ORDER TO BUY MEDICINE FOR BRIDE.

German Lieutenant Goes Home in Proper Style Instead of to Prison for Theft.

NEW YORK, July 11.—Stealing a blanket to buy 15 cents' worth of medicine for his bride, instead of meaning prison for him, has brought money, friends and a trip home to Lieutenant Freidburg, formerly an officer in the German army.

The lieutenant was arrested a few days ago on the charge mentioned. He admitted the theft and the case was held up pending investigation of his story.

When it was called again a probation officer said to the magistrate: "The prisoner was a lieutenant in the German army on furlough. I find that he is of excellent family and has a splendid record at home. His father is colonel of an infantry regiment stationed at Hanover, and when this young man came here with his bride early in the year he had plenty of money.

"When his money was gone his wife became ill and he tried to get employment as a teacher of languages. He was in debt to his landlady and his sixteen trunks had been held up at one boarding house. It was impossible for him to get a cent. He had been getting money from home, through the German consul, but the remittance had failed to come.

"He had a prescription for his wife that he could not get filled. The medicine would have cost only 15 cents. Being desperate he took a blanket from the rooms where he and his wife were staying to pawn shop. All he asked on the blanket was 15 cents, just enough to buy the medicine.

"Now they have received a remittance from home and I have raised additional funds which will enable them to sail at once for home."

The lieutenant's plea of guilty was withdrawn, the magistrate dismissed the charge, and the couple will sail for their native country today.

HOTEL FOR TOURISTS TO BE ERECTED.

Handsome New Structure With Spacious Grounds Will Overlook Golden Gate From Berkeley.

BERKELEY, July 11.—Berkeley will soon have a new hotel. Graders are now at work cutting streets through the old Glascock property in Strawberry Canyon and it was announced today that an electric line would branch from Telegraph avenue and lead to its gates.

The project is being backed by Louis Titus, a well-known local capitalist. The hotel will be located in the Glascock tract east of Strawberry avenue, better known as Such's road. The grounds for the new hostelry have been partially laid out and twenty thousand dollars have already been expended in the beautifying of the park.

The building itself will cost two hundred thousand dollars and will be the handsomest hotel this side of the bay. It will contain a hundred guest chambers.

The main approach to the hotel grounds will be Dwight Way up which the street car line will be run to the gates on Strawberry avenue. The panoramic view of the new hotel will be magnificent. From the site all Berkeley, Oakland and the bay are stretched out and the possibilities of the place are unlimited.

Mr. Titus is at present out of town and will be gone two weeks on a vacation. Upon his return the work of building will be begun at once.

CHOOSES AN ARMY CAREER.

YOUNG UNIVERSITY STUDENT LEAVES BOOKS FOR MUSKET AND KNAPSACK.

BERKELEY, July 11.—William McCleave, the youngest son of Captain William McCleave of 1515 Walnut street, has decided to follow the career of his sire and has enlisted in the regular army. Until recently, young McCleave was a student at the University of California, where he is a member of the Theta Delta Chi fraternity.

McCleave has two brothers, who have attained distinction in army circles, having risen from the position of privates to commissioned officers. These are Captain Robert McCleave and Lieutenant Edward McCleave, both of whom saw service in the Spanish-American war.

WERE MARRIED AT HOME.

MISS MAY WISEMAN AND CURT DAVIS JOINED IN WEDLOCK.

BERKELEY, July 11.—The wedding of Miss May Wiseman and Curt Davis took place recently at the home of the bride's parents, 1830 Shattuck avenue. The Rev. E. W. York, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, was the officiating clergyman. Miss Geneva Wiseman, the younger sister of the bride, was bridesmaid and Frank Sherran was best man. The wedding was followed by a reception, to which 100 guests were invited.

Mr. Davis is a graduate of the University of California, having been a member of the class of '98, and is now engaged as an electrical engineer in San Francisco. His bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Wiseman and a well-known member of Berkeley society.

STREET OPENING IS ASSURED.

WALNUT STREET TO BE CUT THROUGH TO UNIVERSITY AVENUE.

BERKELEY, July 11.—A third attempt to open Walnut street is under way and it now looks as though the project would be successful. At present Walnut street is the only thoroughfare between the central and northern portions of the city that is not obstructed with either a steam road or an electric car line. The local trains operate on Shattuck avenue, while Oxford street, which skirts the university grounds, has two lines of rails.

Upon the occasion of the two previous attempts to open Walnut street, serious opposition was encountered on the part of property owners, who entertained the idea that they would be assessed $250 per lot for the work of improvement. Town Engineer Huggins has announced that the work can be done for one-tenth of that amount and it is now believed that the project will go through.

The petition which is now being circulated among the property owners in the Walnut street section, is being signed with enthusiasm, and the document will contain a long list of names when presented to the board at its next meeting.

SMALL BOY, BIG EXPLOSIVE, LEG LOST FOR LIFE.

Guy Lewis Strikes a Torpedo With a Hammer and Will Probably Lose His Limb.

BERKELEY, July 11.—A small boy exploded a railroad torpedo by striking it with a hammer yesterday, and it is feared he will lose his leg in consequence. Curiosity led twelve-year-old Guy Lewis, living at Fourth and Holyoke streets, West Berkeley, to see how much of an explosion it would make and flying pieces of the shell passed through his left leg above the knee, tearing away the flesh and leaving the limb in such a condition that little hope is held out of saving it.

The lad had been playing along the railroad track and found several torpedoes, about the size of dollars, used to warn approaching trains. He successfully opened one of them and inspected its contents, taking the rest along with him. When he reached home he decided to investigate still further, and placing one of them on a rock in his yard, struck it a sound blow with a hammer.

CITIZENS AFTER CONCESSIONS.

THEY CIRCULATE PETITIONS AMONG THE COMMUTERS IN ALAMEDA.

ALAMEDA, July 11.—Members of the Board of Trade and of the West End Improvement Association have prepared for circulation among voters and commuters petitions requesting that the City Trustees grant the two franchises sought by the Southern Pacific Company for its local lines only on certain conditions and on the agreement of the corporation to make several desired concessions.

First the petitioners ask that it be stipulated that the Southern Pacific shall carry local passengers without charge on the south side road between High street and West Alameda, and on the north side between Park street and Mastick station. It is further requested that the stations be replaced at Second avenue and Webster street, that the old track be removed from Railroad avenue west to Fifth street, and that if these requests are not embodied the rejecting or accepting of the franchises as framed by the City Trustees be left to the voters by referendum, it also being understood that no franchises be granted for a longer term than five years.

Halvor Hauch and Henry Rosenthal of the Board of Trade and Charles R. Smith and H. G. Mehrtens of the West End Improvement Association will direct the circulation of the petitions, which are to be presented to the City Trustees one week from tonight, when there will be an open meeting of citizens with the City Trustees to again discuss the applications for franchises by the Southern Pacific Company.

COLLIDED WITH A CAR.

AN ALAMEDA GIRL MEETS WITH A PAINFUL ACCIDENT.

ALAMEDA, July 11.—While leisurely wheeling along Santa Clara avenue, Miss Wilhelmina Berthelson of 2303 Santa Clara avenue collided with a west-bound street car yesterday afternoon shortly after 5:30 o'clock.

Miss Berthelson was riding at a moderate rate of speed, and her attention being attracted in another direction she did not observe the approach of the car, which crashed into her wheel.

Motorman E. J. Adams immediately applied the brakes and stopped the car, thus preventing a more serious accident. He and Conductor Wilbert W. Naylor ran to the woman's assistance, and after disentangling her from the wreck of her wheel discovered that she had sustained painful bruises about the body, as well as a severe nervous shock.

Miss Berthelson was taken to her home, near Oak street, where she is at present under the care of a physician.

WEDDING VOWS EXCHANGED.

MISS GENEVIEVE KNOLL AND JAMES OWEN QUIETLY MARRIED.

BERKELEY, July 11.—Miss Genevieve Knoll and James Owen Sully were married Wednesday evening, July 1, at the home of the bride's parents, 1527 Spring street. The wedding vows were exchanged in the presence of Rev. F. L. Hosmer, pastor of the First Unitarian Church. Miss Mabell Knoll, sister of the bride, was the bridesmaid, and Harry W. Knoll, her brother, was best man. It was a quiet, homelike affair, with no company except relatives of the contracting parties. The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert R. Knoll and graduated from the University of California with the class of 1903. Mr. Sully is connected with the Southern Pacific Company.

WHIST TOURNEY AND A DANCE.

Members of Oakland Camp, No. 94, Woodmen of the World, and their friends will play whist next Monday evening at Woodmen Hall, 521 Twelfth street. The committee having the matter in charge announces that it will be a benefit whist tournament and dance and that the public is cordially invited to attend at 25 cents a head. There will be dancing for those who do not care to take part in the more serious pleasure of the evening, while to the devotee of the time-honored game there will be plenty of opportunity for the exercise of his skill.

Judging from the reiterated statement of the man who furnishes reading matter and sweets to passengers on a Jersey suburban train, children are thicker than mosquitoes in that State.

"Don't forget the babies tonight!" he cries as he goes through the train. "They're only 10 cents a box!" And he doesn't even add how many there are in a box.—Judge.

HAYWARDS, SAN LEANDRO, EMERYVILLE, FRUITVALE, GOLDEN GATE

PAY DAY AT THE JUDSON WORKS.

CANNERY AT EMERYVILLE WILL COMMENCE OPERATIONS TUESDAY.

EMERYVILLE, July 11.—A glad and extensive smile is chasing itself all over the faces of the employes of the rolling mills because this is pay day in all the departments. The drawing power of the "mighty dollar" was sufficiently strong, too, to bring in some of those who were having vacation.

CALLED TO THE CITY.

Justice Coburn was called to San Francisco yesterday to attend to some business matters, and during his absence Mrs. Coburn was satisfactorily and gracefully filling the chair her husband occupied as Town Clerk.

FOR WANT OF FRUIT.

The cool weather has prevented the rapid ripening of fruit in the orchards as well as its arrival at the works of the canning company. For this reason the "wheels of industry" did not begin to hum this week. More favorable conditions now prevail, and the officers in charge state that they expect work to commence Tuesday.

MARINER RETURNED.

Billy Hartman arrived at his home port yesterday from Sheep Island, where he went a few days ago with his yacht and some friends on a cruising and picnic excursion. Nothing untoward happened to mar the pleasures of the occasion.

ROCK SHIPMENT.

In this vicinity there is quarried a rock peculiarly fitted for use in furnaces in iron working plants, and quite a lot of it is being used here at home. It goes abroad, also, and yesterday a monster car was being loaded by Tim Morrell for use in the Sacramento shops. An average of three or four cars will be shipped there weekly.

The Yellowstone Valley in 1884 was an alkali desert, supporting only the buffalo and antelope. The area of this valley was estimated at 60,000 acres, all of which was comparatively worthless, which was comparatively worthless, which was reclaimed by means of a system which cost $250,000, or $4.16 per acre. On the small area are nine school districts and school houses; it maintains a pay roll of $275,000 per annum, the aggregate value of the property at this time being estimated at $6,000,000 all of which has been the result of a disbursement of $4.16 per acre.

MANY RESIDENTS OBJECT.

ELMHURST PEOPLE THINK DIRECT TAX FOR SCHOOL TOO BIG A BURDEN.

ELMHURST, July 11.—A number of the residents of this district do not approve of the plan of taxing the property owners this year for the proposed addition to the Jones avenue grammar school. They say they do not object to building the addition, and stand ready and willing to help pay their share of the expense.

The trouble seems to be in the proposed scheme to raise the money by a direct tax. The amount the school trustees ask for is $5500. This the dissenters, allege is too large a sum to raise all at once by direct tax. They think that it would be a more feasible plan to bond the district for the amount of money, and then let the taxpayers pay off the bonds gradually. A direct tax of $5500 apportioned among the property owners would amount to about 55 cents on every $100 valuation. This, they aver, is too heavy a burden on the taxpayers.

A mass meeting will be held next week in Red Men's hall, East Fourteenth street and Mountain View avenue, to consider the matter.

BLOOD POISON.

John Parker, the young grand son of J. R. Parker, of Jones avenue, is suffering from blood poisoning. He had a blister on his right hand and the other day picked it with his thumb nail. Yesterday, the hand swelled up and became very painful. The boy was taken to Oakland, and a physician consulted, who pronounced the trouble to be blood poisoning. The victim is now carrying his arm in a sling.

The lad is just recovering from a painful wound in his left hand, caused by accidently discharging a gun into it.

ULCERATED TEETH.

Miss M. Dean is going around with her head swathed in bandages. She is nursing three ulcerated teeth.

REPAIRS TO MAIL CAR.

Work is progressing rapidly on the repairs to car number 182, that carries the mail between Haywads and Oakland. It is being renovated inside and out, and will present a very handsome appearance in its new coat of white paint when it comes out of the shop next week. New springs, to replace the old useless ones have been installed so that now the car, which formerly was the hardest running one on the Haywards division, will be in better condition than when it was first put on the route.

ATTRACTING ATTENTION.

The suit brought by D. Pestdorf against A. S. Jones, R. Mills, and the Amalgamated Salt Company, is being watched by Haywards people with considerable interest. The plaintiff claims $16,000 damages for the violation of a contract and the destruction of his property. He also asks the court for an injunction to prevent the defendants from further damaging his lands in the Mt. Eden salt marsh, by destroying the levees and permitting fresh water to run into the marsh.

Pears'

Why is Pears' Soap—the best in the world, the soap with no free alkali in it—sold for 15 cents a cake?

It was made for a hospital soap in the first place, made by request, the doctors wanted a soap that would wash as sharp as any and do no harm to the skin. That means a soap all soap, with no free alkali in it, nothing but soap; there is nothing mysterious in it. Cost depends on quantity; quantity comes of quality.

Sold all over the world.

HAYWARDS SCHOOL RANKS HIGH.

THE HIGH SCHOOL STANDS WELL IN OPINION OF THE UNIVERSITY.

HAYWARDS, July 11.—Principal Gamble, of the local high school, feels very much gratified with the standing of the school compared with others throughout the State. Although one of the smallest in California, yet its curriculum is so extensive that the institution ranks among the foremost in the estimation of the authorities at the State University.

Mr. Gamble, in speaking of the matter, said:

"From figures now in the superintendent's office there are 144 high schools in the State. Of this number but fifty-six pretend to keep up with the requirements of the State University in regard to the course of study. Of these fifty-six but twenty-six can be said to come up to the requirements, and of these but fifteen are A1 in this respect. The Hayward High ranks No. 7 of all the high schools in the State, and we are very much interested in keeping up this standing, and if possible going up even higher. The new chemical laboratory will give us facilities which we have needed for a long time. We have had a spare room fitted up and will put in chemical apparatus to the extent possibly of $1,000."

BASEBALL TOMORROW.

The J. H. Webbs baseball team of this place will play the Baggotts, of Oakland, Sunday afternoon. The game will be called promptly at 2 o'clock, at Haywards Athletic Park. The grand stand, during the two weeks the local nine has been away, has been undergoing thorough repairs. It has also been covered to keep out the glare of the sun.

The local boys were beaten the last two games, but hope to redeem themselves on the home grounds tomorrow.

INSTALLATION OF OFFICERS.

WOODMEN OF GOLDEN GATE ARE PLANNING FOR A GOOD TIME.

GOLDEN GATE, July 11.—Bay Tree Camp No. 640, Woodmen of the World are beginning to make preparations for a good time to follow the installation of its officers on the evening of the 21st inst. The organization is a strong and lively one, and as nearly every member resides in the immediate vicinity a good turn out at meetings is assured.

Patrick Cahill, who recently added to his popularity by saving a woman from drowning in the Russian river, is a well known and highly respected citizen of this delightful suburb.

BRISK FIRE.

Last night there was a brisk fire out at Fairmount and Cottage avenues that completely destroyed the residence and barn of Frank Ghiglioni, an Italian gardener. There were six horses stabled in the barn and all were burned. The owner and family barely escaped with their lives and without accident to limb. The fire company from here arrived in time to get a stream on the burning premises. Defective electric wiring is supposed to have caused the fire.

DESOLATE ST. HELENA.

A recent leading article in the only paper printed on the Napoleonic Rock advocates the conversion of St. Helena into a sort of penal settlement as the only mode of salvation. St. Helena had an extraordinary boom of prosperity during the South African war, when thousands of Boer prisoners were isolated there. Now there is no market for the local beef and vegetables, and the agriculturists are in despair. "Their lands are full of weeds; their gardens unplanted."

TEACHERS RE-ELECTED.

The Board of Trustees of the Lockwood school at their last meeting reappointed all of last year's staff of teachers to serve again next year.

Case of Mr. Schwab.

The breakdown of "Charles" Schwab is the more remarkable in that he ascended from the very bottom to the very top. The man who rises in that way usually carries with him a sound constitution. He is as hard as iron and can work twenty hours out of twenty-four year in and year out with no suggestion of that tired feeling Schwab a wreck at 41! Too bad.—New York Press.

HOW TO LOOK WELL--THE BEAUTY SEASON

TO LOOK WELL.

Don't become too stout. Although plumpness of contour is by no means unbecoming, corpulance is a thing to be avoided.

Don't suppose that you can over indulge in fattening foods and take little exercise and yet keep delicate proportions.

Don't devote less than two hours daily to exercise—either taken in the form of housework or in riding, golfing or walking. Anyone who has a tendency to stoutness can keep the fiend, obesity, at bay by entering heartily into outdoor pastimes.

Don't think any kind of exercise, taken in any kind of way, is going to help matters. Exercise, to be valuable, must be moderate, systematic and habitual.

Don't think that because you are forty and fair you must also be fat, and that nature has laid down a law that women shall accumulate layers with years, like a magnolia, or any other tree.

Don't settle down calmly and without a struggle into middled age solidity.

Don't say you would rather keep the too abundant flesh you have than exert yourself to try a cure.

Don't forget that superfluous flesh is the first sign of physical degeneration, the clogging of energies within, and the film upon the fine steel of mental keenness.

Don't look for a fair, pure complexion reflected from your mirror if you have more flesh than belongs to you; you will see a purplish, pasty tinge in the cheeks.

Don't let fat accumulate about the hips—the very worst place—for it not only disfigures the gait but clogs the breathing by impeding the diaphram in its movements.

Don't wear tight bandages and try in that way to appear like a sylph; to fight off fat with elastic hands only makes doctors grow richer.

Don't fly to "banting" for relief if flesh is blurring the clear lines of the face and obliterating the figure. Take not less food, but less drink, less sleep, more exercise and more cold water baths.

Don't eat less, but avoid highly seasoned food, all thick soups, pork, veal, sardines, potatoes, peas, corn, macaroni rice, fried food of every description and pastry.

Don't take food and drink too hot. In Paris, the new theory for preventing obesity is to take the food cold—cold meats, cold vegetables, cold tea, cold puddings, with salads and plenty of fruit and nuts.

Don't adopt a diet of vinegar or lemon juice and expect to look as lithe as a heroine of romance and be as lissome as a wand. You may reach this beatific condition, but your health will be ruined.

Don't be content with a daily cold sponge bath; it is not sufficient. A douche is better or a swim in cold water, followed with brisk friction with crash towels.

Don't spend your days and nights in close, unventilated rooms.

Don't purchase leanness by sleepless nights, capricious appetites and a condition nearly approaching hysteria, and waste nerves along with tissues.

Don't hesitate to squander a penny in testing your weight now and then in order to keep track of flesh. Any deviation from the right weight, either over or under, by three pounds, should receive immediate correction.

Don't forget that Napoleon lost his battles when he grew corpulent and fat-witted by comparison with the lean, ambitious corporal of Toulon.

Don't, however, try to get so thin that you are evanescent, spirituelle, unpredicable, a fragile, melting thing that flits hovers, floats, simpers and vanishes.

TAPESTRY PICTURE FRAMES.

The use of brocade and tapestry stuffs for manp decorative purposes is very noticeable in making a round of the Paris shops. Picture frames of all sizes are neatly covered with these materials and are much to be preferred to tasteless unskilled work with either needle or brush. Boxes and trays of many sizes and for various uses are also brocade covered with mosa attractive effort. The material is gummed on where it is not possible to fit neatly by sewing, any raw edges being finished with a very narrow gilt gimp.

THE BEAUTY SEASON.

With the month of June the roses come to Paris in great quantities.

In the Latin quarter there goes up, day by day, the most poetical of street cries, usually intened by a stout little man, the roses in whose cheeks vie with those he carries in pots as he shouts under the windows of the apartment houses.

"'t is the season of beauty, ladies. Adorn yourself with flowers. Fill your windows with them."

Many a woman yields to this seductive cry, and far up in a dirty window may often be seen one of those little pots of roses proclaiming that it is indeed the "season of beauty."

The French show remarkable talent in arranging flowers, fruits and vegetables, particularly in this "season of beauty." The fetching contrast of corn flowers and field poppies in a basket bound to the back of a flower seller or in a shabby flower stall, with a most unpoetical hook-nosed woman behind it, takes one's breath.

Even cauliflowers become poetical under the French costermonger's deft though dirty fingers. The other day a squat woman trundled a barrow of cauliflowers with bunches of lilies of the valley stuck around the edges of it down the street, and the effect of green and white was so well "composed," as a painter might say, that one admired it as if it had been a work of art.

USEFUL INFORMATION.

Hot water sets all grease stains so it is necessary to remove such stains before putting the cloth in hot water. Wet the stains with kerosene, then wash with strong pearline suds.

Remove rust stains from white goods with a weak solution of oxalic acid or wet it with salt and lemon juice and lay in the sun. Grease spots on wall paper may be removed by laying blotting paper over them and holding a hot iron against the blotting paper, change the paper as fast as it becomes stained with the grease. Borax in the water for washing windows and mirrors will render them clear and brilliant. No soap should be used on them, as it leaves filmy streaks.

Never let a mirror hang where the sun will shine on it, as it dulls it.

If clothespins are boiled occasionally, it will keep them in good condition and make them more durable.

For ivy poisoning bathe the parts with sweet spirits of nitre until the poison disappears. To remove white stains from furniture rub them with spirits of camphor and then with a dry flannel and a little linseed oil.

Lemon and salt will remove stains from the hands.

To keep silver from tarnishing keep it in a box with a piece of gum camphor. For cramps rub with one part oil of wintergreen and four parts of sweet oil mixed.

SCARLET POPPY DINNER SERVICE.

An entire dinner service of imported china is decorated with scarlet poppies and the dark green leaves. They are arranged in a seemingly careless design, with the stems of the flowers trailing over the ivory white ground and the extreme edges of all the dishes are bordered with narrow gold bands.

CHICKEN BOUILLON.

For each twelve persons allow a chicken weighing three pounds, a sprig of parsley, one of thyme, a bay leaf and a very small onion. Clean the chicken, cut into joints, and place in the soup kettle with three quarts of cold water. Bring slowly to a boil, add one-half teaspoonful of salt and let simmer gently till the flesh drops from the bones. This will take three hours. Add the onion, bay leaf, parsley and thyme; cook for fifteen minutes longer, then strain and stand aside until cold. Skim off all the grease, return to the fire and add the white of one egg beaten to a froth. Allow the broth to boil slowly until clear, then season to taste with salt and pepper, and skim through a cheesecloth.

STUFFED TOMATO SALAD.

Select ripe but firm tomatoes of equal size. Scald and peel, cover with cracked ice and salt, and let stand until they become slightly frozen on the outside. Remove them from the ice one at a time and with a vegetable scoop take out the centers, leaving firm and perfect shells. Cut tender stalks of celery into bits and mix with a French dressing. Fill the tomato shells with this mixture and place a generous spoonful of mayonnaise on the top of each. Serve ice cold and garnish with capers and slices of hard boiled eggs.

FIRECRACKERS POPPED FOR HIM.

John Alden and Priscilla stood watching the modest display of fireworks.

"Why don't you speak for yourself, John?" Priscilla asked when he made some generous reference to Miles Standish.

"I—some way I can't, Priscilla," he explained, bashfully; "but I'll tell you what I'll do." Here he took some firecrackers from his pocket. "I'll let these pop for for me."—Exchange.

TALES OF WILD LIFE.

"Two years ago," says a writer in the Scientific American, "it was my good fortune to witness a combat between a king snake and a water moccasin. I was attracted to the scene by a negro laborer. When I reached the spot I found the snakes coiled together in a pool of water, the king snake gripping his enemy with the tip of his tail just back of the head. It was clearly his intention to drown the moccasin. For the purpose of taking a photograph I lifted the two struggling, writhing serpents to a rock. Just before I took my photograph the king snake pulled the moccasin's head in the exact position he wished and quickly stretched his jaws over it. Thoughtlessly enough, I put the snakes back into the water, thinking that the king snake would also drown. Very soon, however, he left the pool, stretched his victim straight out before him and leisurely began to swallow him. In my efforts to take another photograph he was frightened away. Both snakes were nearly the same size, being about three and one-half feet in length."

Captain Macquoid of the First Lancers of the British army, inspector-general of the Nizam's forces at Hyderabad, recently had a strange adventure with a tiger near Bangalore. Accompanied by a native orderly, he had tracked the animal for three days and then lost him. The tiger was wounded, but made good his escape and took refuge in a cave, where he was suddenly discovered by the orderly, who gave a warning shout and bolted. Captain Macquoid, a few yards away, just had time to drop down behind a ledge of rock only three feet and a half high when the tiger emerged from the cave, crawled right over the ledge without noticing the officer and made for the orderly, who had tripped and fallen. He had seized the native by the leg when Captain Macquoid lodged a bullet in his spine and then shot him through the head.

HOW THEY MAKE LOVE IN MEXICO

LOVE-MAKING IN MEXICO.

Inseparably woven in with all things associated with Mexico in the foreign mind is the strain of romance, says a correspondent of the Kansas City Star. Nowhere in the world is love more spontaneous, more violent, and what wonder if it be as transcient!

Only in moslem countries are women more secluded than in Mexico. This effort on the part of elders to keep young hearts apart has the effect of making love affairs all the more intense.

One of the prettiest views I have ever had into this inner court of the native life was one of the first. We had been up the hill of Guardaloupe and seen the shrine, and were on our way down to the miraculous well by the steps that pass the great stone walls and chanced to admire a little child in the care of its sister, a girl of 15. The child was playing with a tiny cup of native pottery, and insisted that I take it, and while we chatted with them the girl was playing with a poor, cheap locket hung by a bead string around her plump brown neck. She saw that I noticed it, and with the sweetest shyness and an adorable pride showed me the picture it contained—just a brown Indian boy in a new sombrero, and when I had looked at it with a question in my eyes she said almost in a whisper: 'It is my novio."

"Novio" means lover, and her eyes grew large and luminous with the word. It took but little urging to let her pour out eagerly the whole story. She lived in Santa Maria, one of a family of fourteen. He dwelt in Tacubya, and was a burro boy. He had seen her at a fiesta, and she said she loved him as soon as she looked in his face. She had never seen him since then except once in the street with his burros. The picture he had taken and carried to her with some clipped verses by a tiny "muchacho,' a boy so little that no one would suspect him of being a love messenger. Just then a woman, bearing a jar of blessed water from the well approached, and the girl hid the locket. It was her mother and she was afraid.

There is much said of the picturesque peasantry of Europe, but I doubt if any one country of them all can afford the great variety of dress found among the women of Mexico, and there is none of the many dresses but seems to add to the beauty of the wearer. This beauty is not for long, for they mature early and begin to fade when a woman of the United States would be considered to be in her prime.

In Yucatan the "mestizo" girls are many of them distinctly handsome, and there are few among the daughters of the very wealthy families to excel in looks the girls who are to be seen at labor about the streets of Merida, Ismal and Motul. These girls are always barefooted, except when wearing pretty two-strapped sandals, and no matter at what tasks they may be engaged they are clad in spotless white dresses, on the bottom widths of which is the most elaborate and often highly colored embroidery. Their features are a mixture of the delicate Spanish and the heavier Maya, and since there has been for generations the greatest care in the habit of intermarrying with other classes, the type has become purified.

There is greater freedom for women of the Indian and "mestizo" class in Yucatan than there is for the Yucatecoes, for they are seldom ever allowed to go in public on foot at all, and then are always accompanied by a duenna or some male relative. In the evening they have their outing in the family carriage, which drives in the procession round and round the plaza and some of the principal streets.

One day as I was walking along a side street in the best residence portion of Merida I saw a bit of paper dangling from the end of a string that led up over a balcony and into a window, the shutter of which was almost entirely closed, only a bare crack being visible. The string jerked just the least bit, causing the paper to bob up and down. I turned as if to cross the street for closer inspection. Instantly the paper, which I was convinced was a note, was drawn up and I retired to the next corner where I paused a few moments in an agony of sheer curiosity to see what would happen. The note was lowered again, and soon there came sauntering by a handsome young man in "charro" costume, something unusual in the state. As he passed under the balcony he whipped out a knife, severed the string, put the note in his hat and sauntered on.

Some of the most beautiful women of Mexico are to be found among the Indians of the Tehauntepec Istmas. There on Sundays one will see hundreds of pretty church-goers wearing a most extraordinary costume. The skirt is often of satin or silk, heavily laced trimmed sometimes, and with a short sleeved waist. The head-dress is the principal feature. It is a great, stiff, laundered accordion pleated sort of thing that can look very pretty and can be what the woman's word "sloppy" means.

The Amatecas, both men and women, wear white cotton undergarments on which the embroidery is done in panels either down the front of the woman's skirt or on the tunic the men wear. There is a curious custom among them of lovers exchanging the twigs of certain trees in entire secrecy except as each new twig is received it is carried to the father or mother or guardian of each of the two and assent is given to the continuance of the exchange till orange blossoms are reached; then it is time for the priest. This pretty method of courtship is dying out, as it is a relic of Indian customs and is discouraged by the priests.

In nearly all parts of the country the lovers' progress is the same. It is called "playing bear," and is of Spanish extraction. Of coure it is not necessary to play bear in those classes where the young folks are thrown together in the market, the field, the work room and the highway, but even there a close watch is kept on the girls, and conversation with their adorers is fragmentary.

The beginning of a courtship is usually the sight of each other on some public day, some "fiesta" or when driving in the Paseo. The lover-to-be beholds a face that causes his heart to tighten, then expand, and thought she may have but glanced at him, if he does not know who she is, he will follow and ascertain her abode. That night there will be twanging guitars without her window, and he may attempt to sing (few young Mexicans but have fair voices). The next day burning epistles of deathless love arrive, and possibly an elder member of the young man's family, and if their respective stations, fortunes and all other things are suitable, the young people begin to see each other, with some third person ever present and between them, except in those fond moments when she stands at her window or balcony and her lover is without, but near enough that the slightest whisper of one can be heard by the other, and if the bars are wide lips may meet. So love is made until the wedding day, but, sad to relate, when that day is not long passed, the young wife takes a place in the household but little higher than the servants. But she has expected nothing else, and dutifully follows her husband to the door each day and kisses his hand as he extends it. Not often does she think a disloyal thought, for she knows if she should but dally with some old lover or chance newly smitten one, her husband will kill her as certain as he lives, and perhaps in the duel with knives that may follow the man will kill her husband. This has happened more than once.

ODD FEATURED GIRLS.

If the likenesses of girl graduates which now makes an attractive feature of many newspapers are true to the life, and undoubtedly they are in most cases, doesn't it seem that those leaving the high schools have a remarkably mature look? In some instances they look to be quite 25 years of age and as knowing and wise as girls who have really seen that number of years are usually found to be in this sophisticated age. It seems rather curious, too, that such young girls should look so "finished," but it is probably just an evening up of things in their respective families, as their mothers and grandmothers are undoubtedly engaged in taking beauty-and-youth-renewing cures with years from five to twenty-five taken from their ages. We will record it as the result of an effort of nature to square accounts.

WHAT WOMEN ARE DOING IN MANY PLACES

NATIVE DAUGHTER LAWYER IN COLORADO.

There is one woman lawyer from outside of Colorado who has been admitted to practice in this State, and one only. That is Mrs. Laura Tilden-Ray. Mrs. Ray came to Denver in Cal., bearing the highest testimonials from leading of[illegible] of California. She had just fi[illegible] eight years of successful law p[illegible]ce there.

Mrs. Tilden-Ray was admitted on motion before the Supreme Court of Colorado, September 5, 1901, immediately after the convention of the American Bar Association, which she attended. Since then she has had an office, where a general practice has engrossed her.

Mrs. Tilden-Ray was a young girl in her teens when she began her course of legal training. She did not attend college but studied law with her father. She was born in Sacramento, where her parents then resided. She attended the public schools and afterward took a course at the Normal school of San Jose, graduating in the class of 1889. Her father and Judge M. C. Tilden of Sacramento and her grandfather Judge J. H. Ralston, who was a California "forty-niner."

In 1893 she was admitted to the bar at Carson, Nev., and went into practice with her father at Virginia City, Nev., where she was admitted to the Supreme Court.

Miss Tilden passed the examination in Nevada with such distinction that the judges enthsiastically remarked that she passed the most satisfactory examination they had ever seen in years of experience, on the bench.

This plucky young girl was only 22, and was the youngest woman lawyer in the world. The women of Nevada owed her a debt of gratitude for she drew up, presented in the legislature and had passed the statute opening the legal profession to women. The bill passed both houses by a unanimous vote.

The following year she returned to Sacramento and opened an office, again with her father. She was admitted to practice in all the State courts. Her first case was won in the Superior court, January 29, 1894, shortly after her return. Divorce suits, suits to set aside mortgages, probating of wills, all sorts of causes brought in law and equity came within her range.

In 1894 Miss Tilden organized the Woman's suffrage club at Sacramento and was its president for several years. At her offices the meetings were held and both men and women joined the society. Miss Tilden soon won a reputation for eloquence. With her father she spoke at Brighton, Cal., and formed a strong People's party organization.

In 1896 her father died at the age of 63. After that she married. For a time her practice was suspended. Then it was declared that Colorado would be more beneficial for her health and she came to Denver in 1901.

Mrs. Tilden-Ray had for the first time fellow women members at the bar. Mrs. Mary C. Lathrop, who has practiced here for a number of years, is the only other woman in the city who has been admitted to the United States courts. Mrs. Ray was admitted last week on her return from a winter's sojourn in California.

Mrs. Lathrop confines her practice principally to probate cases. She does not indulge in divorce proceedings nor criminal cases. In 1896 Mrs. Lathrop received the faculty prize at the Denver university, holding the highest record for that and the State university.

Miss Annie Hune, is another successful Denver lawyer. She specializes in probate work and the preparation of written pleadings. She is attorney for the State Home for Dependent and Neglected Children and practically controls the adoption business of the State.

WOMEN IN THE TROPICS.

"If I had my way," said the Governor of one of England's tropical colonies recently, "I would let the natives govern this country, and countries like it, but I would give the votes to the women instead of to the men. They are by far the better half. They do the work and they ought to rule the roost. There would be no fear of going back into savagery if they had the control of affairs. They appreciate the blessings of education and civilization much better than the men do. Many of these poor ignorant black women toil and slave and save all their lives long to give their children a good education and fit them for a better position in life than that which they themselves hold."

Men's work causes these women of the tropics to adopt men's habits in large measure. In Ecuador, Brazil, Venezuela and other Latin-American countries, it is common to see the wives of the "peons" smoking long, fat, black cigars. The milder cigarette does not satisfy them, though it is between the lips of their husbands from early morn to dewy eve. On the country roads in Jamaica, Trinidad and other West Indian islands, a negro woman may often be seen enjoying a black clay pipe as she trudges to market. She never smokes cigars or cigarettes; it is the pipe or nothing with her.

THE SUCCESS OF MRS. PERRY BELMONT.

Ever since Mrs. Perry Belmont's second marriage her position in society has been insecure. When she and Henry T. Sloane were divorced the mighty influence of his family were placed against her, and all the Vanderbilts have opposed her. But she is now in London, where extraordinary attentions have been paid to her. On several occasions she dined at the table with the king, and although the American women look upon her with certain hesitation, she is a success with English. For instance, the Rothschilds have entertained her, Lady Alfred de Rothschild had Mrs. Belmont go to dinner on the arm of the Duke of Connought, the king's brother. A few nights later she was presented to English society at the Countess of Warwick's ball. Her greatest achievement was to appear at the royal dance at Ascot, where Americans were as scarce as hen's teeth. This was the pinnacle of the aspirant's hopes. There are certain prejudices against divorced women in the court of St. James' and Mrs. Belmont's record is remarkable, especially as she has had no support from the New York women.

THE LATEST TITLED AMERICAN.

Miss Sylvia Pio, the daughter of a former Danish court officer and well known in Chicago, has started for Copenhagen, where she will meet and be married to Count Egert Knuth, her engagement to whom was announced some time ago. Miss Pio has been spending some time in Florida to recover from a severe attack of sickness, from which she has entirely recovered. She was formerly an examiner for the Chicago civil service commission and has a wide acquaintance. She is beautiful, accomplished and in every way fitted to assume the position she will take as Countess Knuth. Her mother, housе inspector for the health department, Mrs. Augusta Pio, is a tenement [illegible] of Chicago.

TWELVE TO DATE.

Harry Arnesman of Passaic, N. J., became the father Tuesday of a bouncing girl. This is the twelfth daughter which has been born to him in his twenty-two years of married life.

His twelve daughters are all living. Mr. Arnesman said shortly after the interesting event: "I am 42 years old and hope to live to see the time when I shall be the father of twenty-four children, and all daughters at that."

POETRY CLIPPED TO PLEASE THE WOMEN

IN MEMORIAM.

The pen falls idle from my anxious hand:
Oh, I am dumb who have too much to say,
Too great, too fine the tribute I would pay
For any words my fellows understand.
I come as one who over-long hath planned
To stand unshamed in his Beloved's way,
And with fair words his passion to betray.
Yet, at the last, by love itself unmanned,
Finds no speech but "I love you," and too fain
For eloquence, is still with utter bliss.
Oh, friend, as mute from very strength, my pain
That finds no speech to pierce Death's silences,
Only I cry "I loved you," and again
"I loved you," and I have no word but this.
—Ainslee's Magazine.

THE PEDLAR'S CARAVAN.

I wished I lived in a caravan,
With a horse to drive, like a pedlar-man!
Where he comes from nobody knows,
Or where he goes to, but on he goes!

His caravan has windows two,
And a chimney of tin, that the smoke comes through;
He has a wife with a baby brown,
And they go riding from town to town.

Chairs to mend and delft to sell!
He clashes the basins like a bell;
Tea-trays, baskets ranged in order,
Plates with the alphabet round the border!

The roads are brown, and the sea is green,
But his house is just like a bathing machine;
The world is round, and he can ride,
Rumble and splash, to the other side!

With the pedlar-man I should like to roam,
And write a book when I came home;
All the people would read my book,
Just like the Travels of Captain Cook!
—William Brighty Rands.

THE MAGIC HOUR.

O for one firelit hour with thee
When wistful hearts dare welcome free
Sweet hope and love and constancy.

When candles light the dusk of day,
And dreams hush worldly cares away
For that one hour 'tween work and play.

Dear, in that firelit hour with thee
Our souls might touch, and you would see
My grief and love and constancy.
—Nina Almirall.

TIRED.

Today if I but close my hot, tired eyes
The last faint, lucent gold in evening skies
And one brave night-hawk floating there alone,
All the home fields and wood, mysterious grown
In deepening dusk. Frogs in the meadow pool,
The roadside grasses, long and lush and cool,
Brushing my small bare feet with crisp caress.
A string of little fish I called Success.
The garden path, petunias dimly white.
Then lamp-light shutting out the dark, sweet night.
—S. H. Kemper.

SLEEP.

Withdraw thee, soul, from strife.
Enter thine unseen bark,
And sail across the dark,
The silent sea of life.
Leave Care and Grief, feared now no more,
To wave and beckon from the shore.

Thy tenement is bare.
Shut are the burning eyes,
Ears deaf against surprise,
Limbs in a posture fair.
The body sleeps unheeding thee,
And thou, my sailing soul, art free.
—Alice Brown.

THE DILETTANTE.

To lie outright in the light of day
I'm not sufficiently skilful,
But I practice a bit, in an amateur way,
The lie which is hardly wilful;
The society lie and the business lie
And the lie I have had to double,
And the lie that I lie when I don't know why
And the truth is too much trouble.
For this I am willing to take your blame
Unless you have sometimes done the same.

To be a fool of an Al brand
I'm not sufficiently clever,
But I often have tried my prentice hand
In a callow and crude endeavor;
A fool with the money for which I've toiled,
A fool with the word I've spoken,
And the foolish fool who is fooled and foiled
On a maiden's finger broken.
If you never yourself have made a slip,
I'm willing to watch you curl your lip.

Yet down to my toe nails I resist
If you dub me fool and liar.
I set my teeth and double my fist
And my brow is flushed with fire.
You I deny and you I defy
And I vow I will make you rue it;
And I lie when I say that I never lie
Which proves me a fool to do it!
You may jerk your thumb at me and grin
If liar and fool you never have been.
—Edmund Vance Cook.

SONG.

Breathe it, exult in it,
All the day long,
Glide in it, leap in it,
Thrill it with song.
Boundless it clings to the —
Life-giver rare—
Kind nurse that wearies not—
Such is the Air.

Wake to it smilingly;
Greeting thy eyes,
Comes the day's miracle.
Fresh with surprise.
Nature's revealer
At morning or night—
Hail to the Cheerer!
Such is the Light.

Love in it, sport in it,
Drawn on its breast,
Lulled by the infinite
Sweetly to rest.
Still it will bear thee
To windward or lee—
Trust to its strong arms!
Such is the Sea.

Dearest, one element
Waiteth for thee;
Far it surpasseth
Air, light and sea.
Come and find rest in it,
All else above;
Come, and be blest in it!
Such is my Love.
—Charles H. Crandall.

THE GUERDON.

Whose love is but a selfish, transient guest,
To earth pays toll;
But he whose selfish love gives of its best,
Hath found his soul.
—Charlotte Becker.

THE CLOSED DOOR.

I never left you but I took away
The love that drew me to your side again
Through that wide door that never grief
I never crossed your threshold with a could remain
Quite closed between us for a little day.
But that I went without it never came
Heart-hungry but you fed me, eased
And gave the sorrow solace and relief.
the blame,

Oh, Friend, who gave and comforted, who knew
So over-well the want of heart and mind?
Where may I turn for solace now, or find
Relief from this unceasing loss of you?

Be it for fault, for folly, or for sin,
Oh, terrible my penance, and most sore—
To face the tragedy of that closed door
Whereby I pass and may not enter in.
—Theodosia Garrison.

A BOY THAT I KNEW.

A boy that I knew, when the skies were all blue,
And fields of the morning were sparkling with dew,
With a smile on his face and a smile in his heart,
He walked from the phantom of trouble apart;
And his laughter was sweet as the lilt of a song,
For he knew not the care of the world, or its wrong;
The past and the future might bury their rue—
The day was enough for that boy that I knew.

A youth that I knew, as he stood where the way
Leads down to the mists and the toil and the fray
Bore a smile on his face, and kept faith in his soul,
And Hope, with her promise, "For you is the goal!"
Though others were crushed, and though others might wear
On their foreheads the emblems of doubt and despair,
He would win in the strife, standing stalwart and true,
For "Achieve" was the word of that youth that I knew.

A man that I know, worn, weary and old,
Looks backward on years that his failure have told;
Looks backward to hope, with a promise no more,
To the faith, like a wraith from the country of yore;
To the visions that faded, the faltering feet,
The wail of the bugle that called to retreat;
And 'tis O for the morning, the sheen of its dew,
And O to go back to the boy that I knew!
—Alfred J. Waterhouse.

PEBBLES.

Pebbles we
In a sea
Of mingled mirth and misery;

Crunch and grind
Every kind
Angles off, a shape shall find.

Presently
We shall be Fair and fit for God to see.
—C. Rann Kennedy, in Harper's Magazine.

SMALL BUT DOES BIG WORK.

"LITTLE GIANT" ACCOMPLISHES MORE THAN THE MONSTER MACHINES.

It does not always follow that because a machine is big it can do things better, or accomplish more than something of the same kind built upon smaller lines. Forcible and practical illustration of this is given daily by engine 1207, the Little Giant, as the railroad men call her. She is now over the drop pit for slight boiler repairs. This little big engine has a fifteen inch cylinder with twenty-two inch stroke and weighs twenty-five tons. When in service regularly she rolls out of the depot every evening pulling nine cars loaded with passengers and never slips a wheel—and there are lots of others in the service with fire-boxes almost large enough to swallow her up completely that churn and puff and slide and send out sparks and stall with less to do.

EXPECTS HE WILL FORM PARTNERSHIP.

John M. Coyne, blacksmith helper and an all around good fellow and thorough workman, has been promoted as assistant to Billy Edwards, and is receiving congratulations all along the line, part of them being on account of the promotion, and part because of an undenied rumor that Coyne expects to soon contract a matrimonial partnership with one of Oakland's brightest girls and have a home of his own to go to at the close of his day's labors.

This is the first lay-off Flynn has had since he went to work. He is a prominent member and an officer of the West Oakland Athletic Club, and is rated as "away up" as an amateur boxer.

LUTHERANS ARE STILL IN SESSION.

The morning session yesterday of the German Lutheran Synod of California and Nevada District was devoted to doctrinal discussion, and the point especially elucidated was the necessity of using the "Means of Grace for the Awakening and Strengthening the Faith."

During the afternoon meeting reports of the board of missions and extension work, augmented by the reports of the fifteen pastors engaged in this work in their fields as follows:

Rev. F. Rieser, Pasadena and Arizona; Rev. G. F. Kiesel, San Diego and vicinity; Rev. H. Hagist, Lodi, Cordelia and Nicholas; Rev. J. W. Theiss, Santa Rosa, St. Helena, Healdsburg and Petaluma; Rev. M. Tietjen, Vallejo and Crockett; Rev. J. F. Horstmann, Gardnerville, Nevada and vicinity Rev. J. Graeber, Salt Lake City, Ogden and Provo; Rev. H. Hermann, Oxnard and vicinity; Rev. P. Schmidt, Germantown and vicinity; Rev. M. Liebe ,Richmond district, San Francisco; Rev. M. Kuessner, Chicago Park, Grass Valley, Nevada City and Reno, Nevada; Rev. A. Hansen, Newman and Tracy; Rev. R. Norden, Bakersfield and Visalia.

Two new men were called for the work, Rev. Thiele for San Francisco and Rev. F. Schottmann for Humboldt county.

The reports showed that work is prospering in all fields. The total expenditure for the past two years is about $7000.

A resolution was passed to call new men for Cordelia, Dixon and Vacaville.

The discussion of doctrine will be continued this morning, and the business sessions concluded for this week.

At tomorrow morning's Sunday service, Rev. J. Kogle of Orange, Southern California, will preach at the German Lutheran Church. In the evening the different congregations will unite in a mission service at which Rev. F. Rieser of Pasadena will be the speaker.

MANY WILL COME TO THE COAST.

Rev. Dr. Dille returned yesterday from Los Angeles where he went as a member of the committee which is arranging for the Methodist General Conference which meets in California next May.

The commission from New York found that all conditions were complied with, a $25,000 guarantee having been provided by the California committee and the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce, and satisfactory railroad and hotel rates having been obtained. Accordingly the contract was signed which insures the conference coming to this coast.

The new pavilion for the building for which Los Angeles has been bonded will not be in readiness and Hazzard's pavilion, which seats 5000, will be used.

The coming of the General Conference means much to California, and has already set 3,000,000 of people to talking to their neighbors of this State. The presiding elders, the pastors, the members of the quarterly conference, the annual and electoral conference throughout the world will discuss California. Every item of news from California will be read with greatest interest. This will awaken an interest in California of one-twentieth of the population of the United States.

Mrs. Hughson, of Chicago, whose letter follows, is another woman in high position who owes her health to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"Money seemed but poor and paltry compared to health, and yet a few dollars invested in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound brought me good health. I suffered for several years with general weakness and bearing-down pains, caused by womb trouble. My appetite was frightful, and I would lie awake for hours, and could not sleep, until I seemed more weary in the morning than when I retired. After reading one of its advertisements I decided to try the merits of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and I am so glad I did. No one can describe the good it did me. I took three bottles faithfully, and besides building up my general health, it drove all disease and poison out of my body, and made me feel as spry and active as a young girl. Mrs. Pinkham's medicines are certainly all they are claimed to be."—Mrs. M. E. Hughson, 347 E. Ohio St., Chicago, Ill.—$5000 forfeit if original of above letter proving genuineness cannot be produced.

If the slightest trouble appears which you do not understand, write to Mrs. Pinkham at Lynn, Mass., for her advice, and a few timely words from her will show you the right thing to do. This advice costs nothing, but it may mean life or happiness or both.

JOSEPH JEFFERSON'S TOAST.

The following toast was given by the genial sportsman, Joseph Jefferson, for the annual dinner of the Canadian camp fire club, held in the Madison Square garden during the sportsmen's show, and is now published for the first time, through the courtesy of Dr. G. Lenox Curtis, founder and president of the club:

All hail, brother sportsmen, I greet you tonight,
And wish you a glorious career:
May your spirits be jovial, convival and bright,
May your smiles chase away every tear,
A motley community meets in this plade,
We've doctors and lawyers galore,
All creeds and professions come here to embrace,
And the parson and actor knock at our door.
The brokers, the artists and publishers, too,
In this liberal club hold their sway,
And I hope to complete our various crew,
That we'll catch a pure Mormon some day.
And now just one word to my brothers in sport,
Old Time's rolling on very fast,
And I think it behooves us before we depart,
To take a review of the past.
When the comedy ends,
And the curtain descends,
On the drama of life, my dear brother,
However we may fix it,
Let's make a good exit,
Straight out of this world to the other.
And on the last day when we leave those we love,
And to higher ambitions aspire
I hope that we'll all camp together above,
Though, of course, we shan't want a camp-fire.
For myself, when I knock at the gate, with some fear,
I know that St. Peter will say:
"Walk in, Old Comedian, and act for us here,
But for heaven's sake, get a new play!"
And now, then, good night, or good morning, I fear,
Proceed with your innocent joys,
Let your banquet abound with the very best cheer,
"May you live long and prosper," brave boys.

HAY FEVER ABOLISHED.

Relief for this Malady Discovered by Medical Science—Breathe Hyomei.

Among the important additions made to medical science in recent years, none is more notable than the positive announcement of a cure for hay fever.

While this disease is not regarded as fatal, it is certainly a most distressing malady, and if anything can be devised to cure it, a great boon will be conferred upon the human race.

Exhaustive experiments with Hyomei prove that this treatment will prevent all attacks of hay fever if used two or three weeks before the annual appearance of the disease and that it may be relied upon if used faithfully after the disease has begun, to relieve at once and afford a speedy cure.

Osgood Bros. have sold hundreds of Hyomei outfits for the treatment of diseases of the respiratory organs under the agreement to refund the money if Hyomei did not afford relief.

In selling Hyomei for the cure of hay fever, they will continue this equitable plan, and want all who are subject to this distressing malady to begin its use at once, with the understanding that if it does not give satisfaction the purchase price is to be refunded.

Stomach dosing cannot cure hay fever. A change of climate is the only treatment that has heretofore aborted an attack, and Hyomei, which is breathed through a neat pocket inhaler coming with every outfit, acts upon this principle, giving in your own home a climate like that of the White Mountains or other health resorts.

THEATERS PRESENT NEW BILLS IN TWO CITIES.

Macdonough Stock Company is a Success —Clever Performances at Novelty and Idora Park.

"The Christian," Hall Caine's powerful novel, scored a large success at the Macdonough Theater this week. Next week the beautiful and emotional love story, "The Wife," will be presented by the Mordaunt-Humphrey Company. "The Wife" is a grand play made up of smiles and tears and the comedies and errors of life.

The management of the Macdonough Theater is to be congratulated on securing such an excellent and powerful organization as the Mordaunt-Humphrey Company, which is to remain in Oakland for six weeks.

Amelia Bingham, who has been scoring such a success in San Francisco, will produce all her plays at the Macdonough Theater on the following dates: On August 10, "The Climbers;" August 11, "A Modern Magdeleen;" August 12, "The Frisky Mrs. Johnson."

The prices at the Macdonough during the engagement of the Mordant-Humphrey Company, will be 15, 25, 35 and 50 cents, and it is safe to say that in every play which this company will produce, the Oakland public will see a production as good as they have often paid $2.00 to see.

EXCELLENT TALENT AT IDORA PARK.

The attractions for Idora Park Theater the coming week will be on a line of novelty, singing, dancing and comedy. That Idora Park has stood the test and done well is evidenced by the throngs that crowd its grounds daily and nightly. The manager, George MacKinnon, has endeavored to secure only first class attractions and he has succeeded beyond a doubt.

M'lle. Dare, direct from Barnum & Bailey's Great Shows, will make her first appearance on the Pacific coast. Of all the lady aerial artists this daring lady stands alone and pre-eminent. Her performance while suspended in mid-air is very hazardous and she has justly been called "The Queen of the Air."

Lester Reeves, who has just arrived in California after an absence of two years, will be heard for the first time in a choice selection of new vocal gems. He possesses a rich, baritone voice and it is safe to say that he will be an instant success.

Miss Musa La Var, serio-comic of Eastern reputation, who will also make her first appearance, is considered one of the handsomest and best dressed women in vaudeville, while her work is strictly up-to-date.

Jack Symonds, a famous monologue artist, one of the principal features of Dockstader and Primrose Minstrels, does an act which is excelled by few.

Adelaide Sullivan will make her California debut, coming direct from the Castle Grand Company, Chicago. She will be heard in some of her popular melodies.

Roxy and Wayne, the popular sketch team, come strongly endorsed and have a record of many successes with some of the best companies.

The wonderful baby incubator will be on exhibition at the park. No man or woman should fail to see this great phenomena. The great coal mine, laughing gallery, scenic railway, and other attractions will be enjoyed as much as ever.

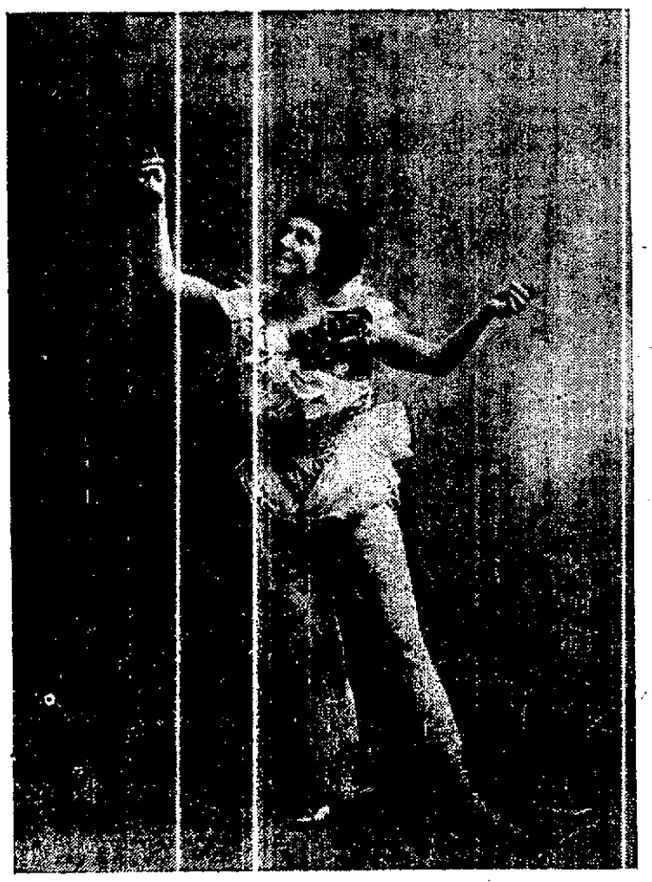

Friday night will be amateur night. The admission to the theater is 10, 20 and 25 cents.

Idora Park is located on Telegraph avenue and Fifty-second street. Take Telegraph avenue or Shattuck avenue cars.

THIRD WEEK OF "IN CENTRAL PARK."

The Grand Opera House continues to do a land office business with the musical eccentricity "In Central Park." It is far and away ahead of anything we have had of its kind, and San Francisco and Oakland audiences who are always quick to recognize real merit, reward it by the most generous patronage. Those inimitable dudes, Raymond and Caverly have made a tremendous hit. They are the best German dialect comedians we have had, and it is apparent that many who have preceded them are but poor imitators. Their work is thoroughly original and their gags and witticisms of their own composition. Cheridah Simpson is also a genuine delight. She acts gracefully and with magnetism, and her glorious soprano voice is one of the chief attractions of the performance. Harold Crane, Budd Ross, Anna Wilks, Louise Moore and Herbert Sears contribute to the general success. Charles H. Jones beautiful march of girls always excites enthusiasm. "In Central Park" will begin its third week tomorrow night. It will be succeeded "In Wall Street."

MLLE DARE, THE AERIAL QUEEN AT IDORA PARK.

"WANG" STILL AT THE TIVOLI.

The ever popular "Wang," which was revived at the Tivoli this week will hold the boards again during the coming week. The adventures of the Siamese monarch never fail to move audiences to mirth and the presentation of the title role made by Edwin Stevens is simply inimitable. Ferris Hartman is the ludicrous keeper of the royal elephant. The following attraction at the Tivoli will be "The Highwayman," Smith and DeKoven's great work and Camille D'Arville who made such a hit in the opera in the East has been engaged for the soprano part. Edwin Stevens has the big part of Foxy Quiller. The piece will be staged and costumed in exact representation of its original production in New York.

"PRISONER OF ZENDA" AT THE ALCAZAR.

White Whittlesey in manner and temperament essentially an ideal hero of romance, will find splendid opportunities in the Alcazar's elaborate production of "The Prisoner of Zenda" next week. The charm, between the covers of Anthony Hope's fantastic and fascinating romance has been felt by thousands of readers and the fine acting adaptation by Edward E. Rose, full of thrill and sensation, and bounteous love interest, helped amazingly to build up the fortunes of those popular matinee idols, E. H. Sothern and James K. Hackett. The dual role of Rudolf, the Red Elphberg King, and Rudolf, the up-to-date English gentleman, will fit the Whittlesey pedsonality as acurately as did those of his predecessors. In this strenuous play, quaintly combining the romanticism of the past, with the prosaic of the present, there are abundant episodes of love and adventure, and striking opportunities for the skill of costume and scene painter. There is an imposing cast, and interest will attach to the local debut of Harry S. Hilliard, the Alcazar's new juvenile man, who comes with a fine list of credited successes in Eastern cities. It is indeed a very notable list which includes such skilled players as Bertha Creighton, Juliet Crosby, Adele Belgarde, Marie Howe, Charles Wyngate, Fred Butler, Henry Shumer, H. D. Byers, Walter Belasco and Harry Spear, not to mention a score of others. The Winter Palace at Stresisau, the Castle of Tarlenheim, and the famous dungeon will be superbly mounted. Another high class production for July 20, will be the famous Hall Caine drama, "The Manxman," in which James O'Neill will again star this season.

LARGE CROWDS AT FISCHER'S.

Although people are being turned away by the hundreds at every performance to see "Twirly Whirly," at Fischer's Theater the management has decided positively to take the burlesque off and will put on the new play Monday evening. The piece could have run all summer, but the Fischer people have so many good plays on hand, that they could continue for two years if they ran each play a fortnight. The new bill Monday night will be a combination of two great burlesques, "Under the Red Globe" and "The Three Musketeers." Nothing has been left undone to continue to give the same excellent productions at this house as has been the rule since the first of the Weber & Field's plays were offered to the public. A small fortune has been expended for the scenery, the costumes and the paraphernalia that is required for "Under the Red Globe." There will again be new faces among the principals and a larger chorus for both the ensembles and the dances. The program of novelties is most extensive. Among the new features is the latest song, "The Leader of Vanity Fair," sung by Maude Amber and the chorus, "The Peroxide Sisters, a song and dance by Misses Hope and Emerson, "For Love is King," arranged for and sung by Winfield Blake, "Soldiers," a funny song and march, acted and sung by Kolb, Dill, Bernard and Whelan, a new coon song and dance in which six of the little clog dancers at Fischer's will help out Kolb and Dill. "Oh Fudge," a new topical song by Harry Hermsen, and some specialty numbers by the quartette. In addition to these numbers there are as usual a big lot of surprises that always come with the shows at Fischer's. There is already a large sale and Monday will have the usual brilliant audience at Fischer's Theater.

"MULDOON'S PICNIC" AT THE CENTRAL.

That richest of all farce comedies, "Muldoon's Picnic" with its conglomeration of uproariously funny incidents, will be the attraction at the Central Theater for the third and last week of comedian James Corrigan's engagement beginning next Monday night. The regular stock company will be augmented for the production by Conlon and Ryder, who are famous as fun makers and singers of comic songs from one end of the continent to the other. There will be specialties in great variety in every act, and the performance will assure about sixty laughs to the minute while the curtain is up and more laughs when you think about the excruciatingly funny things of the rollicking play after the curtain goes down. Muldoon is Corrigan's masterpiece in comic roles. The rise of the Muldoon family from humble beginnings on the Bowery to the splendors and affluence of Fifth avenue, and their debut into the smart set, with all the ludicrous incidents that accompany the metamorphosis, give wide scope to the comedians for the exercise of their laugh-creating genius. "Muldoon's Picnic," is a picnic for everybody and an immensely enjoyable festival at that. Following the Corrigan season, July 20th, will come the opening of the new Central Theater Stock Company, with the brilliant actor, Herschel Mayall, as leading man, in a magnificent spectacular production of the immortal drama, "Faust."

LARGE AUDIENCES AT THE NOVELTY.

The Novelty Theater is enjoying an era of prosperity as it deserves. For Manager Lubelski is presenting an excellent array of vaudeville artists at his popular theater. The entertainment given is equal to that where a much larger admission is charged. The artists playing at this house come direct from the East, first playing at the Novelty in this city before going on the circuit at the other Coast play houses. Next week, beginning Monday, there will be an entire change of bill, including new moving pictures. The admission is always 10 cents, never higher.

Cholera Infantum.

This has long been regarded as one of the most dangerous and fatal diseases to which infants are subject. It can be cured, however, when properly treated. All that is necessary is to give Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy and castor oil, as directed with each bottle, and a cure is certain. For sale by Osgood Bros., Seventh street and Broadway.

WOMEN WHO WORK

MAY LOOK TO MISS FLORENCE O'BRIEN AS AN EXAMPLE.

She Tells How They May Find Relief From Much Unnecessary Pain and Suffering.

Women who work must keep well. They cannot afford to be sick. But frail women frequently overestimate their strength and endurance, or an unsuspected trouble makes work impossible. Two years ago Miss Florence M. O'Brien was in a low state of Health from a trouble to which her sex is subject, but now, thanks to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, she is entirely free from it. Miss O'Brien is a dressmaker, living at No. 805 Flora street, Washington, Ind., and is glad to tell, for the benefit of others, how she was cured. She says:

"Regularly I had terrible cramps and vomiting spells which lasted for several days. I was dizzy and awfully sick, was very much constipated, my stomach became disordered and bloated and at last got so sore and tender that I could not bear the least pressure upon it. The doctor who attended me said my trouble came from lack of out-door exercise and too much work running the sewing machine. But he did not help me and I found no relief until, upon the recommendation of a friend, I began taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. That was in May. In June I was much better and in July the change was remarkable. I took four boxes and was perfectly cured. Everywhere I go I recommend Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and I know of several other cases which they have cured."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People are not only of inestimable value to women but restore to health men, women and children who are thin, pale, nervous and depressed. They embody Dr. Williams' wonderful discovery and have cured stubborn cases of locomotor ataxia, partial paralysis, St. Vitus' dance, sciatica, neuralgia, rheumatism, nervous headache, the after-effects of the grip, palpitation of the heart, pale and sallow complexions and all forms of weakness either in male or female. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People are sold by all dealers, or will be sent postpaid on receipt of price, fifty cents a box, or six boxes for two dollars and fifty cents (they are never sold in bulk, by the dozen or hundred) by addressing Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from ten drops to a teaspoonful. BETTY MARTIN JOINS THE WHITE RIBBONERS.

She Does Not Like the Cigarette Smoking of President Wheeler—Confetti Habit is Growing.

BY BETTY MARTIN.

The State University at Berkeley is rapidly becoming prominent in the eyes of the world, and just now particularly, the ladies of the W. C. T. U. are determined that its light shall not be hidden under a bushel.

No less a man than Hamilton Mable recently made the statement that "no man or woman has a right to be independent at the expense of others." President B. I. Wheeler, however, seems to differ with him in this, and flaunts his opinions, manners and habits regardless, notwithstanding the pressure which is being brought to bear by the ladies to induce him to give up smoking and other kindred ills.

Cigarette smoking is a vile habit which physicians and the law are trying to eradicate as tending to vitiate the morals and health of those indulging therein. It is safe to venture the opinion that nobody cares a snap about its effect on Benjamin Wheeler, were it not for his pernicious example to the young men in his charge. For that reason alone it is to be hoped that the members of the W. C. T. U. will succeed in getting the President of the State University to indulge in more seemly practices than the smoking of cigarettes in public places.

Has this same vicious habit spread among the student body, and does it tend to account for the lax ideas prevalent regarding that which is mine and that which is thine? The last official report shows 300 missing volumes from the library alone this year—a train of an even hundred over the missing books of last term.

By the way the enrollment at the summer school this season almost passes belief. It has neared the thousand mark, and must necessarily have reached pretty close to the limit. This school has a well-defined effect on the town of Berkeley, particularly in the way of houses, for while in years passed the "To Let" signs decorated the windows of at least half the houses during the warm term, now anything at all desirable in that line is snapped up for the year round.

Speaking of Berkeley matters, the lecture delivered by Professor George Rice Carpenter of the Chair of Rhetoric at Columbia University last Wednesday was of more than passing interest. He took for his theme "The Value of the Popular Novel," and his remarks led up to the conclusion that popular literature has always a chance of permanent survival. The great vogue accorded novels of today, is according to the professor, perfectly natural. Incidentally, he declares the making of them to be a "perfectly reputable trade."

To view novel-writing in the light of a trade will be strange to many people, but as a matter of fact there are many things to be learned in the making of books, and the writer who hopes to win must serve an apprenticeship before success comes to reward effort. The idea that writers are born is about dispelled, and the fact that they are a hard working lot of mortals is now recognized.

* * *

The confetti habit has grown apace, and California can almost outrival the Latin races in that regard. The year around one can attend a succession of outdoor fetes here, and indulge in battles of flowers or bits of colored paper as one sees fit. These fiestas and fairs begin usually in Los Angeles, and wind up in the northernmost cities and towns as the season advances.

With these fiestas California is developing something beside the confetti habit, and that is a race of play folk who make the circuit in common. They range all the way from singers and dancers to girls who thread needles with their toes or grow hair to cover their noses, and we patronize them one and all, just to show our good nature and to be able to say that we have seen—shall we say Alice?

* * *

The plea for the "simple life" which is so earnestly advocated nowadays, seems to have a firm hold on westerners, especially during the summer time. It has become quite the proper thing to own a little place away from the city. It may be a house-boat anchored near Belvedere or San Rafael, a ranch high up in the Sierras, a home among the vineyards, a cottage by the seashore, or a tiny plot of ground among the hills nearby, with a rough hewn cabin of logs and shingles, but the summer home is now among the indispensables—that is for those whose bank account places them outside the pale of hotels and fashionable watering places, and who yet feel that they must indulge in a change of scene during the season.

The death of Mrs. L. P. McCarty of Oroville, this week will be a sad blow to her sister, Mrs. James Spaulding of San Francisco, who is now in Boston on a somewhat lengthy visit.

Lilla McCarty was a wonder to all her acquaintances. She was not known to fame, though her extreme modesty, but it is a fact that for years she labored with her husband, L. P. McCarty, to bring the statistician up to his present high standard, and it represents practically her life work. Mrs. McCarty belonged to a family of publishers. Her brother, La Rose Phelps, is the proprietor of the Stockton Independent, and James Spaulding, or "Jimmie," as he is known among his friends, has a printing and publishing establishment across the bay which he inherited from his father. A sister, too, followed in the same lines before her marriage, and was an efficient proof reader. The exception is the youngest member of the family—Wisner Phelps—whose home is in Oakland.

Mr. McCarty has one child—a daughter—whose musical ability has won her considerable recognition already, although she is but a young girl. Music, by the way, is an inherited talent with her, both from the father and mother's side. L. P. McCarty is thoroughly versed in both instrumental and vocal music, and was a singer of note in his younger days. In fact, if I have been rightly informed, he followed that line of work professionally, and travelled with many noted singers who toured this country. In addition, every member of the Phelps family knows how to sing. Lilla herself was more noted as a pianist, perhaps, although she possessed a contralto voice of power and sweetness, and had taken a course of study with Miss Alice Dyer when that young lady was singing at the Congregational church here in Oakland. La Rose Phelps and his wife have for years sung in the Catholic church at Stockton, while the other members of the family have reserved their talents chiefly for social purposes. Taken all in all, they are a gifted people, and the loss of Mrs. McCarty will be mourned not by the family alone, but by all fortunate enough to number her on their list of friends.

On July 7th Miss Degnan showed her skill as a rider by riding one of Caliente's thoroughbreds to Napa, escorted by H. R. Guichard.

Very Remarkable Cure of Diarrhoea.

"About six years ago, for the first time in my life, I had a sudden and severe attack of diarrhoea," says Mrs. Alice Miller of Morgan, Texas. "I got temporary relief, but it came back again and again, and for six long years I have suffered more misery and agony than I can tell. It was worse than death. My husband spent hundreds of dollars for physicians' prescriptions and treatment without avail. Finally we moved to Bosque county, our present home, and one day I happened to see an advertisement of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy with a testimonial of a man who had been cured by it. The case was so similar to my own that I concluded to try the remedy. The result was wonderful. I could hardly realize that I was well again, or believe it could be so after having suffered so long, but that one bottle of medicine, costing but a few cents, cured me." For sale by Osgood Bros., Seventh street and Broadway.

Tuscan Springs

Open All the Year Round

IS SITUATED on a slight eminence within the cone of an ancient crater whose fires went out in a distant epoch of from 10,000 to 50,000 years ago. During the period of its activity this crater—silent now but for the many springs which bubble up from the depths where Nature is busily compounding the minerals which impart new and fresh vigor to the sick, belched forth seas of lava, covering the country for miles about. The one break in the encircling cone is to the west, where the pent-up waters broke through and in succeeding ages wore a gorge up which the road to Tuscan winds along the lava slopes. A $60,000 hotel, three stories high, with graceful towers airily rising at either end, with wide and sheltered verandas on every side, invites the health-seeker and insures comfort and freedom at all seasons of the year. The interior appointments of the Tavern are not excelled by those of any hotel or resort in Northern California. The house contains 126 bedrooms, splendidly furnished perfectly ventilated, light and roomy. The main reception room and the dining-room each cover 2500 square feet. A spacious and comfortable ladies' parlor, a ball-room and a bowling alley make up a few of the attractions of the Tavern. Card rooms, a bar and billiard rooms are at the convenience of the gentlemen, but the bar is not under the roof of the main hotel. The ailments of the guests, on arriving at the Tavern, are diagnosed and each is supplied with a card directing him at which spring to drink, and when. There are fifty different waters.

The steam baths are supplied with mineral waters also, and the open swimming tank the same. The steam baths are a luxury which every guest regrets to part with. The boarders are allowed one bath a day without extra charge. An skin afflictions and catarrh are quickly relieved or cured. The result of overindulgence in alcoholic stimulants is expeditiously removed and the burning appetite curbed. A brief season at the Springs will make a new man of the most hardened toper. Tuscan Springs is nine miles east of Red Bluff, and is easily reached from all points. A daily stage runs between Red Bluff and the Springs. For the people of Oakland and surrounding towns it is the most economical health resort in the State. It costs you nothing if you count the doctor bills you would otherwise have to pay. The springs lose nothing in merit because they are close by. Others travel hundreds and some thousands of miles to avail themselves of the health-renewing waters of Tuscan Springs.

Notice of Application for and Sale of Street Railroad Franchise and Advertisement for Bids Therefor.

TO ALL WHOM IT MAY CONCERN:

Notice is hereby given that on the eighteenth day of May, A. D. 1903, an application in writing was made by the Oakland Transit Consolidated, a corporation, to the City Council of the City of Oakland, County of Alameda, State of California, for a franchise to construct, lay down, maintain and operate in the said City of Oakland, for the term of forty (40) years, a single or double track street railroad, with all necessary and convenient stations, sidetracks, switches, and appliances, to be operated by electricity or such other improved mode of operation as may be authorized by law, except steam locomotives, along and upon the following described streets and route in said City of Oakland, County of Alameda, State of California, to wit:

Commencing on Talcott Avenue, formerly known as the Old County Road, at the Eastern boundary line of said City of Oakland, and running thence Westerly along and upon said Talcott Avenue and across Twenty-third Avenue to and forming a junction with the tracks of said Oakland Transit Consolidated now constructed and operated on said Twenty-third Avenue;

Also commencing on Pleasant Valley Avenue, as said Avenue is laid down, delineated and so designated upon that certain map accompanying the report of the referees in the action entitled, Florence Ethel Blair, Plaintiff, vs. Mabel E. Squire, Phebe A. Blair, et als., Defendants, No. 16390 of Actions in the Superior Court of the County of Alameda, State of California, and entitled, "Map in Partition of the Blair Ranch," at the intersection of said Pleasant Valley Avenue with the Eastern boundary line of said City of Oakland, and running thence in a Westerly direction along, upon and across said Pleasant Valley Avenue and over, along and upon a private right of way fifty (50) feet in width to the Easterly line of Piedmont Avenue, and thence Westerly on a curve to the left to and forming a junction with the tracks of said Oakland Transit Consolidated as now constructed in said Piedmont Avenue:

And that it is proposed by the said City Council to grant the same, upon the terms and conditions and under the restrictions imposed or required by law, and upon the additional terms, conditions and restrictions hereinafter set forth, and that bids will be received for such franchise, and that it will be awarded to the highest bidder:

That the term for which said franchise or privilege is to be granted is forty (40) years, and that the route to be traversed by said street railroad is that above set forth and particularly described:

And notice is further given that sealed bids for said franchise will be received up to the hour of twelve (12) o'clock M. on Monday the Third day of August, A. D. 1903, and must be filed with the City Clerk of said City of Oakland at his office in the City Hall of said City of Oakland, and that upon Monday, the Third day of August, A. D. 1903, at the hour of eight o'clock P. M., the said City Council will meet at the Council Chamber in the said City Hall, in open session, and will then and there open and read said bids; and that thereupon said franchise will be struck off, sold and awarded to the person, firm or corporation, who shall make the highest cash bid therefor; provided, only, that at the time of the opening of said bids any responsible person, firm or corporation present or represented may bid for said franchise or privilege a sum not less than ten per cent above the highest sealed bid therefor, and said bid so made may be raised not less than ten per cent by any other responsible bidder, and said bidding may so continue until finally said franchise shall be struck off, sold, and awarded by said City Council to the highest bidder therefor in Gold Coin of the United States. Each sealed bid shall be accompanied with cash or a certified check, payable to the treasurer of said City of Oakland, for the full amount of said bid, and no sealed bid shall be considered unless said cash or check is enclosed therewith, and the successful bidder shall deposit, at least, ten per cent of the amount of his bid with the Clerk of said City of Oakland before the franchise shall be struck off to him. And if he shall fail to make such deposit immediately, then and in that case, his bid shall not be received, and shall be considered as void, and the said franchise shall then and there be again offered for sale to the bidder who shall make the highest cash bid therefor, subject to the same conditions as to deposit, as above mentioned. Said procedure shall be had until said franchise is struck off, sold, and awarded to a bidder who shall make the necessary deposit of, at least, ten per cent of the amount of his bid therefor, as herein provided. Said successful bidder shall deposit with the Clerk of said City of Oakland, within twenty-four hours after the acceptance of his bid, the remaining ninety per cent of the amount thereof, and in case he or it shall fail to do so, then the said deposit theretofore made shall be forfeited, and the said award of said franchise shall be void, and the said franchise shall then and there, by said City Council, be again offered for sale to the highest bidder therefor, in the same manner, and under the same restriction as hereinbefore provided, and in case said bidder shall fail to deposit with the Clerk of said City of Oakland, the remaining ninety per cent of his bid, within twenty-four hours after its acceptance, the award to him of said franchise shall be set aside, and the deposit theretofore made by him shall be forfeited, and no further proceedings for a sale of said franchise shall be had unless the same shall be readvertised and again offered for sale, in the manner hereinbefore provided:

The said City Council will exact and require from the successful bidder for said franchise a satisfactory promise and undertaking to permit and allow mail carriers in the employ of the United States Government, at all times while engaged in the actual discharge of duty, to ride on the cars of the street railroad authorized thereby without paying any sum of money whatever for fare or otherwise; and such promise and undertaking on the part of such successful bidder will be made a condition precedent to the granting of the aforesaid franchise:

The successful bidder and his assigns must during the life of said franchise pay to the City of Oakland two per cent (2%) of the gross annual receipts of the person, partnership or corporation to whom the franchise is awarded, arising from its use, operation or possession. No percentage shall be paid for the first five (5) years succeeding the date of the franchise but thereafter such percentage shall be payable annually; and in the event said payment is not made said franchise shall be forfeited:

The successful bidder for said franchise shall file a bond running to said City of Oakland with at least two good and sufficient sureties to be approved by said City Council, in the penal sum of $5000.00, conditioned that such bidder shall well and truly observe, fulfill, and perform each and every term and condition of such franchise, and that in case of any breach of condition of such bond, the whole amount of the said penal sum therein named shall be taken and deemed to be liquidated damages and shall be recoverable from the principal and sureties upon said bond. Said bond shall be filed with said City Council within five days after such franchise is awarded, and upon the filing and approval of such bond, the said franchise shall, by said City Council, be granted by ordinance to the person, firm, or corporation to whom it has been struck off, sold, or awarded, and in case that said bond shall not be so filed, the award of such franchise shall be set aside, and any money paid therefor shall be forfeited, and said franchise shall, in the discretion of said City Council, be readvertised and again offered for sale in the same manner, and under the same restrictions, as hereinbefore provided:

Notice is hereby further given that said franchise will be granted upon the following terms, conditions and restrictions in addition to the terms, conditions and restrictions required or imposed by law, to wit:

FIRST.—The grantee or grantees of said franchise, his, its or their successors or assigns, shall have the right, franchise and privilege to lay down, construct, maintain and operate said street railroad together with the right to carry passengers thereon for hire, for the term of forty (40) years; provided, however, that said franchise shall not be construed to give to the grantee or grantees thereof, his, its or their successors or assigns, the right to carry freight for any person, partnership or corporation, over, along or upon the street railroad to be authorized thereby, except such materials, tools, machinery and fuel as it may be necessary to transport over said street railroad for the construction, operation or maintenance of the street railroad lines of said grantee or grantees, his, its or their successors or assigns:

SECOND.—Subject to unavoidable delays and casualties cars for the conveyance of passengers must be operated each day in each direction over the respective portions of said street railroad, as follows:

Over that portion of said street railroad on Talcott Avenue from the Eastern boundary line of said City of Oakland to the tracks of said Oakland Transit Consolidated on Twenty-third Avenue between the hours of seven (7) A. M. and seven (7) P. M. at intervals of not more than thirty (30) minutes, and between the hours of seven (7) P. M. and twelve (12) P. M. at intervals of not more than sixty (60) minutes; and

Over the remaining portion of said street railroad between the hours of seven (7) A. M. and seven (7) P. M. at intervals of not more than twenty (20) minutes, and between the hours of seven (7) P. M. and twelve (12) P. M. at intervals of not more than thirty (30) minutes;

THIRD.—All street work required by law to be done by the grantee or grantees of said franchise, his, its or their successors or assigns, must be done with the same kind of material at the same time and in the same manner as the remainder in width of the aforesaid streets:

FOURTH.—All trolley poles used in the construction of said street railroad must be located on the sidewalks immediately adjoining the curb and must be of iron and of the most approved pattern for street railroad purposes, and no hanging arms shall be used; and the said poles and all wires used in connection with the exercise of the said franchise must be of sufficient height and elevation above the ground to avoid obstruction to the ordinary use of the streets, and they must be constructed and erected to the satisfaction of the Board of Public Works of the said City of Oakland:

FIFTH.—Work to construct said street railroad must be commenced within not more than ten (10) days from the date when the ordinance granting said franchise shall go into effect, and said work must be completed within thirty (30) days, and said street railroad must be operated within one year from the date when said ordinance shall go into effect, unless the time be extended by said City Council.

By order of the City Council of the City of Oakland.

Dated, June 26th, A. D. 1903.

ALCOHOL KILLED HIM!

Whisky Lures Another Victim to a Shameful Death. Sad Fate of an English Gentleman in a Prison Cell.

"Walter H. Ashe, an Englishman, who had charge of the shoe department of a department store, died in the City Jail between the time of his incarceration Friday night and yesterday morning, when his dead body was discovered in one of the tanks. An inquest was held at a morgue to which the body was removed, and the Coroner's jury returned a verdict of death from Acute Alcoholism. The liver was found to be abnormally enlarged. Ashe, who roomed on South Figueroa street, was 40 years of age and unmarried. The St. George Society will have charge of the funeral."—Times, Los Angeles.

What a horrible death. The mere thought of it makes one shudder. This man had given up home, friends, honor, love and ambition to die a death of dark disgrace—for what?—WHISKY.

This man was a gentleman, honored, respected, educated, a member of a noble order. He began by drinking moderately. He died a death of shame, unhonored, unmourned, alone—in a wretched prison cell.

Men are pretty nearly all alike the world over, and whisky is the same sort of poison everywhere, and everywhere its mission is to destroy. Its terrible history is written in the misery and shame and ruin of a hundred generations, and what whisky did for the millions of unfortunate mortals who tampered with it, and the young Englishman in a prison cell—so sure will it do the same for you.

The thousands of drinking men who have taken our treatment for Alcoholic Intemperance are living witnesses to the efficacy, safety and permanency of our cure.

Our Institute has met with the unqualified indorsement of the leading Judges in San Francisco and Los Angeles, the Police Department of these cities, public officials and citizens of eminence and probity in all parts of the State.

We do not employ dangerous hypodermics or system-wrecking drugs. We effect a cure simply by the use of internal remedies taken into the system through natural methods.

All communications are sacred, and we hold secret the fact that any person has taken our treatment unless authorized in writing to publish the fact. For general information in reference to the business write or apply to the executive office.

Spring and Summer Patterns

The Latest Fashion Fancies

The Latest Paris Hats

There is always something peculiarly attractive about summer millinery. This season it seems as though the milliners had combined to turn out such fascinating specimens of headgear that no mortal woman could possibly avoid buying innumerable hats.

There are hats to wear with the simplest of frocks—hats for morning, noon, afternoon and evening—for be it understood there are many opportunities, such as dining at fashionable restaurants both in town and at the summer resorts, where the most elaborate of gowns are requisite, and with these same elaborate gowns a corresponding elaborate style of hat is imperative. For this purpose both large and small hats are in style, but the large ones are the most popular, in spite of the undaunted effort that is being made to bring the small hat into fashion again.

White lace and black lace hats, large, small and medium size, are exceedingly smart and most becoming, and are made up in so many different fashions as to make them possible for many different occasions. The broad, flat hat, with small round crown and with brim of gathered lace, and with a pink rose under the brim, so arranged that it rests against the hair, has a picturesque effect that makes it, for all its apparent simplicity, decidedly coquettish, while the same shape, without the rose, can by some clever manipulation of the brim be so bent that it looks as though its one object in life was to be rather sporty and only suited to a very youthful face.

Hats made of ruffles of fine embroidered muslin, the ruffles in printed edge effect, are new this season, and with the finest of batiste a rather heavier muslin is used. The shape is the same round flat one, but there is a twist of skyblue ribbon around the low crown, and a bow of the same ribbon on the band inside, with perhaps a pink rose caught in the bow that finishes the band. These hats can be cleaned and can, it is said, be laundered, but that would necessitate taking off the ruffles and replacing them, which would virtually be making the hat new.

There is no end of different weaves of straw—the rough shiny ones, the dull ones, the finer, like chip, or crin, and often with entre-deux of fine lace. Not new this season, but still in fashion, are the flat hats of fine white crin, with box pleatings of tulle around the crown and no other trimming whatever. Dainty and light in effect are these hats, and most becoming and so in keeping with the thin batiste and muslin frocks that it is not to be wondered at that the fashion is a most popular one. The same style of hat is made in pale colors and also in black, but is prettiest of all in the white, and the shape, rather a large sailor hat, is almost invariably becoming.

Large flat hats, to wear with the thin muslins, are rather unusual this season, not so much as regards the shape, which, after all, is much on the old lines, but as regards the colors, the very latest shades being used and often combined. Pink and blue in the palest imaginable shades are combined as well as a pale mauve and blue, and the flowers and ribbons either blend in with the color of the straw or are just a shade darker. A mauve straw of the finest weave, with entre-deux of fine white lace, has a twist of mauve and blue around the crown, while a spray of pinkish heliotrope and forget-me-nots at one side of the crown and another underneath the brim are the correct flowers.

A most practical style of hat that is exceedingly fashionable is a rough straw in yellow, white, black or dark blue. It has a round, medium-sized crown, a brim that turns up a little all around and is just a trifle narrower at the back than in front, while the only trimming on the hat consists of a wreath of roses around the crown, white, yellow or pink with a few green leaves. Occasionally these hats have a bow of black velvet ribbon at the back, under the brim, but that is an addition not always becoming and quite unnecessary.

Another smart hat is rough straw is on much the same lines, save that the brim does not turn up all around and is decidedly shorter at the back. This style is trimmed with a band of velvet ribbon around the crown and a bunch of roses at the side, or with a bunch of ostrich feathers. In dark blue this style is exceedingly attractive, for the feathers are of a much lighter blue that gives a more youthful appearance, but in yellow straw, with a bunch of pink roses at the side and a band of black velvet around the crown, the hat is so smart and attractive that, of course, it must be included among the absolutely necessary ones.

The shapes with the brim at the back so short that all the hair shows are still in favor, but the fashion has unfortunately become too exaggerated, and a style of hat that shows almost the crown of the head from the back and has a verandalike front is popular. The correct rendering of this fashion is and should be most attractive, for with the brim in front and at the sides large enough to shade the face becomingly, and gradually tapering off toward the back, the chances are ten to one that the hat will be becoming.

Both flowers and feathers are fashionable this season, and are sometimes used together, but as a rule it is thought smarter to have either one or the other. A popular and smart shape is made in fine straw, with brim curved up at one side, and trimmed with one long feather that starts at the back, goes around the entire crown and the end hangs down on the hair at the back. Of course this requires a long and fine feather, but then feather trimmed hats must needs be included among the expensive varieties, and it is never a good plan to economize in the feathers that are used. Better to choose some other style of trimming that in itself costs less.

Lace is always becoming on a hat, and a quiet and attractive shape is one worn off the face, but with brim covered with lace, so that the brim projects over the forehead and from the brim falls the edge of lace. A stiff bird with outstretched wings, or, if the hat be large enough, two birds, are at the left side and partly over the crown. These hats are smartest when made in black, but the style has lately appeared in yellow or white straw, with bright green bird or birds, green being for the moment exceedingly fashionable.

How We Lost This House on $100 A Week

When Tom and I were married we moved at once into a charming but modest uptown apartment. Tom was cashier in a broker's office at a salary of $5,000 a year. Things went swimmingly, and we were as happy and contented as any two young persons ever were. The $1,000 a year we had to pay for rent seemed a big sum to us, and it looked bigger the second year than it did the first. Somehow, even though we had not been extravagant, we never seemed to have ready money. The $5,000 was gone and there were unpaid bills when the first anniversary day came round.

"Tom, dear," I said, after we had finished a most daintily served anniversary dinner, "don't you think there is something wrong in our methods? We surely ought not to spend all of our income. You know provident people lay aside something for a rainy day. Illness may come, we may have unexpected demands upon our resources at any time. What will we do at such times?"

"Oh, don't worry, little one," he replied as his eyes took on the tender expression which really made me Mrs. Tom. "We'll get on somehow, and your sweet face was never intended for worry wrinkles, so don't invite them."

"Well, I know this," I said: The Jackmans live out at Junglewood only an hour's ride from Wall street, and they own their own place and they are paying for it by the year. The price was only $10,000, and the house is just splendid, with grounds, and a barn, and roses, and a garden, with fresh peas and corn every day that are much nicer than you buy of the vegetable man. Why, we could own a place like that in 10 years for the rent we are paying."

"The interest on $10,000 is only $500 a year," said Tom, thoughtfully; "that would leave $500 a year for taxes and other things. Surely, that ought to be ample. I'll figure on it a bit."

Then followed six months of delightful planning. We talked by the hour of the kind of house we wanted, and built all sorts of pretty air castles founded on a home in the country, which we should eventually own. We studied plans and styles, discoursed of fireplaces, mantels and decorations. Magazine advertisements of shingle stain, path-room outfits, house points and heating systems became as interesting as fiction. These were months of unalloyed pleasure, and when spring came we were ready to begin the search in earnest. We decided to try Junglewood, so I could be near Helen and have the benefit of her advice.

It was not nearly so difficult to find a house as we had anticipated. We ran across an ideal place at once. It was one of a number of houses built in a section that was being developed upon an artistic and scientific plan by a big realty company. All the places were to be uniform, no house to cost less than $10,000. The character of the purchaser was of more importance to the company than his cash. Providing the home-seeker could convince the company that he would be a desirable addition to what was to be "a community of artistic and agreeable people who owned their own houses," he could secure most liberal terms. We had no difficulty along this line.

Tom said I was to have an allowance of $40 a week on which to run the house, provide the table and pay our modest retinue of servants—a cook and a waiting maid. Tom was to take care of the other expenses. I engaged a cook at $20 a month and a waitress at $16. It was splendid. I felt at last that I had my work to do, and the responsibility gave me joy. We joined the golf club, and in due time met the other homeowners near us. We entered into the innocent enjoyments peculiar to suburban life, and found great satisfaction in it. Tom said the ride to the city and back every day was not irksome; in fact, it was pleasanter than the daily squeeze on the "L" road. By exercising care and economy I performed my part of the contract on my stipulated allowance. We lived plainly but well. The summer passed delightfully, and we voted our home a great success. We lived a great deal out of doors, and our health and spirits benefited thereby.

When winter set in the social life continued, but it was indoors. It, too, was enjoyable, and the gayety of the city was not missed nearly as much as we thought it would be.

"Tom, dear," said I one night, after returning from a meeting of the whist club, "isn't the Jordans' home lovely?"

"Very pretty."

"It is furnished in such exquisite taste."

"Yes."

"They seem to have much nicer things than we have. Has Jim Jordan such a large income?"

"I believe he has a very good salaried position."

"Oh, pshaw! I do wish I could spend $500 on some new things. We need them, and I could make the money go so far. Don't you believe we could afford it? It wouldn't be extravagant, because we would be accumulating property."

"Why, yes; I guess we can stand it. I have paid the semi-annual interest on the mortgage, met all my other expenses and have $1,000 in the bank. I think we are doing very well. Of course, we must keep our end up."

* * * * * * *

I thought I detected a look of care on dear old Tom's face as he stood at the side of the dainty brass crib, gazing at the chubby face almost lost in the snowy sea of coverings.

"What is it, darling?" I asked, eagerly, motherly instinct for a moment rising paramount. "Isn't the little precious all right?"

"Oh, he's all right," was the smiling reply, as the proud paternal light suffused his handsome eyes.

"But you looked worried. Has anything gone wrong?"

"No; nothing in particular. Nothing, anyway, that you should be bothered about. The interest is due next week, but I guess I will be able to take care of it. I can make a short note, if worst comes to worst. We will not have these heavy expenses always. We will not need the trained nurse after this week, and the doctor will not press his bill, I am sure."

When I was strong enough to take charge of things I found a greatly changed state of affairs. Another member had come to the family, though a little one, had made a vast difference. It was absolutely impossible to get along without a nursemaid, and that increased the considerable. You know we have gone to the theatre occasionally and have had other pleasures which have all been paid for from my share of our income. I can see only one item that can be cut down, and that is our clothing?"

"You don't mean that I have got to go along with fewer clothes than I have had," I said, with some indignation. "You know Tom Browne, that there is not another woman in our set who has fewer clothes than I. Only two new gowns last year, and then how I have made over my old things to make them last until even you have become tired of them."

"Yes, I know you are ingenious and clever, and I do not say that you have been extravagant. That is one of the things that has bothered me most, that I could not do for you as I would like to, and as I did when we were living in an apartment. We both had plenty of clothes then. Why, I'm getting so that I feel that clean linen every day is an extravagance. I suppose I ought to make a shirt do two days. Other men do, I know, but I can't bring myself to it, somehow."

"No, I hope we may never be forced to that. If we can't have clean linen and home I would prefer to sacrifice the home."

Something did turn up the next week and Tom came home as happy as a schoolboy at the beginning of "long vacation."

"It's all right, darling," he exclaimed, hardly waiting to give his usual embrace and kiss. "The interest is paid and I have a couple of hundred to the good and I didn't make a note either."

"Why, how did you do it?" I said, sharing his joy. "Have you been visited by a good fairy?"

"I hit it right in Wall street," he replied. "I did not say anything to you about it, but two weeks ago I bought one hundred shares of Steel. It jumped ten points yesterday in the big bull movement and I cleared up a cool thousand. It came in the nick of time, too."

* * * * * * *

Two years followed, adding another member to our happy family and bringing much pleasure, and, of course, many worries. We made the most of the pleasure and passed over the worries the best we could. We had paid our expenses fairly well, but Tom said his bank account was always like a watermelon seed he planted once in St. Lawrence county. It wouldn't grow.

* * * * * * *

It was a month before the anniversary of our advent in Junglewood. Tom had lighted a cigar and was blowing the smoke above his head and watching it curl lazily in the air. Suddenly he said:

"Do you know, dear, that we have been here for nearly five years?"

"Yes, and despite our worries," I replied, "I have enjoyed our home immensely."

"Our home!" he exclaimed with a trace of bitterness. "Do you realize how much of it is really ours?"

"Why, I have come to believe it force of servants to three, when before it had been two. Both the cook and the waitress were being paid more than when we started, and despite my most earnest effort I could not replace them at lower figures. The $40 a week, which had seemed ample, now seemed meager. Practice small economies as I would, I was in a constant state of impecuniosity.

"Tom, dear," said I one night, "don't you think it possible to increase my allowance? You know how the household expenses have increased?"

"I don't see how I can," he returned, rather shortly, I thought.

"You know you have more than I do of our income, and look what I have to do with the $40 a week you allow me."

"Well, my dear," he replied, and with a slight note of irritation, "my money goes, too, for the common cause, does it not? What matters it how it is divided since it all goes? I would gladly give you more, but how can I when I haven't it? You don't seem to appreciate what heavy expenses I have. I have been making some figures and they startle me. On the present basis I am paying:—

Interest	$700
Life insurance	700
Coal	150
Light	96
Commutation	65
Clothing	500
Telephone	40
Taxes	140
Insurance	25
Water	30
Total	$2,446

"These are fixed expenses, and they amount to $2,446 a year. Divide that by fifty-two and you find that it amounts to a little more than $47 a week. That does not include any of my personal expenses, lunches, cigars, car fare and one thing and another, which, in the aggregate, amount to Everybody says property has increased in value here, and it must be worth ever so much more than we paid for it."

"Yes, they do say that values have risen—that is, they say it to buyers. But the realty company does not want to renew the mortgage. It says it needs the money to carry on extensive plans of development on the other side of town."

"But somebody else will take it?"

"Not for so large an amount. The best we can do is to place a mortgage of $10,000 upon it, and it is a friend who agreed to lend us that. The savings bank will not lend more than $7,000."

"What will you do?"

"I don't know. I can't raise $4,000. How would you like to give up the idea of being a home owner and go back to the city, to the theatre, to the clubs and to—more clothes?"

"Say, Tom, it wouldn't be so bad after all."

And we did. The realty company offered to purchase the property back for $12,000 and save the disgrace of a forced sale. Upon the advice of real estate men who were posted upon real values of suburban property Tom accepted the offer. The interest on the $2,000 that we still owe is a link that binds us to Junglewood and keeps ever green the memory of our youthful ambition to own a house and be somebody.

JANE EMELINE BROWNE.

Sounded the Keynote.

"The Star-Spangled Banner" was just finished and the composer was showing it to his friends.

"Yes," they agreed, "but it must certainly be off Key."

Seeing it was on him the musician hastily set 'em up again.
